BARKING UP THE WRONG TREE.

The wicearies who have been guessing at the vegetable constituents of Soznont have all barked up the wrong tree. The right tree, which they pever dreamed of, is the Soap Tree of Chili, the bark of which is used by the Araucanian Indians to cleanse and preserve their garments, and chewed to keep their teeth stainlers, and gives a flower-like fragrance to their breath. This is one of the leading ingredients of Sozonont, the most wholesome and efficacious of all dental beautificity and preservatives.
