EUROPEAN AFFAIRS LETTER PROR PARIS. [Correspondence of the Phile Evening Bulletin] Panis, Friday, Dec. 4, 1868 .- The frais of the ill-judged policy of the Government continue to manifest themselves in the irritation which is still kept up in the public mind, and which eagerly seeks every opportunity for a demonstration-Yesterday, being the 8d of December, the day of Bandry's death on the barricades, and the anniversary of the struggle which succeeded the coup d'état of the previous day—there were rumors of an intention to make a popular demonstration at the tomb of Bandry, in the Cometery of Montmarine. Accordingly I adjourned to that populous neighborhood in the afternoon. about two or three o'clock, to see what was golog on; and there I found on the Bonleward de Clichy, and near the old barrier of the same name oulte a large assemblage of people, chiefly of the working-classes, and mostly dressed in their blouses. The crowd was considerable enough to interrupt the circulation, and to recall to one's mind those scenes of twenty years ago, when the emente religiod almosters permanence in the streets of Paris. Terrible times, which no one who has once soon ever wishes to see again. There is something quite different in the aspect of such an assemblage in France. from what would be the case in America or in England, as there is asspredly also something quite different in the semisment which animates them. In Americal's would be a demonstration of public "opinion," and nothing more. But here, it is a demonstration of public "kontility." and an act of defiance against an authority which is hated by a portion of the citizens, and which they would fain shake off. You had but to look at the countenances and gestures of the people assembled yesterday at Montmartie, to see these feelings written on their faces. There was none of the mere rough "lun" of an electioneering mob, nor of the shouts and roars of laughter one hears rounds stomp orator, but a scowling aspect which told plainly what they would do if they only dared or had the streng! The authorities, however, were, as usual wide swake. A formidable body of police patrolled the district in strong bands, and it was well known that the soldiers in the so joining barracks were consignée and ready for action in overpowering numbers at a moment's warning. Care, too had been taken that the crowd should not penetrate into the adjacent cornetery or assemble round Baudin's tomb. All funerals were required to be over by 11 o'clock, and after that bour the gates of the burisl-ground were shut, and no one allowed to enter. Some half-dozen r so individuals who had been Oreband, and had got into the cemetery previous to these preparations, with the intention of Taying wreaths of immortalies on the tomb of Bandin, and who persevered in doing so, after being wanted to desist by the police, had been I was told, arrested. But I saw nothing beyond the fact of the assemblage of a large and threatening crowd and evidence of the Government being on the alert. But it is quite bad enough to see these evidences of the state of public feeling, and to think that they have been so foolishly stirred up and elicited. And the provocation still goes on. At Marseilles, the proprietors of the Peuple have been fined and imprisoned for publishing the subscription libra; and the same thing has taken place at Toulouse. At another place, Auch, the Avenur appeared on the second of December with a black border round it, in token of the anniversary of the coup detat. The paper was seized and confiscated both at the office and the post, and will no doubt be prosecuted for manuar vres." The judgment of acquittal pronounced in favor of the Independant du Centre, which I mentioned in my last letter, has been quashed on appeal; and it was said that the presiding judge of the court which pronounced the acquittal had been "summoned" to Paris by the Minister of the Interior, though I see the assertion is contradicted by the Moniteur. But "summoned" or not, that President will remain a marked man. and will find his future magisterial advancement uncommonly slow! And, now, here again, is another demonstration looming up. Subscriptions for a monument to M. Berryer, who approved of and subscribed to the monument for Baudin, are being opened in the press. Will this be construed as a continuation of the "manœuvres," and to lead to new prosecutions? No doubt a political signification will be given to the Berryer subscription, and it will be joined by all parties hostile to the government. The Parls Bar, which is by no means friendly to the government, has decided, by vote of its Council, to attend the funeral of M. Berryer en masse, and has invited the other 27 Imperial Courts to send deputations. An opposition Bishop, Mugr. Dupanloup, of Orleans, is to celebrate the service, and the whole party, lawyers, Bishop and all, may be open to prosecu far from being settled, and that the two Cabineta are neither agreed upon the powers to be atiributed to the wixed commission which is to sliat Washington, nor upon the person to be chosen as arbitrator. The Memorial Diplomatique says that Mr. Sevard will not consent that the decisions of the Commission should be absolutely final; that is, I presume, without the ratification of the respective governments. And also, the same journal asserts that while the United States wishes to name the Emperor of Russia, England proposes the King of Prussia. It asserts, in short, that the "arrangements made in London have not been ratified at Washington." This news is "nuts" for the French imperial press, which has shown both apprehension and displeasure at the good understanding growing up between Great Britain and the United States. It is also assorted here that a Tory move is at the bottom of all this misunderstanding, and that Mr. Disruell's Cablust, finding it must go out, is not indisposed to leave 'American difficulties' to embarrans its successsors. This latter view seems highly probable. Thesame journal above mentioned, the Memorial Diplomatique, which is always very "royal" in its utterances, has found out a funnyreason why tion for "manœuvres" sgainst the government! The Memorial Diplomatique asserts that the differences between England and America are yet

