Life Among our Ancestors.

The customs, manners, literature, architecture, history, everything, in fine, pertaining to England, previous to the seventeenth century, may be regarded as the common ancestral property of all John Bull's progeny, wherever scattered over the world. To a large majority of our readers, therefore, whatever throws light upon the olden times of Great Britain can never cease to be of interest.

The whale was eaten by the Saxons, and when mere lucky, enough to get it, it appeared at the table late in the fitteenth century. In 1246 Henry III. directed the Sheriff of London to purchase one hundred pleces for his table.
