LETTER FROM EDINBURGH, SCOT

LAND.

| Correspondence of the Philadelphia Evening Bulletin, Edinburgh is its Castle, situated upon a high precipitous hill, which appears as if just made for the purpose, and which is entirely covered with the castle buildings and barracks. The architecture is massive, much marred by the barracks, but very impressive when viewed from Prince's Street Gardens as it looms up in the air LAND.

LAND.

Conceptions of the Philadelpita Fronks indicated wounded and the control of the co The Active of Joseph where the advanced on the colorism good policy on the colorism good of personal relationships and the advanced proposed by the property of the inhabitants of a woman, who explains the history of an advanced relationship of a woman, who explains the history of the inhabitants of the woman in the company of the property of the pr Denmark.

The Crown Room, where these ancient relics are deposited, is a strong, vaulted apartment, with its windows well secured by strong iron stanchels, and the entrance protected by two doors with locks of the strongest character, all under charge of a woman, who explains the history of each article with much more animation and interest than is usually done by attendants of this kind, who have to go over their story probably a hundred times daily.

The Crown Room, where these ancient relics cumstance. Intemperance is not a peculiarity of these otherwise good people, but is enjoyed by the inhabitants of other cold climates, such as Sweden, Norway and Russia.

Intellectually, no people have produced greater thinkers; patriotically, greater patriots, religiously, greater divines. Scotland may be well proud of her record and of her great army of patriots, poets, doctors, divines and unseful to generations yet to come. either side, with capitals composed of curiously carved birds and grotesques, belonging to the best years of this early English style. At the further end of the middle sisles is a window in a good state of preservation and of recent date. The whole ruin is very picturesque, and its ancient tombs of Kings, Queens, and Poets and Statesmen of Scotland, render it one of the most interesting relies of Scotland's platery. building, in front flanked with double castellated towers, giving it quite a military appearance. Its southern wing is now fitted up for Queen Victoria and known as the Queen's apartment, but open to the public. In the northern wing is shown Queen Mary's apartments, with furniture and to have been used by her. A gallery arniture said to have been used by her. A gallery of pictures containing portraits of 106 Scottish Kings, by De Witt, who made them all look alike except a really fine one of Mary Queen of Scots.

One of the portraits is of Fergus 1st, who reigned 330 years B. C., and is, of course, a very truthful likeness.

The blood stain on the floor of Queen Mary's The blood stain on the floor of Queen Mary's rooms, said to be from Rizzo, when murdered here in 1505, is shown to the credulous. But, laying aside the portraits, Mary's relics and Rizzo's blood stains, this place, like many others in Edinburgh, is full of hallowed reminisences of Scottish royalty and history.

Here it was that Margaret, daughter of Henry. VII., from whom descended the sovereigns of Great Britain, married its founder, James IV., and became its first mistress. Next was the beautiful but sickly Princess Magdalene, daughter of Francis I., of France, who only lived forty days, when she was burned in the Abbey church. It is said the national grief was so intense on the death of this Queen that the "mourning dress" was generally adapted, the first instance of its being worn in Scotland. Next was Mary of Guise, mother of Mary, Queen of Sects, and second wife of James V.

represent Chaucer receiving a commission, with others, in 1372, from King Edward III. to the Doge of Genoa, and his reception by the latter. At the top the subjects are taken from the poem entitled "The Floure and the iteresting relics of Scotland's history. The Palace of Holyrood was built by James IV. Leafe."On the dexter side, dressed in white are and V., but so many changes have occurred as to the Lady of the Leafe and attendants: on the sinister aide is the Lady of the Floure, dressed in green. In the tracery above, the portrait of Chaucer occupies the centre, between that of Edward III. and Philippa his wife; below them, Gower, John of Gaunt; and above are Wickliffe and Strode, his contemporaries. In the borders are disposed arms. At the base of the window is the name "Geoffrey Chaucer, died A. D. 1400," and four lines selected from the poem entitled "Balade of Gode Suffise unto thy good though it be small." "That thee is sent receyve in buxomnesse; The wrasiling for this world asketh a fall." This window is a brilliant piece of color, and an interesting addition to the attractions of the Abbey. IODIZED SYRUP OF HORSE-RADISH.

PREPARED BY GRIMAULT & CO., PARIS.

This syrup contains Iodine combined with the juice of water crees, be recradish, and scurvy-grass, in which iodine and sulphur exist naturally, and for this reason is an excellent substitute for cod liver oil, which is generally supposed to owe its efficacy to the presence of iodine. The Iodized Syrup of Horse-radish invariably produce most satisfactory results administered to children suffering from lymphatism, rachitism, congestion of the glands of the neck, or the various cruptions on the face so frequent during infancy. It is also the best remedy for the first stage of consumption. Being at once tonic and deputative, it excites the appetite, promotes digestion, and restorce to the tissues their natural firmness and vigot. Published WM. M. SMITH, Secretary.

OPAL DENTALLINA.—A SUPERIOR ARTICLE FOR cleaning the Teeth, destroying animalcula, which infect them, giving tone to the gums, and leaving a feeling of fragrance and perfect cleanliness in the mouth. It may be used daily, and will be found to strengthen weak and blee-ing gums, while the aroma and detersiveness will recommend it to every one. Being composed with the assistance of the Dentist, Physicians and Microscopist, it is confidently offered as a reliable substitute for the uncertain weakes formerly in vogue.

Eminent Dentista, sequainted with the constituents of the Dentallina, advocate its use; it contains nothing to prevent its unrestrained employment. Made only by JAM 35 T. 9HINN. Apothecary, Broad and Spruce streets.
