HARRISON BOILER. Total Cash Assets, - 831,017,320 32

(From the Sunday Transcript, Feb. 7,) "As to whether a Harrison boiler will explode is an open question. Its inventor is particularly ositive on the subject, while others are equally ertain the other way. Now it is not for us to say that the Harrison boiler will, and we certainly shall not aver that it will not, explode. It may be proper to add that in December last there was an explosion in Drinker's alley. Now what was the name of the exploded boiler? Will Mr Harrison please say? Our columns are open for

Gray's Ferry Road, near U. S. Arsenat.

THE

Great Economy of Fuel:

If the boiler in Drinker's alley alluded to is the one in Mr. Yocum's foundry, it is a Harrison boiler. In a pamphlet issued from the Harrison Botler Works for several years past will be found the following:

Mr. Sawyer wished that the Secator from Kentucky had lived for a time in a reconstructed State, because then he could have seen that the negro, although not the equal of the white, had yet within him the germ of improvement which will enable him to develop into an intelligent and good citizen under our institutions. The objection made to the amendment that it would change the relations of the States to the Federal Government, seemed to him a strange one, because there could be no amendment to the Constitution that would not, in some respects, change those relations.

The Wilmington Commercial of last evening cays:

A heavy robbery was committed at the depot of the Fhiladelphia, Wilmington & Baltimore Railroad Company, in this city, on Saturday night.

William Jamar, paymaster of the road, brought down here $15,000 to pay off the 'employes, which he deposited with some other money in the safe in the office of J. Mahoney, roadmaster.

Some one effected an entrance into the office and unlocked the safe with a skeleton key, taking over fifteen thousand dollars from it. The only c us to the thief yet found is the skeleton key, which was picked up on Fourth street below Fine. This, however, affords no evidence of the identity of the criminal.

The robbery is quite a mysterious one, especially when we consider the public place at which it was committed, and the fact that portions of the building are occupied day and night the year round.

The "job" must have been well planned and skillfully executed, as the office where it was committed is within a short distance of the rail-road telegraph office, which it is always occupied.