SPECIAL NOTICES.

"The enemies of the Queen,"it says, "would secuse her of amusing herself and being insensible to the disasters of her country." This is really too good, and quite a discovery! Why, Queen Isobella "smuses" horself all day long, and all night too, and is to be seen in every publle drive and theatre of Paris, being in this respect, opparently, quite indifferent to the "disosters of her country," which mean, I presume her own; for I am not aware that the Spanish people have as yet began to regret her loss, not withsteading the difficulty they seem to experience in Anding a successor. But there is no doubl that the reason why Queen Isabella does not go to Com-plegne is simply that she has not been invited; and that she considers herself in consequence to have been very sempily treated in her mistor-turies by her "friends." There is "emotion" amongst the musical world. Pattings had a severe cold and has not appreared for several nights at the Italiens. This regarded as "too bad," considering that her nights (if not her days) are now numbered, and that at the end of the present sesson Mile. Patt makes her exit from the slage, and the Marquise do Caux enten the bean monde. Then there is another loss; Gomeod is said to have shown symptoms of derangement, and is ordered to Rome for his health. Thus music, both vocal and instrumental, is threstened with the loss of two of its most chaming exponents.

ERGLAND.

Why Disracti Hesigned—His Address to the Conservative Hembers of Par-liament,

The London papers of December 8 molish the lotiowing address from Mr. Disraell, giving his reasons for resigning office:

"If Parliament were sixting, I should not have adopted this course; but as the public acts of a ministry should not be informerated, and as there are no other means of explaining their motives, I have taken the liberty of thus addressing the Conservative members in both Houses of Parliament. Parliament.

"When her Majesty sovernment, in the spring of this year, were placed in the minority in the House of Commons, on the question of disestablishing the church in Ireland, they had to consider that the policy proposed had never, been submitted to the country, and they believed that the country would not sanction it.

"They therefore felt it their duty to advise her Majesty to dissolve Parliament; but to make an appeal to the obsolete constituency—would have been an absurdity, and the candid opinion of the country coincided with that of Parliament, that no course could be satisfactory unless the voices of the enlarged electoral body were ascertained. "When her Majesty sgovernment, in the spring of the enlarged electoral body were ascertained. All means were, therefore, taken by the Ministry to expedite that appeal and a special statute was passed for the purpose.

"Although the general election has elicited, in passed for the purpose.

"Although the general election has elicited, in the decision of numerous and vasi constituencies
an expression of feeling which in a remarkabel degree has justified their anticipations, and which, in dealing with the question is controversy, no wheestalesman would disregard, it is now clear that the present administration cannot now tear that the present administration cannot expect to command the confidence of the newly-elected House of Commons.

"Under these cheunstances, her Majesty's Ministers have felt it due to their own honer, and to the policy they emport, not to retain office unnecessarily for a single day. They hold it to be more consistent with the attitude they have assumed, and with the convenience of public business at this season, as well as more conductive to sumed, and with the convenience of public business at this season, as well as more conductive to the just influence of the conservative party, at once to tender the resignation of their offices to the Majesty, rather than to wait for the assembling of a Farlament in which is the present aspect of affairs, they are sentillo they must be in a minority.

