Alleged Corruption in the American Consulate in Alexandria, Egypt. The Washington correspondent of the New York Herald says:

It is rumored here in well informed circles that the corruption which has long been known to characterize all the European consular agencies in Egypt has at length reached that of the United States. Our Consul, Mr. Charles Hale, has, it is said, been granted a salary by the Viceroy. It is added that this step has been taken with the advice and concurrence of the French Consul-General, who is high in favor at the Viceregal court. The rumor may not be well founded, but our informent speaks of it as a well established fact. In official circles it is well known that this is the general Ezyptian practice. Ismail Pacha is bound to have representative agents from other lands in Ecyptia but he tice. Ismail Pacha is bound to have representative agents from other lands in Egypt, but he wishes them to be as dumb as possible. The Viceroy has strong faith in the power of money. "Bachskeesh," he has been known to say, makes even the British lion tame. It appears that henceforth he shall be able to use the same language in regard to the American eagle. He forgets that the United States has a vigilant press, and that the American people will not tolerate such conduct in their foreign agents. This matter ought to be thoroughly slitted. If Mr. Hale has taken money he should be recalled at once.

New Regulations at the White House for Receiving General Visitors— Grant to Recuperate by Making Short Excursions by Land and Water-Changes in the Custom House by Collector Moore-Assessor Kenney's Ap. pointments of Assistant Assessors

Correspondence of the Philadelphia Evening Bulletin Washington, April 28 -A new order was promulgated at the White House to-day, announcing that hereafter Monday and Thursday mornings, between 10 and 12 o'clock, would be devoted by the President to the reception of the general public, and that all others who desired audiences on the remaining days of the week, would be admitted on cards, if the President sees proper to receive them. This was done to prevent the overwhelming pressure upon the President, from citizens of every degree, who come to ask him for every imaginable appointment, from a first-class foreign mission to a petty clerkship in one of the Departments. The order, however, has been made the ments. The order, nowever has been made the occasion of some grumbling on the part of those who think the President should always be at the command of every citizen who chooses to call upon him, no matter how trifling the business may be. Grant is determined to take things easy, and it is understood he has arranged for an excursion to Mount Vernon, with his family, one day this week, on board the U. S. steamer Tallapoosa, now lying at the Navy Yard here. As he is compelled to stay here all summer, these little excursions will have a beneficial effect in acceping him in good health.

CRIME.

AME MURDER AT RYENECK, N. Y

A Jeweller Found Bead in his Bed-A Jeweller Found Dend in his Bed—The Tragedy a Mystery.
Gibert H. Robinson, of Rye Neck, was murdered in his bed on Tuesday morning. He was a son of Mr. Thomas Robinson, of Mamaroneck, and was only 26 years of age. On Mc aday evening he went around among his business friends on a borrowing expedition. He wished to make purchases of some diamonds, intending to visit New York on Thesday morning for the purchase. ew York on Tuesday morning for the On this representation one friend lent him $60. On this representation one friend lent him $60, another $25, and others, it is thought, other sums; some larger, some smaller. The borrowed amount he took to his store, and put it with a lot of jewelry and silverware into the safe. This was done at about 10 o'clock, in the presence of a young man named Zimmer. From all that can be learned it would seem that Zimmer was his last innocent visitor that night. Zimmer had recently bought a watch of him and had taken it there for repair. There was no one on the street near the store when Zimmer left, but he met a man crossing the bridge towards Robinson's man crossing the bridge towards Robinson's place. He observed the man so casually, howplace. He observed the man so castalry, however, as to be unable to say whether he was a stranger. On Tuesday morning, at about halfpast 8 o'clock, Daniel Huber went to the bridge for his morning Sun. On his return he stopped at the shop to get his watch fixed. He found the door open, and went in. Twice he stamped, but received no answer. He then went home.

The store remained closed during all of Tues-

The store remained closed during all of Tuesday, but nothing was thought of that, since Mr. Robinson was to have spent that day in New York. At half-past 10 o'clock on Tuesday night Mr. Wm. A. Fisher went to the store to get a watch. He found the lights out, the shutters up, and the door unlocked. Calling for "Gilbert," he received no answer, and went to the store of Mr. Perrin, over the bridge. He met there Mr. Sellzer, and young Perrin told them that Robinsenger, and young refine the them take two son's store was opened, and went with them to it. The three went inside and hallooed "Gilbert" three or four times, but received no answer. They then went to where his bed lay in a little alcove in the back part of the store. Sellzer advanced, and having rubbed his hand over the face of Roand having rubbed his hand over the face of Robinson, said he was dead. On bringing a light to the spot they discovered that Sellzer had pronounced correctly.

