If this, the Reformation, was the only attraction, it would be sufficient, but we are promised also Schubert's Unfinished Symphony, than which there is hardly anything more graceful, more winsome, more fascinating in the whole realm of orchestral compositions. Then to this, as a coda, comes the wonderfully grand overture to Rienzi, by Wagner, the great musical iconoclast and innovator. With brass, and reed, and string, running up to the fitties in the orchestra, a grand effect will be produced with this overture, one of the best of its kind ever written. Wm. Stoll, Jr., had a benutiful concerto, by Rode, for violin solo, with orchestral accompaniment, and last, though not least in attractive power, is announced the début in our city of the youthful phenomenon, who has set New York critics and dilettanti wild with excitement.

The Handel and Haydn Society had a fine house at the Academy last evening, to hear the performance of "Elijah." The chorus has been judiciously weeded out since last winter, and presented last evening 180 effective voices, exhibiting every indication of thorough and careful training under their new leader, Mr. Engelke. The choruses were admirably sung, and the Society is evidently none the worse for the loss of a little of its "dead wood."

The solos were sustained by Mrs. Mozart, soprano, now an established favorite with our eratorio-goers, Mrs. Helen Jarvis Davis, contraito, Mr. Jacob Graf, tenor, and Dr. Guilmette, bass. Mrs. Davis and Mr. Graf are, as yet, new to the business of oratorio solo singing, but both ROCKHILL & WILSON 603 and 605 Chestnut Street.

We believe that the will of the majority should.

We believe that the will of the majority should with rule; we believe that in this we have discovered a pronacea for the ills that have from the earliest human family, but we were no exception to the Chicago, Dec. 15.—The city is alive with soldiers to day, and what is peculiar, all of steam of the armies to second ileutenants—men bearing names that have become historic, and which will be handed down to future generations as inseparably connected with the lie of the Republic. The hotels where are located the headquarters of the different armies are alive with excitement and enthusiasm. The meeting of the Army of the Ohio was held at the Briggs House, at nine o'clock this morning, General J. D. Cox in the chair, who stated that had been proposed to meet and hear the report of the Committee on Permanent Organigeneral rule that minorities will not always bow Leeplance. chy should not rule the land, but that liberty, justice and law should be restored to their right-ini throne. [Cheers.]

He has kept his word, and you now behold the good ship of State again full rigged, and once more on her free course toward a glorious future. You know that the flag is still there. Not a star has been lost, not a stripe dimmed. That same flag we have followed so often in the glare of the scorching ann by the moon's nale beams, by the distinguishing handles to it and hang them get a name that suits them, and then hitch distinguishing handles to it and hang them them on all the villages round about. It At noon the Army of Onlo met in Caledona Hall, General Cox in the chair. The nominations for officers, above given, were unanimouslyconfirmed. General Schofield then took the chair, and Grant, Lieutenaut-General Sherman, Mejor-General Thomas, and all the staff officers, connected with them, were then made honorary members. The Constitution and By Laws were then adopted and the Society adjourned.

An adjourned meeting of officers was held at
