RMATION CELEBRATION.—Yesterday th three hundred and fifty-first anniversary of the great religious Reformation started in Germany er Martin Luther, was appropriately obrved in the Lutheran churches of this city. At St. Mark's, Spring Garden street, the services were solemn and impressive. In the morning a sermon was preached by the pastor, Rev. Dr. nkeiman, and the evening a sermon by the Rev. Schaeffer, of Germantown. Both Dr. Hut-'s church on New street, between Third and Fourth, and Dr. Seiss's church, on Race street, east of Sixth, held special services. For 77 years the congregation had worshipped there, and this being the last day in which services would be held in the old building, a large number of persons assembled. It is said a large number of persons assembled. It is said that up to 1743, a small German Lutheran con-gregation, at that time the only Lutheran flock in the city, held their public services in a carpenter shop, situated in Arch street. In that year, Rev. H. M. Mublenberg arrived in his city, and in that year the corner-stone of Si Michael's Lutheran Church, Fifth street, below "herry was laid, and five years after the building was consecrated to its sacred purposes. During the services of Rev. Mr. Muhlenburg the congreaction grew in numbers, and in consequence more extensive accommodations were required, and in 1766, the corner-stone of Zion Church was

DEATH IN A POLICE STATION.—An unknown man died at the Central Station yesterday morn-ing from apoplexy. He fell in the street on Fri-day evening, and was carried into Jayne's grug store, on Chestnut street, below Third, and was from thence removed to the station. He was unconscious up to the time of his death. The de-ccased was about five feet eight inches high, black ccased was about five feet eight inches high, black curly hair, moustache and goatee, and apparent-ly thirty years of age. He was attired in a light, ribbed cloth suit, brown felt hat and laced aboes. Two letters were found on his person, one of which is addressed to John Beard, signed Annie Beard and Fanny Beard. The Coroner has charge f the body.

ELECTION FRAUDS.-The Grand Jury presentment made on Saturday says: The Grand Jury have had before them evidence of deliberate organization in open day in this and neighboring cluies of bands of men having no right to vote cities of bands of men having no right to vote at our elections, for this purpose coming to our city and repeatedly voting under assumed names, and also preventing by violence and intimidation legal voters from exercising their rights. The frauds have been carried to such an extent as seems is the jury to earnestly demand of all good citizens and officers of all parties to detect and punish to the extent of the law all such criminals.

NEW JERSEY MATTERS.

THE ELECTION .--- To-morrow will be a day THE ELECTION.—10-morrow will be a day fraught with important consequences to the citi-zens of Camden, as well as throughout the entire State. The interests involved are great, and no Republican who can in anywise walk, or be conveyed to the polls, should be left at home. A United States Senator is to be elected by the Legislature the coming ecssion, and it is important that a majority of that body should be Repub-licans. Henry L. Bonsall, William C. Shinn and Thomas H. Coles are the nominees of the Legislative Districts of Camden county, all sound and substantial men. It is imperative that they should be algorid and for this reason all sound and substantial men. It is imperative that they should be elected, and for this reason every Republican votor should go the polls. Every vote cast for these gentlemen contributes towards the preservation of the Union and Con-stitution of our country, good order and peace. Neglecting to vote under such circumstances would be criminal. Ve-hicles should therefore be provided to convey to the polls all who are too aged and enfecbled to walk thither, and every effort should be made to search them ont. The importance of the election demands that to-morrow should be the election demands that to-morrow should be devoted to the cause of right by every true friend of constitutional liberty, of the Union and its perof constitutional noise, so that of pull, and a pull all together, and the day will be won.

THE DEMOCRATIC PARADE .--- The Democratic procession and torchlight parade on Saturday evening, notwithstanding the inclement weather, was well attended, and made a very creditable AN IMPROVEMENT.—The City Councils have passed an ordinance authorizing the paying of Federal street, from the junction of the Haddonfield turnpike to Newton avenue, the extreme limit of the eity. Ir is stated at the police headquarters in New Chat About the Duke of Wellington of the London Parks, you could trace his progress by the hats that were lifted to him. One day, in London, when I happened to stroll into St. James Park, I observed that a great number of carriages and gentlemen on horseback were going toward one of the entrances of Buckingham Palace, the London residence of Queen Victoria. These carriages stopped but a few moments at the palace door, and then rolled away. A great crowd of people had gathered to witness this spectacle, and I very young and a stranger in the place joined them, and stood there a long time admiring the beautiful equipages, the excellent horses, and showy livieries. Dukes and duchesses, earls and countesses, barons, baronets, knights and commoners, many of them dis tinguished for more than rank and wealth passed in review before the crowd, without eliciting from them any mark of respect, or recognition. But at length an elderly-looking gentleman came up on horseback, attended by a single servant, whom every one instantly recognized, by his large and peculiar nose, to be the Duke of Wellington. There was no indication of the military man about him, except the stripes down his trowsers. which, on that day, as the Court was in mourning, were black. The moment he appeared, every hat was removed, and he acknowledged the salutation of the crowd by raising his forefinger to the brim of his hat, and holding it there as he passed along. I saw him after ward, when but a single individual took off his hat to him, no one else being present at the moment, but whether, one did so, or multitude, the Duke always lifted his finger in the same courteous, military fashion. A princess had been born the day before.

and all these distinguished people were going to the palace to inquire respecting the health of the Queen and the little stranger. They merely alighted, and entering an ante-room made the inquiry of some official person, wrote their names in a book, and retired. al. It was also used for the same purpose by the American soldiers in 1779. In 1794, on the 27th of December, all of the upper portion of the building was destroyed by fire, and nothing left erect and firm, and might have passed for a but the bare walls. Measures were at once ta-ken to rebuild, and in 1796 the work was accom-plished. The old Zion Church will seat about getting on again, that he showed some sizes getting on again, that he showed some signs of decrepitude. The young stranger could not help thinking that, when the Duke of the paipit. self for an afternoon nap. He had a singu-larly insignificant appearance while seated thus, as he was slightly undersized, and his formidable nose was concealed. It was a warm afternoon, and he had on white trowsers. Seldom has an innocent youth been more astonished than I was when I was told that alcopy little gentleman, on the floor of the house, was the great Duke of Wellington, the hero of Waterloo, the conqueror of Napoleon ! An hour afterwards, when the House adjourned, I hurried down to the entrance to see him pass, and possibly to have a sight of him him pass, and possibly to have a sight of him as he mounted his horse and rode away. Both these privileges I enjoyed. He cer-tainly looked better as he stepped out of the house, and brought up his finger to the brim of his hat to the people who uncovered before him. His face, I remember, seemed all nose, and indeed I can recall nothing of his countenance at this time, except that well-countenance at this time, except that well-developed organ.—James Parton.
