

The Evening Bulletin

GIBSON PEACOCK, Editor.
VOLUME XXII.—NO. 184.

OUR WHOLE COUNTRY.

PHILADELPHIA, WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 11, 1868.

F. L. FETHERSTON, Publisher.
PRICE THREE CENTS.

AMERICAN LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY,

of Philadelphia,
S. E. Corner Fourth and Walnut Sts.

This Institution has no superior in the United States.

WEDDING CARDS, INVITATIONS FOR PARTIES, &c. New styles. 707 Chestnut street.

WEDDING INVITATIONS ENGRAVED IN THE MOST BEAUTIFUL MANNER. LOUIS BRIDGES, 707 Chestnut street.

MARRIED.

GRANTON—A. E. On Tuesday, November 10th, by Rev. J. L. Lane, Unitarian Minister, of New York, to Miss M. E. Granton, daughter of Mr. J. L. Lane, of New York.

GRANTON—A. E. On Tuesday, November 10th, by Rev. J. L. Lane, Unitarian Minister, of New York, to Miss M. E. Granton, daughter of Mr. J. L. Lane, of New York.

DIED.

EARL—On the morning of the 10th inst., Little F., wife of Theodore Earl, in the 32d year of her age, died at her residence, 1222 Chestnut street, on Friday morning, at 11 o'clock.

For Winds and Rough Weather, Colgate's Co's Glycerine and Aromatic Soaps are prepared for the purpose of cleaning and softening the hair and skin, and are sold by all the Grocers and Druggists.

GOOD BLACK AND COLORED SILKS.

FOR THE WINTER SEASON. FINEST QUALITY. G. W. L. & CO., 100 N. 2d St.

SCIENTIFIC LECTURES.

OF THE AMERICAN ASSOCIATION. The course of Scientific Lectures before the Association will be opened for the season on FRIDAY EVENING, Nov. 13th, at 8 o'clock, at the University of Pennsylvania.

AN EXAMINATION OF CANDIDATES FOR

TEACHERS IN THE PUBLIC SCHOOLS OF THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA. The examination will be held on THURSDAY and FRIDAY, Nov. 12th and 13th, at 10 o'clock, at the University of Pennsylvania.

THE FRANKLIN INSTITUTE LECTURES will commence on TUESDAY EVENING, Nov. 10th, at 8 o'clock, at the Franklin Institute.

THE CHRISTIAN LIFE.

As illustrated by E. W. Phelps' Progress, will be delivered by Rev. J. W. Phelps, on WEDNESDAY EVENING, Nov. 11th, at 8 o'clock, at the Franklin Institute.

ALL WHO FEEL INTERESTED TO SEE

Gas Machine, made by J. W. Phelps, are invited to call on the Franklin Institute, on WEDNESDAY, Nov. 11th, at 10 o'clock.

SECOND STREET M. E. CHURCH will conduct the exercises during the week, on WEDNESDAY, Nov. 11th, at 8 o'clock.

PHILADELPHIA ORTHOPEDIC HOSPITAL

No. 18 South Second Street. Apply daily to the Surgeon, Dr. J. W. Phelps.

HOWARD HOSPITAL, NO. 1215 AND 1220

Lombard Street, Dispensary Department. Medical treatment and medicine furnished gratuitously.

FROM NEW YORK.

New York, Nov. 11.—An application was made before Judge Blatchford yesterday by Augustus Daly, a playwright of this city, for an injunction restraining J. W. Phelps from producing the play of After Dark at Niblo's Garden, on the ground that the scenes and incidents, especially the railroad scene, are stolen from his own play Under the Gaslight. Subpoenas were served and the parties were required to appear on Saturday.

Alfred E. Whitehead, a young man of twenty-two, was sentenced by Judge J. W. Phelps yesterday to three years in the Penitentiary for bigamy. Two of his wives and two of his fiancées were in court, and all but one of them testified. He married his first wife the day after their first meeting, which occurred on a street in Buffalo, she being introduced to him by a lady friend.

