[Correspondence of the Phila. Evening Bulletin.] Paris, Tuesday, Jan. 5, 1869.—I venture to ake some credit to miself for having persisted all along in the belief that no serious trouble would arise in the East, at a time when much alarm was felt on the subject. Both the language used by the Emperor in his reply to the congratulations of the Corps Legislatif on New Year's Day, and the facts which have become subsequently known as to the results of the communications exchanged between the Powers interested, prove correctness of my appreciations. The Emperor congratulates Europe upon the fact that now, whenever any difficulty arises, all the leading Powers are eager to "smooth it down" and prevent it from spreading further. There is not, in fact, a single government in Europe which does not desire to "shirk" war at the present moment; and as to a general configration in the East, such a spectre would be a cause of nightmare, I think, even to Bismarck himself.

LETTER CHOM PARIS.

None of the Powers are ready, able or willing to go to war, with any good prospect of profiting by such a venture. They are all in a more or less ricketty condition, either as regards their finances, or internal politics, or social condition, and they know it; and are afraid to encounter any sudden shock, est they should tumble to pieces. They are all therefore, in a terrible hurry to patch up this

Turco-Greek business before it grows into wide dimensions. The Journal Officiel (the new Moniteur) tells us that "all the Powers" are "unnimous" to hold a Conférence, and what is more important, to stick to the single point at issue; that is, the quarrel between Turkey and Grocce which has arisen out of the Cretan insurrec-The Conference is as good as announced o meet on the 9th of this month, and I venture once more to predict that the result of its deci--ion will, in fact, amount to this: Greece will be admonished to keep herself quiet, and not bring ver big friends into trouble by her fillbustering propensities. Turkey will be advised to treat her Christian subjects better, so as not to afford a pretence for intermeddling with them, either to Grecce or another and very different Power. Finally, both parties will receive a significant hint hat they will not be allowed to proceed to excremitics which may involve their neighbors And thus, having at least "smoothed down the difficulty," as Napoleon says, if not exactly settled" the Turco-Greek question, the Conerence will dismiss the disputants with an imperative rather than benevolent Pax vobiscum! There is one point in the above business which is noticeable: and that is, the leading part taken in it by Prussia. The French official journal itself attributes to Prussia the first proposal of a Conference, which the Emperor's government only accepted and supported. Prussla is evi. dently bent upon maintaining the lead she has acquired by recent events. The old French Moni cur remarks bitterly that "at Berlin they evidently consider themselves the arbiters of the destinies of Europe;" and this feeling may one day, no doubt, bring about a conflict of very diferent dimensions from the Turco-Greek onerrel In his reply to the Corps Legislatif the Emperor scems to hold out the expectation of a arther enlargement of the public liberties. This is a sign of the times, and that Napoleon is aware of the rising aspirations of the country, and the danger of continuing to resist and disappoint them. The rising generation of Frenchmen are beginning to suspect and believe that the long promised "crowning of the edifice" has, thus far, proved only a mockery and a enare; and the conquence of this, combined with the numberless istakes committed in policy and finance, has en that loss of popularity and prestige which I nave of late so often pointed out. Indeed, somehow or other, the Administration never happy just now in its action, and is always getting into a mess, in small things as well as great. For instance, it has managed, clumsily and awkwardly, to put an end, at least in came, to so long standing and thoroughly imperial an institution as the old French Moniteur. No such paper now exists, but is replaced by the new and untraditional title of Journal Official The old Moniteur was founded in 1789, and just ten years after that date was made the register the official acts of the government in its unofficial portion, by the First Consul, at the very outset of his career. The paper was, herefore, closely connected with his name and fame. This alliance of sixty years standing has ocen unwisely ruptured by M. Rouher, the Minster of State, partly through his arbitrary interterence with the non-official and purely commercial part of the newspaper, partly by the terms be sought to impose for the official publications. The consequence was the transfer of the latter to other parties, who undertook to found a new journal for the purpose. By Ministerial decree, M. Rouher announced that the new journal would be called the Moniteur Officiel, in distinction to the present Moniteur Universel. But the proprietors of the latter considered that the title of Mentieur, generally, belonged to them as an exclusive right, and brought an action of prohibition against the new publishers. This action the Tribunal of Commerce decided in their favor, by a most remarkable judgment, delivered only on the 28th of December last. Nothing could be more awkward; for the new journal. with all the official acts of the new year, was bound to appear on the 1st of January. Great was the distress of the Ministry of State-An appeal was lodged immediately, and the first Chamber of the Cour Imperiale sum moned specially to hear this cause, as being "ur" gent," on Thursday, the 31st December, a day on which it never usually sits. But twenty-four bours brought reflection. M. Rouher reconsidered, doubtless, the stringest terms of the first judgment, and saw he had no chance of upsetting it. So he decided to knock under. Another ministerial decree was issued, somewhat foolishly worded, in which it was said that "it could no possibly matter to the Administration whether its journal was called Monitour or not. and fixing its title simply as Journal Officiel But, says the old Moniteur slily enough next day, "if, M. Rouher, you did not care for our name, why did you force us to bring an action, wait until we had obtained a decision in our favor, in scribe your appeal d'urgence, summon the Cour Imperiale for a special audience, and only give in at last when you found you had no chance?" In short, M. Rouher has (like his master often o late) cut a very poor figure in the above trans submitted to the Legislature.

