

CITY BULLETIN.

GRAND JURY RE-ARRANGEMENT.—The Grand Jury of the United States District Court made a final presentment yesterday, from which the following extracts were made. They say: That in the course of their investigations they have been painfully impressed by the gigantic and wicked frauds which have been for some time practiced upon the Government by the owners of whisky distilleries and others in the Eastern District of the State, and the base and dishonest means resorted to to defraud the Government of the legal tax imposed by Congress. That the names of the men holding positions that would naturally screen them from a suspicion in the minds of their fellow men that they by any temptation lead themselves to no trifling and dishonest traffic, are worthless guilty and subject to indictment. That the parties in petty cases heard before them on charges of distilling spirits without license, and the manner in which they have been treated in their trial for secretly conveying it away in the darkness of midnight to stores, warehouses, and places other than the law designates, but embody a corporal's guard of soldiers to the formidable array that has behind them. That the evil is deeper and wider than the cases above stated would seem to indicate, and exists among men in official stations, who have heretofore escaped suspicion, and who on the ground of their positions, and their connection with the Government, whose interest they are morally and legally bound to protect. That they are persuaded that regular systematic connivance exists between certain parties, including government agents, detectives and others, in the fraudulent manufacture and sale of spirits, and that the same parties are engaged in the same trade, and distributing among the people a poisonous distillation, as destructive to health as it is demoralizing and degrading to those who indulge in it. That they believe from the investigations they have made that the greatest evil the law has had to contend with has been in the facility with which cases have been settled at Washington. For two years or more a notorious case of great magnitude was likely to undergo a judicial investigation, the friends of the party or parties implicated would repair to Washington, where they have been too often successful in having proceedings instituted and accomplished effect. Such a system carries with it its own condemnation and shuts out all cases of magnitude, leaving the smaller cases only to be adjusted by the Court. The presentment closes with notices of the Marshal's former operations among the illicit distillers of the old Richmond district.

THE HOME MISSIONARY SOCIETY.—This old benevolent institution of the city is about commencing the active operations of the season, and will hold its annual meeting on Monday evening, the 14th inst. The President, George H. Stuart, Esq., will preside, and the exercises will be of an interesting character. They will be as follows: Singing of the hymn, "Thy way, not mine, O Lord," followed by the reading of the report of the year. Mr. Stuart will then make an appropriate address, after which the psalm, "Praise God," will be sung. The annual report will then be read by the secretary, Mr. Goodrich. The report will show that during the year the managers have operated with success among the poor of the city, relieving the immediate wants of the sick and destitute, by giving them coal, groceries, and medical aid where the cases demanded it. The report also will show the pleasing fact that there have been a large number of children of destitute families provided with homes in the city and country, and that they are now being taught useful trades, and their temporal and spiritual wants provided for by those under whose charge they have been placed. The Managers will then report on annual visitations among the children to look into their condition and watch the progress they are making in their new homes. The Treasurer's report will also be read, showing that the funds of the society have been kept up through the liberality of a benevolent public, backed by the efforts of the collecting agent, Mr. Toland, who is now as heretofore making his visitations among the subscribers. At the close of the report an address will be made by Rev. Jas. Neill, after which the hymn "Help us, O Lord, thy voice to bear," will be sung by the audience. An address will then be made by Rev. A. Willis, after which the doxology will be sung to the tune of "Old Hundred," and the audience dismissed with the benediction. From the interesting programme thus presented, the audience will be able to see the contributions to the Society of the most liberal character.

CORNER STONE LAYING IN WEST PHILADELPHIA.—On Thursday last, 10th inst., the Thirty-eighth Street M. E. Church, of which Rev. H. A. Cleveland is pastor, laid the corner stone of its new chapel, on the corner of Thirty-eighth and Hamilton streets. Appropriate and impressive addresses were delivered by Rev. A. J. Kynett, D. D., Rev. W. J. Stevenson and Rev. M. Simpson, D. D., Bishop of the M. E. Church. The free will offerings of the people amounted to a little more than $16,000. The site is elevated, roomy, central and commanding; no finer could have been selected. The edifice is to be built of Trenton stone, and in the Gothic style of architecture. It will be two stories high, with Sabbath school, vestry and lecture rooms, and a study for the pastor. The audience room, 40 by 80 feet, exclusive of recess for pulpit, organ and choir, to be occupied by the entire area of the second floor. The entrance porch, with boldly moulded and recessed doorway, and the five light tracery windows, and a balcony over it, will constitute the principal feature of the front. The plainness of the walls will be broken by double recessed jambs to windows, and by projecting buttresses. The main audience room will be finished with what is usually termed an ornate roof, formed with arched principal rafters, moulded on the face, with a rich cornice of wood, at the intersection of walls and roof. The spaces between principal rafters and purlins are to be plastered and tinted. The pews and skirtings are to be of black walnut, and the walls floated and tinted of a warm-rose tint, harmonizing with the oak staining of the open roof. The effect of the roof combined with the rich tints of the stained glass, and the dark tone of the walnut fittings, will be most pleasing, and will constitute an effective and church-like interior. The edifice is designed and its erection superintended by Messrs. Frazer, Farner & Hewitt, of this city; John McClure, Esq., builder. It will cost, when completed, about $40,000.

