Originally the Secretary of the Treasury was authorized to redeem these certificates by the issue of an equal amount of greenbacks. But the law which was passed to restrain Mr. McCulloch's experiments with the currency-forbide, expansion and contraction alike. Hence the redemption of the three percents must be made with money which is now in circulation. If Secretary Bontwell is digesting any such scheme secretly, and for the purposed of astonishing the country by his thancial sagacity he is playing into the hands of the gambling cliquies of Vall street, of whom he promised to steer clear. It was alleged by Ellenger that he and his brother read on a releasement of which his brother were on a passenger car, of which Stiles was conductor, and that when on South Second street they were forcibly ejected. The defence developed this state of affairs: Sevedefence developed this state of affairs: Several months ago, Mr. Stiles, while on his car, was assaulted and terribly beaten by Ellenger and a crowd of "roughs," and in the course of the assault Mr. Stiles was robbed of his watch. He accused Ellenger of the theft, and weeks afterward Ellenger, who became a fugitive immediately after the occurrence, was arrested and tried. Last week when Ellenger and on the car he revived the occurrence, was arrested and thete. Last week when Ellenger got on the car he revived the old difficulty by sneering at Stiles in regard to the watch. The defendant also alleged that the two Ellengers persisted in standing and obstructing the car, and when requested to take a seat refused; they were then ordered to leave the car, and smoon their refusal. Mr. leave the car, and, upon their refusal, Mr Stiles put them both off. On trial.
