PEW WANTED .- Sec advertisement of a Pew wanted in the Church of the Holy Trinity.

-"Years ago," says a musical critic in a recent publication, "a young man began to write music in Paris,—music of a type nobody was acquainted with, and very few liked. Indeed, the only perwith, and very few fixed. Indeed, the only person who professed any liking at all for the work of the new man was a lady. She was a good musician, though, and her name was Pauline Viardot-Garcia. The young man was called Charles Gound. The composer of Faust? Yes, tair reader; but he wrote ever so many operas lair feader: but he wrote ever so many operas before that one. Ever so many. And they were all failures,—all. "Montes parturunt," remarked the young man's friends. Still Viardot encouraged him, and still got him a theatre to produce his work. At last came "Faust." A tremendous success? No. it was not a success. On the content which the first suspen were dismediately. trary, Faust, in its first season, was a dismal failure. The manager of the theatre, however, belicved in the work, and reopened his house with it. This time it went, and everybody found out, all by themselves, that the mole hill had produced a lyrical elephant.

-The Springfield (Ohio) Republican says: A gentleman in this city has a friend at Northville, Wayne county, Mich, who writes the monstrous news that a newly-born child there has two snake heads growing from the top of the trunk of the body. One is that of an anaconda and the other that of a black snake. They have to be kept separate, for on sight of each other they com-mence fighting. To feed them it is necessary to lay the child on its back, and let them lick milk from a plate. The parents have been offered $5 000 for this child-reptile, but refuse to accept the offer. We would suggest that anybody who believes the yarn would be as great a 'curiosity as the baby itself; but we give it for what it is

-Mrs. Audubon, widow of the naturalist, writes —Mrs. Addition, whow of the naturane, writes that she knows nothing of the appeal made for assistance in her behalf; that she is boarding comfortably in New York city, and that her thirteen grand children are independent of her support.

THE SUBUOL OF EXPERIENCE.

Experience is the best schoolmas or. Its lessons are hyays coxylectes, and she celdom foresten, hence no man contibutes o much good to humanity, as he who faithfully and truthfully reports his own experience. Philosophy, theories and sophi-try are chear, hence abundant; proved also, oftentimes foolish. Some mon deal in high sounding words; others in clabora cly constructed phingen; some are imaginary, some inventive, some credulcus, some captions, some skeptical, some confiling; but all recognize truth, when discovered by experience Now all persons agree that what-vort is eaton as food is good or bad for the person who cats it. That is, so me articles of food agree with a man and others do not. One man will enjoy a dinner or boiled beef and cabbage, and feel well after it; another would suffer indigestion; onother would be thrown into cramp, and probably into a violent lever. One man may out puddings and pastry every day for dinner, and experience no inconvent nece whereas another would be laid up by them in less than a week. Why? Are we not all slike? Is not the inside of any one man like the inside of any other man? How is it then that "a quart of 'sour Krout' will cure a Durchman of the small pox and kill an Irishman," as a quack dector once wrote in his note book.

Men we e originally, and are still, essentially, similar in their erganic structure; but the hable of life have wrought great changes in functional power. The black sn.ith has strong arms: the podestrian has endurable legs; the musician has supple diagers, because by long training and constant use, they have become so. The book keeper has weak arm; the tailor weak kees, and the washerwoman and ploughman stiff fingers, because inac-tion has made them so. All this is equally true of the internal organs of man's body. Muscler, tendons, I gaments and nerves on the exterior are strengthened and intensified in action by proper use, and likewise muscles, tendons, ligaments and nerves on the interior are strength.

And, commonly, as the outside organism is enervated and emeciated by inaction and unnatural exposure, 88 also is the inside organism enervated and disorganized by improper treatment.

When the limbs are weak, proper exercise may restore them to strength. Systems of symmastics have been invented, whereby all the muscles may be brought into harmonious action, and thus uniformity of growth is produced, which increases the size and tone of the parts. Now, it is as possible, indeed quite as common, to weaken the muscles of the stomach and other digostive organ; to weaken the muscles of the heart and other circulator: organs by improper use, as to weaken the muscles of the arms, legs, and back by inattention to the laws of nature. Improper food, irregular meals, great distress of mind. long continued grief, exposure, over-work, over-eating, idleness, want of food, and a great variety of circumstances may mar, obstruct, or destroy some of the mul-tifarious organs of the body so as to render the per-formance of these functions impossible, and this is called

