The semi-official and ultra-imperialist journals have been doing their very best to blow up a new quarrel between France and Belgium, on the anity of a railway transaction which was meditated in the latter country by a French company.

Of course, there could hardly be any danger of a serious conflict between France and Belgium. But the danger in this case was that San Francisco.

But the noise which has been made shows Mr. Brooks made the point of order that the what passions slumber beneath the surface, and Reading Clerk had not called the names of the how little would still suffice to blow them into a members clect from Georgia and Louisiana.

The Clerk overruled the point of order.

A friend of great experience has since told me that he had been consulted respecting the accident by the Prince de Joinville, who is always interested in naval questions; and that, not trusting to his own judgment, he had had a meeting with two of the ablest commanders of the French Marine, Admirals Cecile and Boest-Guillaumez, along with Captain Duchesne himself, when he found that all the three latter were quite unable to account for such an incident occurring, and form the discharge of the clerk was not to be appeased in that manner, and declared that the Clerk was not acting under the authority of law, but in violation of all law.

The incident is regarded as almost unique by such high naval authorities as those above mentioned, who give the highest credit to Captain Dachesne for the presence of mind with which he met so unprecedented an occurrence.

The clerk once more directed Mr. Brooks to take his seat.

Mr. Brooks utterly refused to do so, and astered that he was a member of the House, while the person undertaking to dictate to him was a cirk of the House.

Mr. Brooks utterly refused to do so, and astered that he was a member of the House, while the person undertaking to dictate to him was a cirk of the House.

Mr. Schenck said he did not, and thereupon the New York members, including Mr. Reeves, were sworn.

Objection was made by Mr. Butler to Mr. Duchesne for the presence of mind with which he met so unprecedented an occcurrence.

Since the cossation of our short-lived frost, we have continued to enjoy the same remarkable weather which has distinguished the present season. The temperature is so high, and the Spring apparently so completely so in, that already the green-house shrubs and plants are being drawn from their winter retreats in the municipal conservatories and taking their places again in our equares and public gardens. The celebrated horse-chestout of the Tullerics, known as the tree of Le Vingt Mars, has this year quite out-done its reputation, and is already in fulleron. The figeness of the Mr. Brooks—and dictate to him was a clerk of that he was not a member of the House.

The ceremony having been performed amid general manifestations of satisfaction, the Speaker cleet delivered his opening address, saying:

Gentlemen of the House of Representatives: I thank you profoundly for the great honor which your votes have just conferred upon me. The gratification which this signal mark of your confidence brings to me, finds its only drawback in the diffidence with which I assume the weighty duties devolved upon me. Succeeding to a Chair made illustrious by the services of such eminers it was feared lest his Majesty should abdicate and a revolution be the consequence. To bring about duties devolved upon me. Succeeding to a Chair made illustrious by the services of such eminent state smen and skilled parliamentarians as Clay, and Stevenson, and Polk, and Winthrop, and Banke, and Grow, and Colfax, I may well distrust my ability to meet the just expectations of those who have shown me such marked partiality; but relying, gentlemen, on my honest purpose to perform all my duties faithfully and fearlessly, and trusting in a large measure to the indulgence which I am sure you will always extend to me, I shall hope to retain, as I have secured, your confidence, your kindly and your generous support. The Forty-first Congress assembles at an auspicious hour in the history of our government. The aplendid and impressive ceremonial which we have just witnessed in another part of the Capitol appropriately symbolizes the triumphs of the part and the hopes of the future. A great

DABATOGA WATER. STAR SPRING, UNITED STATES OF AMERICA,

SARATOGA. NEW YORK The analysis proves that the waters of the 13.63 SARATOGA STAR SPRINGS have a much larger amount of solid substance, richer in medical ingredients than any other spring in Saratoga, and shows what the taxte indicates—namely, that it is the STRONGEST WATER. It also demonstrates that the STAR WATER contains 100 Cubic Inches More of Gas in agailon then any other spring. It is this extra amount of gas that imparts to this water its peculiarty sparsling appearance, and renders it so very agreeable to the tasterit also tends to preserve the delicious flavor of the water when bottled, and causes it to uncork with an efforces once almost equal to thampague.
