Saturday, December 19, 1868. THE WAR IN THE EAST. All hopes of preserving the peace between Greece and Turkey have been dispelled by the presence of actual hostilities. The Greeks have begun the war with eagerness and spirit. it is patent to all observers that, in addition to July, '69. characteristic of their race. A Turkish manof-war attempted to overhanl a Greek steamer and was fired into. The Turk retaliated, and when the news of the encounter reached Constantinople, the Sultan despatched a fleet to the archipelago, and officially announced his determination to enforce his demands upon King George. In Greece, the declaration of war was received with unbounded enpatriotism. It is a grand business operation, husiasm. A call for the military reserves was responded to with alacrity: volunteers flocked in from all quarters; battalions of students and laboring men and merchan paraded the streets of Athens headed by ands of music, and the popular cry de manded an aggressive movement against Turkey—an invasion of her territory. It is said that the command of the Grecian troops has been offered to Garibaldi, but his reply has not been announced. It is not at all likely,

Try it? him to assume such an arduous position, alstruction trains have given it up to the hough we may be assured that his sympapassengers and the commerce that are to flow | LECTION took place last evening at Mr. Scott's hies would tempt him to do so. The result of this cannot possibly be foretold. An intelligent conjecture, founded upon the relative strength of the contending parties, and the attitude of the great powers Europe, is the most that can be attempted. If Greece simply pits herself against Turkey, without any extraneous support, the consequences will probably be disastrous. Both is to be done. re feeble when compared with their neighbors, but of the two, Turkey is by far the etronger. The Sultan can bring such power to bear upon Greece that a war would soon degenerate into a series of disorganized skirmishes, in which the Greeks would fight without the slightest hope of doing more than harassing their opponents. But it will perhaps occur that other contestants will appear in the great chain will be rivetted together, the field. When Turkey has been committed "And when across the rlains they ride, May we be there to see." irretrievably to war, Russia may intervene and give to Greece more powerful aid than RESUMPTION. she could obtain from any other source. on gold, as to make the final step one of far less difficulty and danger?

No one can deny that we can only return to specie payments, by making gold plenty and cheap; by doing all we can to crush the fictitious premium; by discountenancing speculations in gold, and by showing those who are hoarding it, all over the country, that the sooner they self the better for them. All intelligent writers agree that since 1860, in settlement of our balances of trade with foreign nations, we have exported only about one half the actual product of our mines of the preclous metals.

The accumulation since 1860 added to the prother to the future Queen of England, the British Government should at least preserve report says that France and England together orned the demand of the Sultan, that Greece should withdraw its support from the brave Cretans; and if this is so, it is quite impossible to perceive how either of these countries can avoid supporting the Sultan actively, in the event of interference by the If all these powers should become involved in the contest, there will be a great convulsion in Europe. Prussia will seize the opportunity to consummate her schemes of aggrandizement. Rome, stripped of her French troops, may fall an easy prey to Italy. Austria will probably proceed to consolidate the South German States into a confederation;

Ah, what a scene was there! What grief and anguish! What unutterable woe! The three women entered, paler by far than the dead bodies stretched out so stark and ghastly upon the prison floor. First came from these despairing women such piercing chricks as love only can utter when it feels that all it lived for is lost forever. Then tears like rain, bursting from New York Money Market.

The need of such an institution has long been felt, and some years ago an effort was made to establish one; but owing to various causes connected partly with the distractions of the war, it was diverted from its original design; and there is now no provision in the large city of Philadelphia to meet this pressing claim.

In New York a home of the kind referred to has been established for several years under the direction of the Children's Ald Society, and is now in successful operation, the records showing has been established for several years under the direction of the Children's Aid Society, and in own in successful operation, the records showing that during the thirteen years that the lodging house has been at work more than 40,000 different boys have been sheltered and assisted, the number each night averaging about 150.

The plan proposed here is that each boy should pay a small amount for his board and lodging, so as to promote a feeling of independence—the expenses to be mainly defrayed by subscriptions and contributions from the members of the Association. The design is to assist the boys to help themselves, and while affording them wholeseme food and decent shelter, to furnish them with such instruction and occupation as will divert them from the attendance of the gin shops, low theatres and other victous resorts to which they nightly throng, and will tend to elevate their aims and raise their positions in life.

Any carnest man may convince himself of the need that exists for such a place as this by going round himself at night among the wharves, factories, newspaper offices and other outside places where these little shivering fellows are sleeping increased in the printers would drive them aleeping in boxes, or under stairs, or in the lobbies of offices till the printers would drive them away by pouring water on them.