THIS BEING SO, WHAT IS TO BE DONE! Want of pro ism and averted its functions; want of proper exe and protection deranged the interior organism and destroyed their functions. The judicious application of remedial exercise restored the functions of the exterior organs; the judicious application of remedial exercis will restore the functions of the interior organs. If no t why not? Experience teaches us how to strengthen the outer organs, and we believe and are re-Bored. Experience also teaches how to strengthen the inner muscles. Why not believe and be healed? Exerise improves the muscular system because it gives it power to resist changes of temperature and versatility to accommodate itself to the vicissitudes that surround it. As long as the natural forces of the body, both external and internal, are able to resis whatever is antagonistic to the normal condition of the organs there can be no disease; and only when under exposure to malaria, to heat, to cold, to sudden change oc., overcome the health-preserving forces of the body. WHATEVER INCREASES THE HEALTH FORCE IN THE ORGAN OF THE HOLY, PREVENTS DISEASE. This is axiomatic, and needs no proof. Now, the certificates herewith appended prove, by the combined experience of persons differently circumstanced and widely separated, that the GREAT XINGARI BITTERS does increase the health rocke, therefore it MUST PREVENT DIREASE. Moreover, whatever is strong enough to repet attacks of disease, is also powerful to expel the enemy should he become lodged in the body. These certificates establish also this latter proposition. So that this medicine is not only defensively a protection agains but it is also offensively a remedy for all diseases arising from diminished vital nowers. Read the experience of others, and if you doubt the authenticity of these certifi cates, write to the persons whose names are attached to them, and if stRIP-Reptical, write to the postmaster, the judge of the court, or minister of the Gospel, and inquire he character of those who certify.

HARRISHURG, Pa., August 23, 1868.

I am not in the habit of recommending for general use articles which have proved of special service to me, but most reactly give my testimony to the merit of the Zinzart Bitters, prepared by Mr. F. Rahter. I have used it in my family with excellent results: it relieves incipient dyspepsia; is a fine appetizer, for the morning meal especially, and, unlike similar preparations, has a pleasant aromatic tlavor, free from fiery alcoholic taste.

Rev. R. J. KEELING.

The following is from Dr. Crouse, a physician whose reputation, as such, is truly cosmopolitan for he is known throughout the country as one-of the ablest members of the medical profession:

the medical profession:

WASHINGTON, D. C., September II, 1886.

BEAR RAHTER: I have the honor to reknowledge the receipt of a bottle of your celebrated BITTER; one week since. It affords me unbounde I pleasure to chronicle, for the benefit of men and women everywhere, its invaluable medical virtue. I have tried it in my practice in those obstinate forms of Bilious Intermittent Fever, and can attest, with unfeitened confidence and pleasure, its superior anti-periodic properties.

In Diarrhova, Dysentory and Enterio Fever, it is almost a specific. Hence, it is my highest duty, mingled with pleasure, to furnish afflicted mortality with its well-tried merits. merits.

As a superior Stomachic, it needs no ecomiums to prove its beneficial effects on that precarious organ-the its beneficial effects on that precatous visual testionach.

I acknowledged no one known agent or comvound to cure all eases of Dyspepsia, but this Bitters of yours I hold to be infallible, with rare exceptions.

Pardon me for the liberty of this unsolicited approval and testimony of my regard for your valuable discovery, looking to the speedy remedy of hitherto protracted sufferings.

THE MOST REMARKABLE CIRE KNOWN TO MEDICAL ECIENCE.

This may critify that about four years ago, I was attacked with what seemed a very obscure affliction. I felt not really sick, but continually suffered of a general uneactive, and peculiar pains in my legs. After suffering in this way for several months, sores commenced to break out, and soon, not less than 14 unhealthy ulcors were established and their scrofulus character fully slown. Levery one said (including several physicians), that this was the worst case of scrofula they ever saw, and my chances for accovery were regarded as very poor. I am sure nothing I weed did me any good. I spendid the money I could raise with doctors and of patent medicines, buwas not in the least ben fited. I was about a very ago induced to use the Zingari Bit. Term, and was con Petely curt do y less than four botles. Anyons who may be incredulous, can see me at the Iron City Hotel, corner Walmut and R. R. streets, Herriaburg, and see the sears for themselves. I do not believe that a more wonderful cure of this monstrous lisease was over effected by any medicine, and I conlidently believe that a limest every case of this complaint will yield to this extraordinary preparation. My general health is now excellent, and my specific regularly good. I must have died but for your Zingari Biffers.

I, George Thomas, do swear that the above is true and correct in every particular. Swormand subscribed before me,