ANNIVERSARY OF A SOUP SOCIETY.—The annual meeting of the Kensington Soup Society took place on Thursday evening, at their hall, Allen street, near Market street. The Secretary, Charles M. Lukens, reported a distribution, during the past season, of over 1,000 gallons of soup and 1,350 loaves of bread weekly to about 350 families. The Treasurer, George Hamilton, reported the receipts of the season as $2,132 04, and the disbursements at $2,154. The Managers receive by the rental of the soup-house property the sum of $250. The meeting then elected the following gentlemen a Board of Managers: George Stockham, E. W. Gorham, A. H. McFadden, Charles M. Lukens, Thomas D. Bates, Joseph Lippencott, Albert E. Yarnall, D. Dickerson, J. W. Vaughan, George W. Sites, Ell Garrison, Jos. S. Allen, Hon. Jno. Robbins, Henry Kessler, Andrew Zane, Samuel McCutcheon, Jacob Jones, Wm. W. Taxis, David Duncan, Robert M. Colburn, James S. Barnard, Andrew Zane, Jr., Dr. J. G. Young. The Board then went into an election for officers to serve during the ensuing year, resulting in the choice of George Stockham for President, Ell Garrison Vice-President, George Hamilton Treasurer, and Charles M. Lukens Secretary. An election was also held for Collector, resulting in the choice of Daniel Micks. This Society, during the season of its active operations, extends to the worthy poor of the old district of Kensington daily relief, and has thus been the means of relieving a large number who otherwise would have suffered. The managers desire that contributions should be made towards the treasury, that they may be provided with the means of relieving the wants of the deserving poor of the district during the coming severe weather.

LABOR TEMPERANCE MEETING.—The friends of temperance assembled in large numbers last evening at Rev. Dr. Shephard's church, Hiram Ward presided. Dr. Shephard made a powerful address, showing conclusively that the use of intoxicating drinks was injurious on all times. Hiram Ward, in a short and appropriate address, urged the importance of circulating the pledge, and of renewed efforts in the cause of total abstinence. Thomas M. Coleman made an address and argued that the only hope for a speedy triumph of temperance principles rested with the children and youth of the country; that they must be taught at home and in school to abhor the use of anything that would intoxicate, and large number signed the pledge. The meeting was also addressed by Mr. Lincoln, one of the most active members of the society at this church.

ANOTHER CHURCH ON BROAD AND ARCH STREETS.—St. Andrew's English Lutheran Church, having obtained the deed for the lot S. W. corner of Broad and Arch streets, have adopted a design for the church. The estimates are now being made, and all the necessary preparations completed, for beginning the edifice with the laying of the corner stone. The church building will be in the Gothic style, built of marble. Dr. Stork, the pastor of the new church, has been eminently successful in gathering quite a congregation to enter the new edifice when completed.

CHANGE OF ECCLESIASTICAL RELATIONS.—The Rev. Wm. Fulton (Pastor of the Reformed Church, Many years for about thirteen years past), has been received by the Third Presbytery of Philadelphia, and accepted a call from the (O. S.) Presbyterian Church at Catonsville, Lehigh county, Pa. Arrangements have been made for his installation Thursday evening next, 17th inst.

THE OLD FRANKLIN ALMANAC FOR 1869 contains the names of the Governors of all the States and Territories of the Union, length of their terms, salaries, time of the assembling of all the State Legislatures, and dates of all State elections. A. W. Publisher, 505 Chestnut street.

Those who wish to effect an insurance upon their lives will find the Penn Mutual Life Insurance Company, office No. 521 Chestnut st., whose advertisement will be found in another column, to offer rare advantages. Those insuring in December will participate in the January return premium dividend, and the Penn Mutual is one of the oldest and most substantial companies in this city.

A GREAT IMPROVEMENT.—On the last page of to-day's BULLETIN will be found the advertisement and out of a wonderful improvement made in the furniture line, by H. F. Howe, No. 529 South Second street. It is called a sofa-bed, and is as well as ornamental, and is an article which no well-conducted household should be without. It is simple in its structure, requiring but ten seconds to transfer it from a sofa to a comfortable bed or vice versa. Its special claim is that it is so soft as to be as comfortable as a bed, and as springy as a mattress. Underneath the mattress is a recess, suitable for placing wearing apparel of every description. It is now being introduced on all our principal railroad and steamboat lines. It can be made in any size, and at any price. The public would do well to call on Mr. H. F. Howe and examine the working of it, and without doubt they will be repaid for their trouble.

Rev. Dr. March will preach a sermon especially to young men, to-morrow evening, at the Clinton Street Presbyterian Church, corner of Tenth and Clinton streets. The subject will be "The young men." This will be the seventh of a course of sermons under the auspices of the Young Men's Christian Association.

