The Bombardment of Cadiz—Revolt of the Workmen in Madrid.

London, Dec. 11, 1868.—No news has yet been received of the bombardment of Cadiz, teleraphic communication being interrupted with orrespondence of the Philadelphia Evening Bulletin)
PARIS, Friday, Nov. 27, 1868.—I went the other A despatch from Madrid dated Thursday, December 10, says: A large number of workmen employed by the municipality on public works yesterday armed themselves with carbines and yesterday armed to sticks and assumed a A despatch from Madrid dated Thursday, Deday to hear the farewell address of M. de Lesseps to his friends and fellow-shareholders in the Suez Canal, previous to his departure for Egypt, with bayonets fastened to sticks and assumed a breatening attitude, which they still maintain. The national militia were ordered to proceed whence he is not expected to return before the completion of the enterprise. The "completion of the enterprise"!-yes, we have now really got to that phase of the vast undertaking, and may be said to be fairly in sight of port. M. de Lesseps assured Tha Madrid correspondent of the New York Times writes as follows: us that after making the very largest allowance for all future expenses to be incurred, the Association had now ample funds in hand for the got up to overawe the Republicans, came off on ance for all future expenses to be incurred, the Association had now ample funds in hand for the complete termination of all the work. Not the least interesting portion of his remarks was that in which, globe in hand, he demonstrated the future prospects of the Canal as to traffic, and showed the masses of population, East and West, which it was destined to bring into direct communication with each other. He estimated the total expense of the canal when completed to be 400 million of francs. The estimated revenue, taken at the very lowest figure and at the rate of ten francs per ton on the shipping passing through the cana', was six millions per annum. "And I prophesy," said M. de Lesseps, "that in ten years after its completion, the completion, the completed to the construction will be constructed by the construction of th annum. "And I prophesy," said M. de Lesseps, "that in ten years after its completion, the average we have now taken of only six millions of income will be regarded as perfectly ridiculous." Amongst other things, M. de Lesseps confirmed the details which I think I have previously taid before you, respecting the time and mode of passing through the canal.

The average time will be about sixteen hours.

The default of the city, sent round his agent to tear down the bills. The bill-sticker was arrested, and through him the owner of the office where they had been printed. Liberty of worship.

While the troops were forming on the Prado a popular manifestation was being proceeded with in favor of liberty of worship. A large number put a pertinent question to M. de Lesseps as to the security of the embankments where the Canal passes through pure sand, and the damage likely to be caused by the motion of the steam power of vessels of large size. He explained that where the Canal passes through pure sand, and the damage likely to be caused by the motion of the steam power of vessels of large size.