The new diocese of the Episcopal Church in Northern New York will come into existence on Sunday next. By the suggestion of the present Bishop, the day will be celebrated in all the Episcopal Churches in this part of the State, by the administration of the Holy Communion at the morning service, when the offerings of the people will be appropriated to the fund for the support of the Bishop, who is to be elected on the 2d of December.

It is a curious fact that scarcely an actress ever created a great sensation in San Francisco without having her head completely turned. She is so beset by the preponderating population of men, so palled by bouquets, diamond rings and breast pins, and seductive little deus, that the pressing aspiration of her heart (if she be married) is a divorce. And she never fails to get it.

The Currency and the Secretary.

(For the Philadelphia Evening Bulletin.)
About eleven years ago money, or rather the credit which we use for money, was exorbitantly dear. So much so, that upon the 17th of October, 1857, the whole amount of the deposits in all the banks in the city of New York was $42,890,012. This was the only day, since that time, when the merchants, manufacturers, brokers, gamblers and others had lying in the banks subject to their checks. At the same time the notes in circulation of the same banks amounted to $8,087,411. This was all the spare cash supposed to be in the private treasuries and pockets of the people. These amounts were far from being enough to conduct the business of New York. Money was fearfully scarce, and the only use made of it was for the daily necessities of life. In a few months the evil wrought its own cure. The speculations which brought the trouble about were killed. Money flowed to the point of most intense pressure, and things went on as before.

At the close of the week just pasted, the amount of deposits in the banks of the city of New York was $175,556,717. This sum represents the whole amount of spare cash belonging to the merchants and others in that city, lying in the banks subject to their checks. At the same time, the notes in circulation amounted to $34,353,637, and this sum may be supposed to be in the private treasuries and brooches-pockets of the people.

One would suppose that with over thirty-four millions of dollars lying about loose, and with over one hundred and seventy-five millions lying about, not exactly loose, but liable to be let loose by the proper persons, money could not be so very tight. There was four times as much of it, as in October, 1857. A reduction of prices would allow the owners to invest in whatever was offered. There was no public object for whose sake the creditors of the whole community were to be kept waiting for a return to a specie basis of currency should be sacrificed.

But many of the aforesaid brokers and gamblers, and perhaps some merchants and builders of a speculative turn of mind, had great difficulty in carrying their ventures to a profit. They did not like to sell for less than they had bought for. They could not, by such a process, earn the $50,000 a year it now costs them to live; for these poor people are not the only ones who are suffering. The Secretary of the Treasury, it is said, was bedeviled and badgered; led at, squealed at and frightened into making some promises; not definitely made, but to re-enlarge the basis of banking, and to go back upon his own record, to defeat and undo the only movement by which a specie currency can ever be reached.

For it is vain to hope that a specie basis can ever be reached without specie prices, and if specie prices, then lower prices than now, and if lower prices, then they must be arrived at by a course of compulsion; because people will not submit to lower prices for what they possess without a struggle.

Independently of the suspicion which such interference fastens upon the public officer doing it, the weakness displayed is enough to prove his unfitness for the trust.

PHILADELPHIA, November 10, 1868.
[From the Inside Blade.]

The Presidential Election—The News

Heard in Kentucky—The X Roads in Mourning.

POST OFFICE, CONVENT ST. ROADS, WICH. In a letter to Mr. Phelps, Nov. 6, 1868, which is now in my possession, I have heard from some of the States to know that butchery—Grant—who was before stood in the way of the Confederacy, was elected President, and that Seymour and Blair, our standard-bearers, have been defeated ignominiously.

