Wednesday, March 17, 1869. THE GRIBES NAVY BILL. The bill which passed the Senate, yesterday, "for the reorganization of the Navy," introduces a principle which is not likely to be very long-lived. It creates a Board of Survey, to consist of three line officers, not below the grade of commodore, which is clothed with extraordinary powers. The bill abolishes the Bureaus of Medicine and Surgery, and of Provisions and Clothing, in direct terms, and virtually abolishes all the other Bureaus. It also practically abolishes the office of Secretary of the Navy, by mak.

The New York Times of this morning says: General Wilson Burstow died in this city last evening, of pneumonis, at the residence of his friend, Mr. Richard H. Stoddard, No. 75 East Tenth street. General Barstow served during the war on the staff of Major-General John A. Dix, and was with him when he was in command at Baitimore, Fortress Monroe and this city. He was an energetic young officer, of intelligence and ability, and during his service in the army held several exceedingly responsible positions. At the close of the war he was appointed by Secretary McCulloch Assistant Appraiser in this city, in the office of Mr. Thomas McElrath.

If. Davis, of Philadelphia, explained his position on the bill. The Legislature had got itself into the dilemma of taking some books, and 6,000 of the books had been printed under the direction of the Governor, in accordance with the statute which allows heads of departments to order such publications. The State Printer had presented an account, charging $6 90 per volume; but he (Mr. Davis) considered the charge experience of the charge FINANCIAL and COMMERCIAL

The first despatches from Europe and ounced a decline following the news of Mr. Sumner's promised speech, and the effect was depressing at home; crices, which had opened steady at the previous day's quotations, we-kening, in the 63's more particularly. The progress of the day brought further unfavorable news from London, but the home market was stayed by the final parage of the Public Gredit bill and the firmer tone to the gold market. The feeling, however, is unsettled in view of the action of Congress with reference to the Alabama claims, and the quertion of Cuban independence. In some quarters it is thought that the decline in London will not be restored even if the Previdentsigns and makes a law of the Schenck bill, for the reason that the latter has been already fully discounted. Holders are not in any way timid, and are confident of better prices, or that the present once will be maintained. There is a "short" interect in 623 ard old 55s, based upon the expectation of ashaup downward turn as the reaction from the advance to present figures, and bonds of these dates were lending "figt."

Foreign exchange opened steady, but the demand for to morrow's steamer was quite light. Rates fell off unaccountably, toward the close, and it is conjectured that cotton bills have been sold from Southern ports direct. Southern securities were duil and without feature. The money market was fully active at seven per cent, the shifting of balances into the Sub-Treasury for account of the country banks bolding government deposits inducing the calling in of some outstanding loans. The removal of the apprehension as to sate of gold countibuted to the removal of apprehension as to satragency in money arising out of the apprehension as to stringency in money arising out of the appeals of the government for currency, so that it would be reasonable to think the period of the greatest activity had been reached. This doubtless would be the case at any other time than the present. The responing of the numerous manufacturing enterprises of the country and the spring wants of the farmers create a demand which calls for all the currency the banks can spare.

Special Despatch to the Philadelphia Evening Bulletin.]

Washington, March 17.—The Senate Judiciary
Committee, to-day, reported back to the Senate the Edmunds bill repealing the act admitting Georgia to representation and re-establishing a provisional government therein. The section relating to the jurisdiction of the United States Courts is stricken out. The bill is reported without any recommendation, as there is as great diversity of views among the members of the committee as whon the subject was first considered to $5 per volume of the amount ($4 75) which the leading publishers of Philadelphia bad told the chairman of the committee and told the chairman of the chairman of the committee and told the chairman of the committ sidered at the beginning of last session. The discussion in the Senate promises to be very protracted. The credentials of the Georgia Senators were reported back with a recommendation that they lie on the table till some legislation as to the statues of the State is had.

[From the New Orleans Crescent, March 12.]
The general expectation that Colonel Casey would be appointed Collector of the Port has, it, seems, been justified by the event. This gentleman is, we have before remarked, not unconnected with the President, and is not much addicted to politics. He has for some time resided in New Orleans, and has gained the good opinion of those to whom he has become known. Mr. Stockdale, the new Collector of Internal revenue, has resided for some years in New Orleans as a Deputy Collector of the Port, in which position he displayed good business qualifications. Mr. Stockdale is an advanced Radical in politics. Of General Longstreet, the new Surveyor of the Port, we prefer to say nothing, simply because his history as a gallant Confederate officer is so well known that repetition would be superfluous, while his history as a Republican

Mr. Washburne (Wis.) remarked that it was a very serious matter. If an enrolling clerk was guilty of that offence if should be known, and he hoped the gentleman from Massachusetts would take means to have it made known.

Mr. Butler said he did not know who was responsible for it. He was informed that it was an accident, which had happened over and over again in former Congresses. He did not think it proper to discuss the merits of the question now. It had been the law, but through an accident or blunder, or something else, the law had been altered. The New York Money Market.
