The volume just out contains the Spanish Papers of that most genial of histo-rians. There was nothing he entered into more con amore than the investigation of obscure nooks and corners in the history of Spain, the country where residence was to him such an exquisite pleasure. The present volume, style of journalism prevalent in the far West a large one of 531 pages, contains the "Le-gends of the Conquest of Spain, "with various other Legends, relative to the Moorish wars, edited by Mr. Pierre Irving, and selected by him from the posthumous mss bequeathed to him for revision. These all breathe the interest and animation indicated by that letter in which Irving remarks: "Those old Morisco-Spanish subjects have a charm that makes me content to write about them at half price; they have so much that is high-minded, Morisco-Spanish subjects have a bout them at half price; they have so much that is high-minded, and chivalrous, and quaint, and picturesque, and, at times, half comic, about them." that the State is able to protect itself. The militia has been under tolerable good control, and the plundering reported in the press is the taking of supplies under orders. One negro militianan committed a rape on a white woman, but was immediately arrested by General Catterson, who seems to be a very good man, tried, convicted, and promptiy executed. The Governor's policy has, no doubt, seriously interfered with business where marital law has been proclaimed, and injured business men of all partice; hence the opposition from loyalists. It has interfered with travel, taken off hands for the militia at a senson when they are badly needed, and created many panies. It, however, has accomplished much more good than the more sanguine expected, and Gen. Smith acknowledges that he thought the Governor's judgment was bet-ter than his own, and that the result would fully justify the action of the former. The Governor is now disposed to relieve each county from marital law as soon as it can be safely done. The Gov-ernor is certainly a man of intelligence and nerre, and has labored under difficulties that would have deterred a less able officer. Four thousand arms were seized by the Kn-Kinx, and thrown off the boat below Memphis. He could seldom seever good men for offices, and in the eastern counties he had to depend entirely upon negroes for sol-diers. Very respectfully, Hunass Porrter, A. D. C.
