Washington, April 6.— Notwithstanding the rumors which are current here about the position of the administration in regard to Cub in matters, it is evisin that President Grant and his Cabinet will enforce, to the best of their ability, the laws of American neutrality. It is understood that the administration has not in the least a desire to of American neutrality. It is understood that the administration has not in the least a dealer to interfere in the affirs of that island. The attitude of the Federal authorities is therefore very peaceable, and if things should follow their regular course it is impossible to foresee when the Executive will grant to the Cuban insurgents at the itine very serious causes of conflict between the United States and Spain, which arise mainly from the necessity on the part of the United States to protect, at all hizards, the life and property of American clitzons. It is well shown that many Cubans now more or less one segred in the support of the insurgents are also many native Americans acting in favor of the same side. If as it may happen at any moment, one of those should be shot by the intrinsic double mole kinds of the same side. If as it may happen at any moment, one of these should be shot by the intrinsic double mole kinds. The strange is a most serious trouble. It may be said, also, that all the talk which is going on here about the aunexation of Cuba to the United States is not considered as serious by our authorities, as it is well understood that the lensurgents are fighting for independence only, and not for the purpose of recling the listing to the line of the Daniel of the Compiler to the long of the contraction of the same state is most serious trouble.
