I have no doubt that every member ou this floor s glad that the session of the Legislature is so near at an end, and we are so soon to be relieved from the labors and duties and responsibilities of Representatives, and to be enabled to return to our homes and give some attention to our private business. But mingled with this feeling there is also with me at least a sense of regret and sorrow at parting or m those with whom I have been so intimately months. Many of you at the beginning of the station were strangers to me, but as the business progressed my duty as Speaker made it necessary for me to become familiar with you all. I therefore feel more keenly this separation than I perhaps otherwise would. In many instances, our homes being so far distant, it is probable that we may never meet again; and as in the heat of debate, and from conflicting interests of our constituents there may have occurred something that etituente, there may have occurred something that was not pleasant at the time. I trust that, if such was not pleasant at the time. I trust that, it such is the case, it will be forgotten.
