THE MYERS-MOFFETT CASE
Report of the Committee

Mr. Myers Entitled to the Seat

By the Atlantic Cable.
LONDON, April 6.—The political news is generally unimportant. The subject of the appointment of a successor to Reynolds Johnson is receiving considerable attention. The press is generally favorable to the appointment of Mr. Motley.

The Myers-Moffett Contested Election

WASHINGTON, April 6.—The Committee on Elections this morning, by a vote of seven to two, declared that Hon. Leonard Myers is entitled to the seat in Congress from the Third District of Pennsylvania, now held by Mr. Moffett. Their report has just been made to the House, and will be brought up for action at the latest on Thursday. The report discusses fully all the questions presented by the testimony. The committee decide that the whole poll of the Sixth and Seventh Divisions of the Seventeenth Ward, except the votes shown to be legal, must be excluded from the returns because of the fraudulent conduct of the election officers, who willfully violated the provisions of the election laws and took more than a hundred illegal votes in each of these divisions for Mr. Moffett. The request of the sitting member that the return of the Sixth Division of the Seventeenth Ward should be considered, they thought proper to refuse, and considering only the votes admitted on both sides to be legal, they would still be a majority for Leonard Myers of ninety votes, but the committee conclude that under the law, and the numerous divisions in Philadelphia and elsewhere, their plain duty is to reject the divisions above named, giving the Hon. Leonard Myers in all 617 majority.

New York Financial Market.

(Special Despatch to the Philadelphia Evening Bulletin.)
NEW YORK, April 6.—The Commercial Advertiser says the banks are sending out the city more currency than they receive, the shipments to the East and West being heavier than usual, and the loss is not important, yet in the present poverty of their resources, the slight loss tells directly upon their ability to lend, and causes a corresponding contraction of loans. The foreign bankers are large borrowers for the purpose of carrying governments, of which they are at present the principal holders.

CITY BULLETIN.

THE BANK DEPOSIT COMPANY—A HANDSOME ESTABLISHMENT.—The large handsome substantial building erected by "The Fidelity Insurance, Trust and Safe Deposit Company," at Nos. 101 and 103 Chestnut street, having been completed, was opened for private inspection today, and was visited by a large number of bankers, merchants and other business men. The Company was organized in 1867, and the officers being well known as gentlemen of intelligence, wealth and undoubted reputation, it was not long in securing the confidence of the community. Business increased rapidly, and the quarters in which the Company commenced operations were soon found to be too contracted to accommodate its patrons. The Directors then resolved to erect a building which, for permanency and strength, is equal to any in the city, and one which, in its design, should be an ornament to the city. In carrying out these plans the Directors have been eminently successful.

The lot upon which this magnificent edifice is situated is 41 feet front on Chestnut street, and 180 feet in depth. The building occupies the entire front of the lot, and extends 163 feet in depth. The front upon Chestnut street is of the Italian style, in the Italian style of architecture, a representation of a dog, the emblem of the company, forming the centre feature over the principal entrance. The building is completely fire-proof in all details. Great care has been exercised to make the masonry of superior strength, and the floors, formed by arches of brick masonry between rolled and compound iron beams, are so constructed as to prevent any danger of fire. All the outward openings of the buildings have been made with a view of affording protection against fire and the encroachment of thieves. Space is so far economized as to render the entire area of the building serviceable.

The basement is subdivided into six vaults, five of them intended for receiving chests of drawers, silver and other valuables, and the sixth for the safe and vault of the sales of corporations and bankers. Great care has been exercised in having these vaults properly ventilated, the consequence being the apartments are dry and secure. In the rear of the building is placed in the pavement vault, rising from the basement floor to the pavement grade, thus affording a convenient and ready use of the articles to be taken from or placed in the vaults. The rear basement is isolated from the business compartments, and contains a commodious dining-room, with all the necessary arrangements for providing meals for the clerks of the institution.

On the first floor is the general office of the Company. This is handsomely fitted up, the desks, tables, &c., being of oiled walnut. The ceilings are magnificent fresco. In the rear of the main office, and separated by partitions partly glass, are the offices of the President, Secretary and Treasurer, and at the northern end of the building there is a large room, suitably furnished, for the meetings of the Board of Directors. In immediate connection with the general office, a private waiting-room is provided for the accommodation of ladies.

The safe and vault, of course, are the main features of an institution of this character. The vault is twenty-eight feet in length by twenty-three feet in width; the foundations being on water gravel. The entire area of the floor surface is being laid in bonded granite three feet in thickness. The walls of the foundation of the safe and vault through the basement are massive, and built of Fort Deposit granite, the masonry being cut, dove-tailed and clamped by iron in each joint. The walls of the vault on the main floor are of Leiperville granite, securely bonded to the inner masonry and clamped thoroughly by plate iron bars and ties. Within this vault a safe of iron safe is set, with ample compartments for the various uses of the institution. The safe is constructed of Franklinite iron, with platinum lining, making it impregnable to fire. The system of construction here adopted affording the double security of a burglar-proof chest enclosed in masonry. Above the principal floor this vault chest is two stories in height, terminating an additional strong room. This safe and vault and all the strong rooms in the building are by location isolated and independent from the walls of the structure, thus giving additional security, and exposing every wall surface to the eye for constant inspection. The great iron safe was constructed by Farrell, Hering & Co., and is, no doubt, the largest iron safe ever built. It contains 150 tons of iron, and the cost was upwards of $60,000.

Another important adjunct to insure safety for the valuables which may be entrusted to the company is the electric telegraph used in the building. By it the night watch are not only to be placed in communication with those of several banks in the neighborhood, but with the Central Police Station. By ingenious mechanism attached to the clock, a record is made in printed form, of the visits of the watchmen to certain designated parts of the building at short and stated intervals during the night. This record is inaccessible to the watchmen. The recording of the officers have before them infallible evidence of the manner in which the duties of the watch have been performed during the night. There are five day and night watchmen attached to the institution.

The front building is two stories in height. The upper floor, which is reached by a spiral staircase, is to be used for the storage of packages and chests. The design of the edifice exteriorly is most artistic in every detail. It is constructed of pure white marble, and is finished so as to present an attractive appearance. The entire building is of imperishable material, and the best mechanical skill has been employed in order to insure beauty, permanence, and security, and it is believed that in this respect, the structure is unequalled by any other as a safe depository of valuables.

The plans and specifications of the building were prepared by Jas. H. Windrim, Esq., architect, under whose directions it was erected by Mr. John Rice, the contractor. The Fidelity Insurance, Trust and Safe Deposit Company has already become an institution of great importance, and in view of the great desirability with which it is so opened, and the security of its funds and mercantile houses are robbed of valuables, it is well that there is such an establishment affording so much security as the substantial structure described above. The recording of the watches in the building was going on rapidly this morning, and upwards of fifty were taken by bankers, brokers, merchants, and others. Among the firms whose names appear on the books as having secured their valuables are: W. W. Clark & Co., Jay Cooke & Co., Drexel & Co., and Morris, Tasker & Co.

The officers of the "Fidelity" are: President, N. B. Browne; Vice President, Clarence C. Sawyer; Secretary, Robert Patterson; Directors, N. B. Brown, Clarence H. Clark, John Welsh, Charles Macalester, Edward W. Clark, Alexander Henry, Stephen A. Caldwell, George F. Tyler, Henry C. Gibson.
