LIVERPOOL, October 23d .- Mr. Johnson, the verpool. Mr. Johnson replied briefly, to the effect that At six o'clock in the evening, a grand banquet ipled the chair. Among the guests were Lord tanley, Right Hon. W. E. Gladstone, the Bishop Mr. Johnson, after expressing his acknowledgassurances to the people of America, to the Go-vernment and himself, that former differences ad been forgotten, and that now the heart of Liverpool, like that of all England, has but one celling of warm friendship for the United States.

When I remember the war through which our concerned, I was satisfied that you would see at the Union still stands on foundations never the war. I thought I knew, and now realize he realm. Our Father made the nation, and we have shown our will and ability to maintain it as long as Providence will suffer human society to endure. Mr. Johnson then complimented the usefulness. That gentleman, and I allude to Governor Seymour, has recently commenced a canvass of the United States, as, far as time will permit until the Presidential election, believing that the exigencies of his party demand it, as I think they do—[laughter]—and I think it will be "love's labor lost." I propose to devote my remarks to-day before this large assembly to a brief review, hurried as it must be, in time for others to speak after me. of some of the viewalaid others to speak after me, of some of the views laid down by this distinguished citizen. I listened to speeches that the telegraph announced to us had been made by him with no common degree of in-terest, but when I read these speeches I must ac-knowledge with regret that I found not a vindication of his own political platform, but an arraignment and denunciation of the party to which he stands opposed, and which, thank God. blocks up the way to the Presidential chair. I will read a sentence which is the gist of his Rochester speech: "What we hope and aim to do is to check this usurpation and unwise legislation. The men in power have neither established a successful system of reconstruction nor done anything to lighten the burdens which oppress the people of the North." He is now travelling through one waying states for the prepared of pelled to say, that noble party of whose memberahip I with you am justly proud.

What does he call a record of usurpations and unwise legislation? Let me put it in review before you, for there is nothing more triumphant, there is nothing more is nothing more inspiring to every lover of his country than the record we have written down on the pages of our country's history. Look back at the very birth of the Republican party, when it sprang into existence, slmost originating with you in the State of Michigan, finding its hundreds of thousands all over the land standing with it shoulder to shoulder. What was its first usurpation? Was it when border ruffians sought to invade the plains of Kansas and punish devotion to liberty there by outrage, by murder, by midnight assasiantion, by stealing ballot-boxes and stuffing them to make them speak untruly the voice of the people in the struggle between liberty and eshoulder. What was its first usurpation? Was it when border rufilans sought to invade the plains of. Kanasas and punish devotion to liberty there by outroge, by murder, by midnight assassination, by stealing ballot-boxes and stuffing them to make them speak untruly the voice of the people in the struggle between liberty and slavery?

This young Republican party ever devoted itself to that whole principle of liberty and justice which has illuminated its banner ever since. It dared to throw down the gauntlet of defiance at the feet of the Administration then in power, at its devotees, at its supporters, at its apologistic dared to make the cause of Kanasa our own and yours and those in adjoining States and elsewhere.

Mr. Colfax continued at length and was frequently applauded.

West Virginia Elections

Wheeling, W. Va., Oct. 23—9. P. M.—Later returns look better for the Republicans.
