Cespedes was waiting for the war material she had on beard.

The expedition was under the command of Senor Cisneros, who a few months ago was editor of RI Pats newspaper in Havans. It comprised something over 100 young Cubans, many of them of the best families of Havans, who were all well armed with Peabody rifles, revolvers and short swords, several, pleces of field artillery and a number of expert artillerists. In addition to these the Henry Burden landed & 6,000,000 of ball cartridges and a large assortment of other war material. material.

General Cespedes was at Mayari with a large force ill supplied with munitions, but very enthusinstic and confident in the success of the cause—free Cuba. He