This ends it! This finishes it! There is no longer hope for Democracy. Our star is not in the sky, and we must not forget the ghastly appearance of Deekin Pogram's face, as the fatal blow was told him. A single tear rolled from his left eye, down his furrowed cheek—it glittered for a moment in the light of his brilliant nose, and then he plunged into it again! How like our hopes! Never a word said he, but sadly beckoned me to follow. Sadly he walked to the square, mournfully he bowed his head, and with a sigh he turned away from the pole from which he had just been hanged. "That is all," he said, "I have no more." And overcame with a groan, he stood old man buried into a flood of tears, which covered his face. The drama of his life, which he had so long acted, was now over. He was now a man of straw, and he was now a man of straw.

And Ben Butler is elected. That excellent contrived shrew went out in the date twenty years ago, and who still reads the Nashville Intelligencer and who is to be a Whig paper, is defeated, and Butler is elected. When a Whig paper is defeated, it is a Whig paper, and when a Whig paper is defeated, it is a Whig paper.

I don't say a word to the cause of my own party, but I say a word to the cause of my own party. I don't say a word to the cause of my own party, but I say a word to the cause of my own party.

Deekin Pogram, signs, and the rest of it, should be a good deal of it. Deekin Pogram, signs, and the rest of it, should be a good deal of it.

Will the new Administration deprive a whole community of a paper merely to give one to its supporters? A possible? We shall see.

What is the catastrophe? What is it? We shall see. What is the catastrophe? What is it? We shall see.

What is the catastrophe? What is it? We shall see. What is the catastrophe? What is it? We shall see.

What is the catastrophe? What is it? We shall see. What is the catastrophe? What is it? We shall see.

What is the catastrophe? What is it? We shall see. What is the catastrophe? What is it? We shall see.

The Deekin was remarkable in this respect, when Joe Blazer remarked in reply, that in December had better throw himself into the sympathy of his sons.

"I don't mean your white sons!" said this terrible Bigler. "They ain't no account. But in the month of settlement, I'll give you more than twenty who were white."

The poor Deekin rushed out in the room, while Bigler left his most fervent last. The poor Deekin was so frightened by the innocent Bigler, that he fled to his room, and hid himself in a hole, and hid himself in a hole.

We shall see the scelerous Southern system decline steadily and shortly. The whip-lash will be used, and the whip-lash will be used, and the whip-lash will be used.

Deekin Pogram here only blurted up wunt. A shot flashed over his head, and he fell. Deekin Pogram here only blurted up wunt.

Deekin Pogram here only blurted up wunt. A shot flashed over his head, and he fell. Deekin Pogram here only blurted up wunt.

Deekin Pogram here only blurted up wunt. A shot flashed over his head, and he fell. Deekin Pogram here only blurted up wunt.

Deekin Pogram here only blurted up wunt. A shot flashed over his head, and he fell. Deekin Pogram here only blurted up wunt.

Deekin Pogram here only blurted up wunt. A shot flashed over his head, and he fell. Deekin Pogram here only blurted up wunt.

Deekin Pogram here only blurted up wunt. A shot flashed over his head, and he fell. Deekin Pogram here only blurted up wunt.

Deekin Pogram here only blurted up wunt. A shot flashed over his head, and he fell. Deekin Pogram here only blurted up wunt.

Deekin Pogram here only blurted up wunt. A shot flashed over his head, and he fell. Deekin Pogram here only blurted up wunt.

Deekin Pogram here only blurted up wunt. A shot flashed over his head, and he fell. Deekin Pogram here only blurted up wunt.

Deekin Pogram here only blurted up wunt. A shot flashed over his head, and he fell. Deekin Pogram here only blurted up wunt.

Deekin Pogram here only blurted up wunt. A shot flashed over his head, and he fell. Deekin Pogram here only blurted up wunt.

Deekin Pogram here only blurted up wunt. A shot flashed over his head, and he fell. Deekin Pogram here only blurted up wunt.

Deekin Pogram here only blurted up wunt. A shot flashed over his head, and he fell. Deekin Pogram here only blurted up wunt.

ENGLAND.

The True Version of the Reported Alabama Claims Negotiations.