The dead man lay, when discovered, on his bed, with his back to the alcove wall. His bed-clothes and body were covered with blood dried upon them, and his skull was broken. The barrel of a double-barreled gun lay at the head of his bcd. The hole in the skull was evidently from the pin attached to these. His right arm lay easily at his side, and his left as though its hand had rested on his left check, and in sleep elld down a few inches.

An inquest was held yesterday over the body before Coroner Smith, in the Town Hall in Mama-

(From the Pittsburgh (Pa.) Chronicle, April 27.1

The days of life for Loais Lane are growing fearfully few. On Thursday of this week, shortly after the stroke of noon, the unhappy man will exchange this world for the uncertain next. Meanwhile time seems to pass as serenely with him as though the verge of eternity were not so near him. He eats heartly, sleeps soundly, smokes as many clears as may be given him, and seems not to chafe at the narrow walls about him, or to care very much that the next glimpse he gets of the outside world will be his last. Notwithstanding the many reports of his failing strength, he is in the enjoyment of robust health, and has been most of the time since his imprisonment. He is reticent to the last degree, and will converse very little, and that only in an unsatisfactory manner. He confines his talk mainly to "yes," "no" and "I don't know." He eems anxious to avoid all talk about his approaching fate, and appears to think as little of it as possible. He asserts his innocence positively to casual visitors, whatever he may say to his spiritual attendants. He has been confirmed in the Catholic faith, and is daily attended by Father Kerr. He professes to have received much consolation and encouragement from the counsels of the clergymen. He is frequently visited by the heir. He professes to have received much consolation and encouragement from the counsels of the clergymen. He is frequently visited by the Sisters of Charity, two of whom were with him this forencon for a long time. for their uniform kindness to him, and his councel, Messrs. Haines and McCarthy, for their unifring exertions in his behalf.

The prisoner, as we learn, was born between ifty and sixty years ago in Waterford, Loudon county, Virginia. He left there in 1846, and came to Wellsburg. Subsequently, he resided in Wheeling, and then in Washington, Pennsylvania. He has been married six times, and five of his wives are dead all but one having died of his wives are dead, all but one having died under suspicious circumstances, and three of them under circumstances that were exceedingly of For the murder of his sixth he is to suffer death on Thursday. Sheriff Ciuley will himself do the act of execuuon, and has, we need not say, peremptonly de-clined the services of the only man who has ap-plied for the "jeb." The man was a negro. The gallows will be erected on Wednesday, in the jail

This morning, by courtesy of Warden Scandrett, we paid a visit to the prisoner in his cell. A gentleman for whom Lane had formerly corked was visiting him, and the prisoner was a triffe more sociable than usual. He asked several considerations rine more sociable than usual. He asked several questions concerning the old place and old acquaintances, and seemed considerably interested. To the other visitors he was, as usual, civil and reserved. He expresses no hope of pardon sufficient nerve to go through the terrible ordeal before him unchaken and unfaltering. He reiterated his innocence, and denied emphatically the storage of the sto some of the statements made concerning him. We hear he denies totally some of the points that are undoubtedly facts. During his conversation with the gentleman mentioned the prisoner became visibly affected for a few moments; but raide from this we saw no symptoms indicating that he realized his situation, except that once he swept a rapid, terrified glance around the cell, looking at each person with a kind of swift, dumb appeal, like a frightened animal.

A CLEAR SWINDLE.

Agents for Indians That Have Become Extinct, The Washington correspondent of the N. Y. Herald contains the following statement, which llustrates fairly the system of frauds practised in he Indian bureau : The tribe of Delaware Indians is wholly extinct, and has been since April 10, 1867. At that date the tribe numbered, all told, less than eleven hun-dred. About one thousand of their number moved from their home in Kansas to the Indian Territory, north of Texas, and became incorporated into the Cherokee tribe—became Cherokees, in fact and in law. The remainder were naturalized as citizens of the State of Kansas. o that, as I have already stated, the Delaware ribe became wholly extinct on the 10th of April, 867. Now, it may or may not astonish taxpayers to learn that a Delaware Indian agent has been drawing his salary from the national Treasury up to the present time, and is likely to do so for some time to come. The fortunate incumbent is a warm friend of Senator Pomeroy. President Grant, not being cognizant of the above fact, nominated an honest Quaker friend to the place; but he was rejected by the Senate, and the ever taithful Pomeroyan holds on to his sineeure. I don't know exactly what the place is worth, salary and perquisites, but it is regarded as one of the fatter cert. It is alleged that large quantithe fattest sort. It is alleged that large quanti-its of supplies are bought annually for Indians that have no existence whatever excepting on apropriation bills. Certain it is that we have a belaware Indian agent in the pay of the government, when there is really not a Delaware Indian on the face of the earth, the tribe being wholly x tinct.

THE FRIENDS AND THE INDIANS. Opposition to Grant's Indian Policy— Kansas and Nebraska Refuse ts Sur-render Their Share of the Spoils.

