TRIAL OF A HOSE SHIELD.—When a fire occurs in the city there is always trouble in regard to the running of the passenger rallway cars, and to the running of the passenger rallway cars, and cometimes hours clause before the cars can make regular trips. To obviate this annoyance warlous plans have been suggested and examined by the rallway companies. In presence of a Combittee of the Board of Presidents, yesterday, there mittee of the Board of Presidents, yesterday, there was a trial of John A. Hance's patent hose shield, on Ridge avenur, opposite the Fairmount Engine on Ridge avenur, opposite the Fairmount Engine on Bridge. It file in the track, and when do wn is very permanent. It is fourteen feet in length and the hote passes under it, there being holes for eight lines. The hose is covered so as to be protected from the feet of the horses. The grade is about an inch and a quarter to the foot and easy of accent, hardly perceptible to the passences oning the trial yesterday. For two hours will the cars and vehicles traveling along Ridge avenue passed over it without the slightest inconverience. The rallway Presidents and fireto the running of the passenger railway cars, and riege avenue passed over it without the slightest inconverience. The railway Presidents and firemen who witnessed the truly all seemed to be well satisfied with the working of the apparatus. Thus far it is the only shield which allows of the passage of the cars and protects the hose at the same time.

THE TEMPERANCE MISSION. -An interesting meeting of the "Temperance Mission" was held last evening in the church, Seventh street above last evening in the church, Seventh street above Brown. Dr. Rennalds presided. Addresses were made by William J. Mullen, who gave a history of persons incarcerated in Moyamensing Prison for capital and other offences, and traced their downfall to the use of intoxicating liquors. Thomas M. Coleman followed; he spoke of the duty of church members in reference to the temperance movement, and regretted that so little interest was manifested by them in this great reform. The speaker concluded by urging church members to consider well their responsibility in this direction, and intimated that the loss of many would be charged to their account loss of many would be charged to their account unless they aroused themselves from their betherey.

S. K. Mardoch read selections having a bearing on the subject of temperance, and showing the evil results flowing from the use of the intoxicating bowl. He also made an address on toxicating bowl. He also made an address on the evils of intemperance.

Hiram Ward spoke in reference to the good work accomplished by temperance men in other churches, alluding particularly to that in Dr. Sherheid's Church, where over one thousand persons have signed the pledge. All the speeches were well received. During the proceedings a persons nave signed the pledge. All the spectrum were well received. During the proceedings a number of signatures were obtained to the total absilience pledge. The meetings at this church are growing in interest.

THE PENSIONERS. - The closing of the Pension Office, in consequence of the resignation of Col. E. W. C. Greene, the Agent, is a serious inconve-E. W. C. Greene, the Agent, is a serious inconvenience, and a great hardship to many who receive a small stipend from the Government in consideration of having lost a leg or as arm in defence of the country. The office in this city has on its rolls men residing in different sections of the State. These men come to the city at stated periods to draw their money, and as difficulties are entirely nexpected, they now find themselves in a strange place, without friends or money. Several pencioners so circumstanced appeared at the office this morning. The government will no doubt take prompt measures stanced appeared at the office this morning. The government will no doubt take prompt measures to furnish these wounded soldiers with their money, but in the meantime they have no homes or means of subsistence. Rowarkable Things Left Behind by Queen isabelia.

The invoice taken by three notaries public on the night after the flight of the Queen of Spain of the objects contained in her apartments, as well as those of her husband, Don Francis de Assisas, will shortly be published in Madrid. Some French correspondents who have been permitted to inspect it say that it will be certain to create a great sensasation. Neither the Queen nor the King Consort possessed a single book except some livres d'heures (prayer books). But on the table of Don Francis there were found large numbers of obscene photographs, many of which represented distinguished royal imperial personages in extremely lascivious attitudes. Another remarkable discovery was that King Francis did not possess a weapon. In the apartments of this successor of Fordinand of Castile and Charles the Fifth, there was not found a sword, a dagger, a musket, but only a small toy pistol. As the King was known to be a great bon-bon eater, the fact that all his drawers were filled with boxes of sugar plums did not excite mush surprise.

Queen Isabella's artistic taste had manifested itself in various ways. She had pasted miserable daubs representing saints on some of the finest Murillos hanging in her apartments, and steel engravings of the nun, Patrocinio, had been pasted on the immense Venetian mirrors with which the Alcazar at Madrid abounds. A poorly-painted full-size portrait of Pope Pius the Ninth had been hung over a precious palating by Velasquez; and the King Consort had been vandal enough to shoot with his toy pistol at a targe', which was no other than a historical pointing by Goni. When the notaries public had performed their curious task, they expressed themselves in terms of the most intense indignation at the discoveries which they had They compared the members of the royal family with certain unclean animals, and said that those who talked about the return of the Queen and her miserable husband to Madrid should be taken to the Alcazar and allowed to see the private apartments of Isabella and Don Francis de Assiess, when they would be loudest in demanding that such persons should not be permitted again to occupy the Spanish throne.

The facts about Mr. 8 athern's American engagement are stated thus by an English paper: gag-ment are stated thus by an English paper.
"After the engagement was signed, the New York manager ignored it, unless the date of the opening was altered, on which Mr. Sothern refused to go on any date. His success in 'Home' is complete, and his acting is considered superior even to his Dundeary."
