Public Credit to be Kept Inviolate Army Headquarters Centre of Attraction

Grant's Inaugural [Special Despatch to the Phila, Evening Bulletin.]
Washington, March 3.—The inaugural address, which has been prepared, will make about half a column of the Globe, and it is known that it will take strong ground in favor of the suffrage amendment to the Constitution, urging its ratification by the States as a measure important General Grant will announce, in an emphatic manner, his views upon the subject of the national credit, asserting that national honor and good faith demand that all obligations not otherwise expressly stipulated must be paid in coin. He has, in conversation upon this subject, said that it would be a disgrace for the nation to think it can do otherwise than this.

THE PUBLIC CREDIT.

The Conference Committee on Schenck's Public Credit bill have agreed to report. They restore the first section nearly to its original form. It is a declaration that bonds which do not expressly specify otherwise are payable in coin.

[Special Despatch to the Phils. Evening Bulletin.]

Washington, March 3.—A great crowd of visitors besieged the Army Headquarters again this morning, but with the exception of Senators Cameron and Wilson, Governor Geary and two or three others, none were admitted to see Gen. Grant, orders having been issued to convey Gen. Grant no cards.

During the forenoon the General drove in an open huggy to Willard's Hotel to get a friend. During the forencon the General drove in an open buggy to Willard's Hotel to get a friend. He was at once recognized, and crowds gathered around his vehicle, apparently much to his annoyance. After taking in his friend he drove rapidly away. General Sherman will occupy General Grant's rooms at the Army Headquarters for some time at least.

The weather is clear and springlike and indicates a beautiful day to morrow.

The facts got to the ears of some of the friends of the policemen, and this morning a gentleman appeared at Alderman Devitt's office to enter bail. He was told that the bail had been increased to $3,000, and that unless he produced the deeds of his property he could not be accepted. As the deeds were not at hand, bail was not entered. A transcript of the docket of Ald. Devitt was subsequently demanded by another friend of the imprisoned policemen, who laid down $10 to pay for it. This was refused.