London, Nov. 10th, 1868.—Minister Reynolds' statement that the difficulties between England and the United States in regard to the Alabama claims are ended, is regarded as too strong, and entirely unwarranted by the present aspect of the high authorities interested. Nothing has been agreed upon, and the Alabama claims are not yet settled.

London, Nov. 10th, 1868.—Minister Reynolds' statement that the difficulties between England and the United States in regard to the Alabama claims are ended, is regarded as too strong, and entirely unwarranted by the present aspect of the high authorities interested.

London, Nov. 10th, 1868.—Minister Reynolds' statement that the difficulties between England and the United States in regard to the Alabama claims are ended, is regarded as too strong, and entirely unwarranted by the present aspect of the high authorities interested.

London, Nov. 10th, 1868.—Minister Reynolds' statement that the difficulties between England and the United States in regard to the Alabama claims are ended, is regarded as too strong, and entirely unwarranted by the present aspect of the high authorities interested.

London, Nov. 10th, 1868.—Minister Reynolds' statement that the difficulties between England and the United States in regard to the Alabama claims are ended, is regarded as too strong, and entirely unwarranted by the present aspect of the high authorities interested.

London, Nov. 10th, 1868.—Minister Reynolds' statement that the difficulties between England and the United States in regard to the Alabama claims are ended, is regarded as too strong, and entirely unwarranted by the present aspect of the high authorities interested.

London, Nov. 10th, 1868.—Minister Reynolds' statement that the difficulties between England and the United States in regard to the Alabama claims are ended, is regarded as too strong, and entirely unwarranted by the present aspect of the high authorities interested.

London, Nov. 10th, 1868.—Minister Reynolds' statement that the difficulties between England and the United States in regard to the Alabama claims are ended, is regarded as too strong, and entirely unwarranted by the present aspect of the high authorities interested.

London, Nov. 10th, 1868.—Minister Reynolds' statement that the difficulties between England and the United States in regard to the Alabama claims are ended, is regarded as too strong, and entirely unwarranted by the present aspect of the high authorities interested.

London, Nov. 10th, 1868.—Minister Reynolds' statement that the difficulties between England and the United States in regard to the Alabama claims are ended, is regarded as too strong, and entirely unwarranted by the present aspect of the high authorities interested.

London, Nov. 10th, 1868.—Minister Reynolds' statement that the difficulties between England and the United States in regard to the Alabama claims are ended, is regarded as too strong, and entirely unwarranted by the present aspect of the high authorities interested.

London, Nov. 10th, 1868.—Minister Reynolds' statement that the difficulties between England and the United States in regard to the Alabama claims are ended, is regarded as too strong, and entirely unwarranted by the present aspect of the high authorities interested.

London, Nov. 10th, 1868.—Minister Reynolds' statement that the difficulties between England and the United States in regard to the Alabama claims are ended, is regarded as too strong, and entirely unwarranted by the present aspect of the high authorities interested.

London, Nov. 10th, 1868.—Minister Reynolds' statement that the difficulties between England and the United States in regard to the Alabama claims are ended, is regarded as too strong, and entirely unwarranted by the present aspect of the high authorities interested.

London, Nov. 10th, 1868.—Minister Reynolds' statement that the difficulties between England and the United States in regard to the Alabama claims are ended, is regarded as too strong, and entirely unwarranted by the present aspect of the high authorities interested.

London, Nov. 10th, 1868.—Minister Reynolds' statement that the difficulties between England and the United States in regard to the Alabama claims are ended, is regarded as too strong, and entirely unwarranted by the present aspect of the high authorities interested.

London, Nov. 10th, 1868.—Minister Reynolds' statement that the difficulties between England and the United States in regard to the Alabama claims are ended, is regarded as too strong, and entirely unwarranted by the present aspect of the high authorities interested.

services similar to those which Don Giovanni exacted from Leporello. His lack of geographical knowledge, his ignorance of the most useful tools, his ignorance of the most useful tools, his ignorance of the most useful tools.