The Washington correspondent of the Herald ays:
There is considerable ill feeling among the Senators and members from the extreme North-western States about the President's appointment of Quaker Indian agents in those States. It appears that the Senators and Representatives from Kansas and Nebraska, learning of the President's intention to appoint the Quakers, alled upon him and extracted a promise from ion that he would not appoint Quakers for the adian agencies in their respective States. He orther agreed to allow them to select the men whom they wished to nave appointed. With this understanding, and happy in the belief that whoever else might suffer Kansas and Nebraska would not be inflicted with the Quakers, the Representatives of the two States left the Executive presence. That was between ten and eleven o'clock in the morning. About two o'clock on the afternoon of that same day the President's private secretary brought to the Senate a batch of nominations. among which were the Quaker Indian agents To the utter surprise of the Kansas and Nebraska men, the list included appointments for all the Indian agencies in those two States. In self-defence, if not out of retaliation, these agents were promptly rejected by the Senate. The injured Kansas and Nebraska men again called upon the President and remonstrated with him, at the same time reminding him of his with him, at the same time reminding him of his promise. Grant, however, was mad; he was inexorable, and said he would appoint other Quakers for those rejected, and the Senate might reject them again if they chose. He wanted to carry out his own policy about Indian matters, and he thought it would succeed best in the hands of Quakers. What especially provoked the Nebraska men was the fact that one of the parties removed to make room for the Quakers was a man removed to make room for the Quakers was a man who had been commissioned by President Grant only a few weeks before. Thus far the Kansas and Nebraska Senators have been unable to make the President relent.

The New Scat of War-Government Canards. Havana, Saturday, April 24, 1869.—The Spaniards are evidently becoming aware of the fact that summer and the rainy season are fast approaching, and that something must be done by main strength to change the present uncertain state of affairs and to fix on a place which may be called the seat of war, and also a base of operations. Puerto Principe has until now been the Richmond of the war. The Cubans have tried as well as they knew how to take it, while the Spaniards, with great tenacity, have refused to give up, and still not only hold the place but are actually sending cut forces to points on the north and outh coast to escort conveys of provisions back. An army of about 8,000 Spanlards, under the command of Letona, is now massing in Nuevitas; their first object will undoubtedly be the reconstruction of the railway, which will enable them to remove the troops quickly from the coast and to use the 2,000 men who are now engaged convoying provisions to act against the enemy. Judging from past events, they will undoubtedly be successful in their attempts, and will clear the neighborhood of Puerto Principe of insurgents. The Havana journals will publish glowing accounts of battles won, and of deeds of herelsm performed, and probably will make the announcement that the insurrection in that part of the island has been completely deeds of hereism performed, and probably will make the announcement that the insurrection in that part of the island has been completely juelled. The Spanish population all over the island will join in the chorus of the Diario and other journals in singing hosannah and hallelujab, and everything will wear a rose-colored aspect for two or three weeks, when the lull and then the reaction will set in. The troops will remain stationary in some tewn or hamlet, and will make occasional sallies, and kill a few insurgents. Then all of a sudden the wipoped and dispersed Then all of a sudden the whipped and dispersed rebels will appear a hundred or more miles from the then seat of war, will levy contributions, burn plantations, cut off communications, increase their numbers, and be ready to commence the same game over again, while the Spaniards will have filled the hospitals, done a great deal of hard work and gained nothing, not even glory, for there are no fights. The Spaniards call the Cubans cowards, and say and publish that they slivays run from the troops, but forget that everything is fair in long and war and that that everything is fair in love and war, and that the Cubane are victorious whenever they run away. Their principal weapon of offence and defence is this same running away; they use up the Spaniards and save themselves. The treops find no enemy to fight, but the Cubans cause them severe losses by sickness, and at the same time destroy the energy and morale of the Spanish soldier, who does nothing but march and who gets disgusted at a war in which there are no enemies and there is no fighting. The plan pursued by the Cubans is the only one which can insure them success.—N. Y. Times.

PHILADELPHIA, April 28 .- To the Editor of the PHILADRIPHIA, April 28.—To the Editor of the Exering Bulletin: Some papers to-day publish an article from the New York Sus in which it is said that Mr. John Russell Young fleeced me of $1,000. This is wholly untrue. Never, directly or indirectly, did I loan money to that gentleman or any one on his account, or at his request or instance.

Such is my respect for him and his abilities, that I would be happy at any time to give him any help if he required it. Mr. John D. Stockton, a friend, for whom I have a great regard, did twice or three times during the past six months borrow from three hundred to one thou-sand dollars of me, but he always promptly repaid t within a few days, and he has not owed me for long time.

He always borrowed on his own account, and not on account of any other. This I would not no womention, but he states so himself in his paper to-day, and the article in the Sun asserts that had been fleeced by Mr. Young for the Morning I will conclude by saying that my loans were