DRAMATIC AND MUSICAL.

—The performance of Lucresia Borgia at the Academy of Music last night was, in many respects, the most satisfactory that has been given during the present season. The opera itself is one of the best in Mr. Maretzka's repertoire. It is strongly marked with all the characteristics of the composer. The melodies are profuse, and exceedingly graceful and beautiful; the orchestration is most superb. The music of Lucresia is as fresh and spirited and striking to-day as it was when first written. It captivates the popular ear with its flowing rhythm, while it pleases the artist with its elevated sentiment and the ingenuity of its construction.

Madame La Grange personated "Lucresia" last evening in a manner that deserves warm commendation. Her voice has but the shadow of its former power; it has lost the splendid beauty which, in former times, used to enthrall and enchant her listeners. Her singing is merely art, unassisted by nature. But even now her execution is most superb. She sings with an ease and grace and fluency, which are peculiar to her, and to which few artists of more recent fame have attained. Her powers were displayed to fullest advantage last evening in the famous duo passage in the third scene of the prologue. This is extremely difficult, and, usually, it is omitted. Madame La Grange bravely attempted it, and it is but fair to say that she executed it superbly, although the audience, apparently oblivious to the greatness of the performance, and the courage required to undertake it, failed to reward the singer with an encore.

But whatever fault may be found with the vocalization of La Grange, certainly there can be none but words of praise bestowed upon her acting. We believe her to be the greatest actress upon the lyric stage. She has much of Bismarck's force and intensity, and she contrives to give vivid meaning to all the varying passion of the part, whether it be tragedy or comedy, whether it presents strong contrasts or a single hue. The character of "Lucresia" affords an opportunity for the highest form of histrionic display, and Madame La Grange made the most of it. In this respect, at least, her effort was worthy of her reputation, and she calls before the curtain the close of every act, were such recognitions of her excellence as she was entitled to. Sig. Brignoli did not sing as well as usual, and Sig. Antonelli seemed to have only partial control of his fine voice, but despite this unfortunate, his performance was very satisfactory.

Signor Brignoli's Grand March created some enthusiasm, and his author was crowned and crushed with flowers. The march is a very excellent composition, eminently suitable for a grand army, but from its fortissimo effects better calculated to furnish enjoyment to the rear guard, than to the van. This very successful opera season will close to-night with Von Weber's famous Der Freyschütz. The house can hardly be more crowded than it was last evening, but the audience will certainly be as large. The Germans will, of course, be present in numbers, for this opera is unavoiably a favorite with them. More than any other it is German in sentiment and feeling, in the character of its personages, and in its magnificent music. The amatory passages are demonstrative after the German fashion, and the passion of the hero is ardent enough to satisfy the requirements of the most enthusiastic believer in the superiority of lovers in the Fatherland. The diabolism is German in conception and execution, and the shooting match belongs to the same nationality. Twenty years ago, the whole Teutonic race went mad over this opera, and it still retains its hold upon their tastes and affections. Its intrinsic merit is so great, however, that it may have had more than equal fascinations for Americans, and with La Grange, Brignoli and other good artists in the cast, it is very certain that the Germans will not entirely monopolize the Academy to-night.

One Ball will give two concerts on the afternoon and evening of Saturday, the 19th inst. —A most excellent performance will be given this evening at the Theatre Comique, Seventh st., below Arch.

The first concert of the Mendelssohn Society, this season, will be given at Musical Fund Hall, on Thursday evening next, under the direction of Mr. Jean Louis. The programme is very attractive, and the performers are of the best class. —Mrs. D. B. Bowers will appear at the Walnut this evening, in Jane Shore and Madeline. On Monday Charles Reade's drama, Mad Guyenne. —The Chestnut Street Circus Company announce a performance for this evening which will eclipse all that have preceded it.

—Wolfe continue to be at Day at the Arch Street Theatre. When they are finally and happily abolished, Mrs. Drew will electrify the public with her recitation, A Flash of Lightning. This piece will be placed on the stage very handsomely, one of the effects being three hundred feet of Hudson river panorama. The cause of all the agony in the play is the insane conduct of each of lightning in wandering into a room, mounting to the mantel-piece, fusing a lot of jewelry, and depositing it in the coal-scuttle. An original, if not a reasonable idea.

—A miscellaneous entertainment will be given at the American Theatre this evening.

—On Tuesday night next a grand concert will be given at Concert Hall, in which the following artists will appear: Mr. Carl Wolfsohn, Mrs. Mozart, Mrs. Schimpf, Miss Cunningham, Messrs. Jean Louis, George T. Bishop and Hugh A. Clarke. The Conservatory of Music, S. E. corner of Tenth and Walnut streets, will begin its regular winter quarter on Monday, January 11, 1869, —inaugurating the third year—it having been opened for instruction of pupils in 1867. The conservatory has a preparatory department, a ginnets, and an academic department for those more advanced. The graduating classes will receive diplomas at the end of the prescribed course. New pupils should enter the school at an early day during the present month. See advertisement in another column.