London, Nov. 10th, 1868.—Minister Reynolds' statement that the difficulties between England and the United States in regard to the Alabama claims are ended, is regarded as too strong, and entirely unwarranted by the present aspect of the high authorities interested.

London, Nov. 10th, 1868.—Minister Reynolds' statement that the difficulties between England and the United States in regard to the Alabama claims are ended, is regarded as too strong, and entirely unwarranted by the present aspect of the high authorities interested.

London, Nov. 10th, 1868.—Minister Reynolds' statement that the difficulties between England and the United States in regard to the Alabama claims are ended, is regarded as too strong, and entirely unwarranted by the present aspect of the high authorities interested.

London, Nov. 10th, 1868.—Minister Reynolds' statement that the difficulties between England and the United States in regard to the Alabama claims are ended, is regarded as too strong, and entirely unwarranted by the present aspect of the high authorities interested.

London, Nov. 10th, 1868.—Minister Reynolds' statement that the difficulties between England and the United States in regard to the Alabama claims are ended, is regarded as too strong, and entirely unwarranted by the present aspect of the high authorities interested.

London, Nov. 10th, 1868.—Minister Reynolds' statement that the difficulties between England and the United States in regard to the Alabama claims are ended, is regarded as too strong, and entirely unwarranted by the present aspect of the high authorities interested.

London, Nov. 10th, 1868.—Minister Reynolds' statement that the difficulties between England and the United States in regard to the Alabama claims are ended, is regarded as too strong, and entirely unwarranted by the present aspect of the high authorities interested.

London, Nov. 10th, 1868.—Minister Reynolds' statement that the difficulties between England and the United States in regard to the Alabama claims are ended, is regarded as too strong, and entirely unwarranted by the present aspect of the high authorities interested.

London, Nov. 10th, 1868.—Minister Reynolds' statement that the difficulties between England and the United States in regard to the Alabama claims are ended, is regarded as too strong, and entirely unwarranted by the present aspect of the high authorities interested.

London, Nov. 10th, 1868.—Minister Reynolds' statement that the difficulties between England and the United States in regard to the Alabama claims are ended, is regarded as too strong, and entirely unwarranted by the present aspect of the high authorities interested.

London, Nov. 10th, 1868.—Minister Reynolds' statement that the difficulties between England and the United States in regard to the Alabama claims are ended, is regarded as too strong, and entirely unwarranted by the present aspect of the high authorities interested.

London, Nov. 10th, 1868.—Minister Reynolds' statement that the difficulties between England and the United States in regard to the Alabama claims are ended, is regarded as too strong, and entirely unwarranted by the present aspect of the high authorities interested.

London, Nov. 10th, 1868.—Minister Reynolds' statement that the difficulties between England and the United States in regard to the Alabama claims are ended, is regarded as too strong, and entirely unwarranted by the present aspect of the high authorities interested.

London, Nov. 10th, 1868.—Minister Reynolds' statement that the difficulties between England and the United States in regard to the Alabama claims are ended, is regarded as too strong, and entirely unwarranted by the present aspect of the high authorities interested.

London, Nov. 10th, 1868.—Minister Reynolds' statement that the difficulties between England and the United States in regard to the Alabama claims are ended, is regarded as too strong, and entirely unwarranted by the present aspect of the high authorities interested.

London, Nov. 10th, 1868.—Minister Reynolds' statement that the difficulties between England and the United States in regard to the Alabama claims are ended, is regarded as too strong, and entirely unwarranted by the present aspect of the high authorities interested.

FACTS AND FANCIES.

Long Ago.

As through the poplar's gusty arms
The March wind sweeps and alges,
I sit beneath the hollow tree,
And dream familiar things,
Old memories wake, faint echoes rattle
A murmur of dead Spring.

Ab, days when life had aim and meaning,
What buried years ago!
When friend—no shadow interloping—
Was friend, and foe was foe,
When life and love and love had truth,
And heart had faith to show.