"In thus acting, her Majesty's Government have seen no came to modify those opinions upon which they deemed it their duty to found their counsel to the sovereign on the question of the disestablishment and disendorment of the Church. They remain convinced that the pro-position of Mr. Gladstone is wrong in prin-ciple, probably impracticable in conduct, and, ciple, probably impracticable in conduct, and, if practicable, would be dissertous in its effects.

"While ready at all times to give a fair consideration and willing to aid in any plan for the improvement of the Church in Ireland, to the policy which they opposed last session, rife, as they believe it to be, with many calamities to co-city and the State, they will continue, in whatever position they occupy, to offer an uncompromising resistance.

B. Disparet. "Downing street, Dec. 2, 1868." Dromising resistance.

"The Parislant are laughing to-day at the Immense preparations made by M. Pinand and the Prefect of Police to deal with the demonstration of yesterday. The imfanity ready to march were confined to barracke; the cavalry had their horses saddled; twelve batternes of artillery were held in readiness at Vincennes, and the railway authorities were instructed to keep the line to Versailles open for the conveyance of troops. A couple of battalious of invarity were posted behind the centerry of Montmarke. The Monteur of this morning states that a numerous crowd showed itself on the Boulevard de Clichy at about balf-past two, and the circulation was at about half-past two and the circulation was momentarily interrupted. That circulation was in terrupted by the police.

THE FINE ARTS

Mr Edward D. Lewis. Om last visit to the studio of Mr. R. D. Lewis was rewarded by the sight of his two landscapes, The Happy Valley" and "Mount Washington from Cherry Mountain Road," both of these have been simes (videlicet last Monday) well hong by Messis. Earle in their show window, among whose freasures they look even brighter than they did when gibbe ited in the triangle (always faially suggestive to us of Enclid spont atinorum) of the artist's casel. It gives serronge revulsion, as we so past the picture store with the slopping, flopping, Salur-ibrough-chaos galf proper to this winter weather to be arrested by these glimses into the golden Indian Summer, with forests of leaves hanging in rosy sleep, ready, but too calm, to fall. - Yours ago Levis brought back with him from the tropics the secret of painting smahine; he has never lost it; when eceptics carp at his color, or at the dreamy looseness of his textures, he can point his brush to the deluge of Light that inundates bisekles, and eddles through his foregrounds and il. sevig thirty enter? belig ett teninge edds back in glints and burnishes—few of them can do that they orthore, and imitate, and occa-donally afriend or rival obtains an armload of his sketches for the purpose of disjecting his costs of paint with the result obtained on cutling up the golden goose or opening the bellows. The success must be left with lewis as his incommunicable secret and prerogative:

"Happy Valley" is painted with peculiar affect tion, for the scene is the chosen summer resort of theurist. Itis a sort of Enchanted or Sleepy Region—(we believe Port Deposit litte mere geograpkicalor post-officeindication) -a place where the Surquehanna grows broad and brimning to bathe My Maryland; where the valley harvests are richer than elsewhere, and the autumn leaves spell a redder and more Inminous rebric over the hills. Thither goeth lowis, summer after summer, to lie down upon the mantle of light that dwells fastened to the valley-a voluntary Rasseles among theretired pageants of nature. By this pleasant discipline he sustains the secret he has acquired; his palette soaks in enough of the sun to overrun with it, fountain-like, when back in the city studio.

The "Mount Washington" is a wilder scene, with winds of the North represented as sweeping the clouds among the recesses of the White Hills. It is not an entirely new effect, perhaps-but the question is, can we have too many of such able lumerary pictures? -

Another some that pleased us in the privacy of the painting-room—we believe that it will gain father than lose by a public exposure depicts a strange creg on Kount Manateld (Green Mis.) which haugs over adark, still tam known as the lake of the Clouds. Mr. Levis, in delineating this austere scene, has putforth a pover more materiline and rude than is his wont; the beeting crag, the still and retirent water, have ill the expression of human figures in a historical comexpression of human figures in shintorical composition; some tragic story seems to be telling by lices intelligent forms to the elements. We were not surprised to hear that the artist has been obliged to repeat this vigorous conception more than once for connoisseurs whom it has struck by its unusually dramatic expression.

The pictures we have indicated are none of them very large. When will Lewis give us another can van commencate with his "Crean." another canvas commensurate with his "Queen of the Anilles," that shall hang in worthy rivally of the Bielstadts and Churches?
