The fact is that the militia system of Pennsylvania needs a complete reformation. In Philadelphia, where alone the recent law is operative, the military force is shamefully small. This is mainly attributable to the fact that the companies which once had existence were compelled to disband for want of pecuniary support. The Blue Reserve Regiment, which we may instance as an and in 1863, and was awarded two splendid honest "long" or "short" ton, it does not folflags by the city government as a recognitios lew that it will reach the consumer as it left flags by the city government as a recognition of its valuable services; but it went to pieces, simply because the individual members could has grown into a large business and great the consumer as it left other ways, equally conducive to the comfort, health, respectability and general welfare of the people, we are a conservative has grown into a large business and great the consumer as it left other ways, equally conducive to the comfort, health, respectability and general welfare of the people, we are a conservative has grown into a large business and great for the continuance of the organization. The same story can be told of a multitude of other regiments and companies, the members of the poorer classes purchase their whole supply of fuel by the peck or bushel, the coal being served from door to door, as other regiments and companies, the members of the poorer classes purchase their turb a reign so quiet, harmonious and profitable to its Prime Ministers as that of His Majesty, King Mud.

Many of the most populous counties have none at all: and where they do exist outside of the city, they are not by his own account, in transitu. any means as efficient as they should be. The remedy for this unpleasant and unsafe condition of things is two fold. The present law, imposing a fine of two dollars per an. num upon every person within the specified age, who does not belong to a military organization, is operative only in Philadelphia. There is no good reason, that we know of why other cities and the rural districts should be exempt from military service or the tax. Persons who live away from Philadelphia are just as competent to serve as our citizens are, and if they are properly encouraged will be as ready to do so. They need pecuniary assistance to enable them to effect organizao confusion. The bushel of Lehigh, or tion, and the fairest way to raise the money is to tax those who will not do duty. We hope the Legislature will perceive the necessity for extending the provisions of the law to the entire State, and will take means to collect the tax as rapidly as possible. There never will be any first rate military organization until this is done. Some sacrifices of time and money are required on the part of militiamen, and when the time for actual service comes, as it may at any day, they are compelled to take the post of danger. If there were no other reason, would preclude his taking a Cabinet appointment.

The General talked very freely with his friends about his interview with Col. McClure, which seemed to have afforded him considerable amusement.

The drift of General Grant's talk has left the lmpression here that representatives of State cliques who wish to bring their quarrels to Washington had better take warning. In the course of his rempress General Grant said he didn't see what occasion there was for people to get into such a fret about his Cabinet, when they would know all about it in a very few days.

> The Constitutional Amendment [Special Despatch to the Phila Evening Bulletin.]
> Washington, Feb. 26.—The Constitution Amendment was taken up in the Senate, and read as follows:

'The right of citizens of the United States to vote shall not be decided or abridged by the United States or by any State on account of race, color or previous condition of servitude.

Mr. Pomeroy reviewed the action of the House and the senate on the pending amendment up to this time, and said that the Committee of Con-ference had exceeded their powers and violated parliamentary law by tampering with the text of the bill as agreed upon at different times by FRENCH CRETONNES both Houses.

Mr. Howard regarded the amendment, in the form agreed upon by the Committee of Conference, as inadequate to the demands of the country, and likely, if adopted, to lead to difficulty in ne inture. Mr. Edmunds said that the Committee of Con I New and Superb Designs, for Chamby striking out one half of an indivisable truth, had made the remainder half in reality a falsehood. From the amendment agreed upon by the Committee it would seem that Congress was so eager to do something by way of amending the constitution, that they forgot that it made any difference what they did.

Mr. Wilson said that for nearly thirty-three years he had done all he could by word and yote against slavery and all things connected with it. ber Curtains and Upholstering against slavery and all things connected with it. He had always demanded what was right, and had done his best to attain it, but he had also had done his best to attain it, but he had also acted upon the idea of taking what he could get, believing that one step farther made the next step easier, and he would act upon that principle now, too, although with more regret than over before, and with some degree of mortification, because he had hoped that early in the present session the majority in Congress would seize the great opportunity while twenty-five State Legislatures were in the hands of their friends, and while the hearts of the people were WINDOW SHADES. Plain, in New Shades of Color.

latures were in the and of the people were warm with the love of liberty and a sense of justice, to make an amendment to the Constitution which would secure equal civil rights to all men of all races, classes and colors in this country. To such an amendment there could have been no considerable opposition anywhere, because the rights of all classes would be involved; but the amendment proposed by the Committee of Conference might be strongly opposed in Connecticut, where the first battle was to be fought, and in other States, as a more

'negro' proposition.

Mr. Pomeroy moved to disagree and vote for another Committee of Conference.

Mr. Stewart raised the point of order, that the