(Special Correspondence of the Phila. Evening Bulletin.) HARRISDURG, Jan. 19th.—Quite a number o Philadelphians are here urging the passage of the bill extending the term of office of Mr. Peltz. There appears to be no longer any doubt of its final success. There is a decided feeling among the country members against the political bills that Philadelphia members are constantly bringing up, but as there are more good reasons given for the passage of this bill than are generally of-fered, it is probable that it will go through as a party measure. Some forty or fifty persons came down to-day from the section of country in which John Scots resides, for the purpose of witnessing the pro-ceedings incident to his election to the United ceedings incident to his election to the United States Senate. They were all, of course, delighted with the result, but were considerably annoyed at an editorial reflecting on the candidate which appeared on Monday in one of your evening contemporaries. It is useless to deny that Mr. Scott is the choice of a large majority of the Legislature, even when some of the means by which his success was attained are considered, and their choice has been endorsed by the Rapphilean jour. choice has been endorsed by the Republican jour-nals of the State, with a few exceptions. It is truly a pity that so good a man should flud his Senatorial career blurred at the beginning by whispers of corruption, which, if they have any whispers of corruption, which, if they have any foundation, have been caused by the acts of others, and not by his own; for rest assured, if any undue influences were brought to bear, he had nothing to do with them.

Some of the opponents of the Metropolitan roles bill introduced into the Legislature by Mr. Henezey will endeavor to effect the same object in shother way—by passing a supplement to the consolidation act, which will so change the phraseology that the Connells can have the power phraseology that the Conneils can have the power o perform all the duties now sought to be con-terred on five Commissioners. They say that the iorty-second section authorizes and directs Coun-ells to organize a Police Department, and that the ninth section gives the power to the Mayor to nominate, and by and with the advice and con-tent of the Select Council, appoint the policemen; that, therefore, all that is necessary is for the Legislature to amend section 9th so as to take the power from the Mayor, and the desired end is accomplished. The friends of Mr. Hensey's bili can say whether this is true or not. But my impression is that Mayor Fox would veto any ordinance passed by Councils providing for changes in the police system, unless he was allowed to retain the appointing power; and if he is to do that, there is no necessity for any change.

Already a number of persons have been besetting Senators and Representatives for their signa-tures to petitions, among them some who desire to excure all the names possible recommending them to office under Gen. Grant, who of course will understand that these endorsements are not worth the paper they are written on, all applica-done for signatures being courteously complied with by legislators, so that sometimes the same members may recommend a dozen persons for the

"Upon the death of his elder brother, James A. Bayard, Jr., he commenced the study of law in his father's office, and was in due time admitted to the bar. Soon after, he located in Philadelphia, to practice his profession, but after a year or eighteen months, returned to Wilmington. He was appointed U. S. District-Attornoy, in April, 1853, but resigned, and Hon. D. M. Bates was appointed, in December, 1854. Other than this he held no public positions of importance.

"Mr. Bayard's father, James A. Bayard, has been repeatedly in the United States Senate, and is new scrving out a term." His uncle, Richard H. Bayard, served in the same body from 1836 to 1845; and his grandfather, James A. Bayard, from 1804 to 1813.

"Personally, Mr. B. is an active, energetic and diligent lawyer. He will make a more serviceable senstor, in many practical matters, than his ather, and will be very probably a valuable member of the Senste for daties not political. In the latter respect he will differ most distinctly from the great body of the Senate, his education and babits of thought being all of the ultra Southern States Rights character, and entirely opposed to the great progressive movement which the Re-public is irresistibly making."