Somewhere now woods are green and tender;
Somewhere now woods are green and tender;
With buds; somewhere, in wide broadcast here,
The thrush begins to build;
Somewhere no fears has Spring, no tears
For hopes that March has killed.

Sing, thrush, your songs of praise and passion;
Will aid the budding wood,
With music of that bygone fashion.
My youth so understood!
Now I am old, the world's grown cold,
—Chambers Journal.

—That Lincoln goes to school at Wiesbaden.
—Gonnon is said to be working too hard.
—Brigham Young is said to be the third largest depositor in the Bank of England.
—Good news from the Arctic regions—Hall's well—Judy.

—An exchange informs us that the seven prettiest girls in New York city are engaged.
—Motto for the Democratic press: Do Seymour's mischief home.

—Mr. Felis is arranging for the publication of the first volume of a "General History of the People." The Pope has thirteen vessels in his navy, none of them large.

—The penalty of a western election bet was eating a cock's tail.
—Oliver Drake, who sunk the first oil well on Texas soil, is in Texas, in extreme destitution.
—There is a band of robbers in northeastern Texas who admit no recruit until he shall have killed a man in the presence of witnesses.

—A man in Wiesbaden, Prussia, who had been formally tried by an Indian jury and is to be hanged this week.
—A storm at sea, with rolling waters—the whole weighing two tons—is advertised for sale in England.

—A Mississippi editor said of his local candidate before election, "He is as fine a fellow as I lifted a foot to a lady or a boot to a blackguard."
—A Treasury Department clerk has made a collection of 100 persons; it is added, "for his personal gratification."
—The Welsh title of the Queen's Highland book is "Dulcan's Dydiddir Bydd yr yr Ucheldydd."

—Brock Tomory's life is to be published. "The most interesting works in it will be those: 'The End.'" —In the lunatic asylum in Massachusetts, Grant had 14 votes, and Seymour 13. There were evidently several cases of insanity.

—A large body of exiles from Poland are kept in Paris, and whenever a member of the Polish colony in that city, a handful of this earth is thrown into his coffin.
—Janaschek has written a note to Booth, in English, that he would like to see the patient with their joint performance, and complimenting his acting.

—Ex-President Franklin Pierce was carried to the water in a carriage. He showed his weakness by remarking that Seymour and Blair ballot was a strong ticket.

—Mahogany is so abundant in Nevada as to be used for fuel. A contract has been entered into to supply several thousand cords of it at three dollars and a half a cord.
—One of the wealthiest citizens of Providence, Rhode Island, died last week, and is understood to have bequeathed nearly his entire fortune—about $1,000,000—to a female clergyman-physician at whose residence he died.

—Frank Blair takes his defeat philosophically. In Chicago some of his Republican friends casually mentioned "Salt River," to which Frank Blair had written a note, but he was not large enough, he was "going to Salt Lake."
—Gen. Sheridan tells some tall buffalo stories. He says that he saw, two weeks ago, a herd of antelope ninety-five miles long, twenty-five miles wide, which must have contained three hundred thousand buffaloes.

—A Jewish convert asserts, in the London Star, that 150 clergyman of the Church of England are in the city of London, and that in the city of London there are between 2,000 and 3,000 converts from Judaism.

—A boarding-house keeper in Springfield, Mass., is said to be in the habit, when her boarders are absent, of paying procreancy to her extra fork by her plate, as a silent intimation to "fork over."
—A Providence (R. I.) hod-carrier exultantly announced, "Three cheers for General Seymour!" "General Seymour!" exclaimed the hod-carrier at the top of the ladder, "and pray what was he general of?" "Sore," says Patrick, "and did he command at the great riot in New York?"
—General Howard tells a good story of a planter, who assembled all his hands in the spring, and told them they must vote for the Democrats, or else he would employ them. The farmers waited until the cotton crop was whitening, and then called on him and told him he must give his word to vote the radical ticket or they would leave in a body.