HAID ON SANSOM STREET HORSE JOCKEYS.

Complaints have been made that Sansom street, between Eighth and Ninth, was made a regular "outside board" for the sale of horses and vehicles of all kinds, to the detriment of and vehicles of all kinds, to the deviation of the Bazaar, and the annoyance and disgust of people residing in the neighborhood or doing business there. The affair has grown to such proportions as to become a positive nuisance, the street being blocked up with such a miscellaneous collection of horses and vehicles as to make it altion of horses and vehicles as to make it almost impassable. Some remedy was necessary most impassable. Some remedy was necessary, and the authorities were called upon to apply it, and orders were some time since issued for the arrest of all persons who brought horses and carriages to be sold in the street. This morning the High Constable, with a strong force of police, dropped in on Sansom street while the "board" was in brisk operation, and made a haul of all such property offered, for sale, except that of some Sansom street while the "board" was in brisk operation, and made a haul of all such property offered for sale, except that of some few lucky fellows who managed to escape in the confusion. The owners were also taken in charge, and the whole assortment of noble and sorry-looking steeds, dilapidated wagohs and one or two fine carriages were brought down to the Central Station, where the vehicles and nags were ranged along the gutter on both sides of Fifth street, reaching down to Library street. Of course such an unusual thing as a procession of policemen in carriages attracted a large crowd, who were by no means sparing of comments upon the condition of the gobbled property and the action of the police. The noble steeds were in various conditions, some pulled with fire and vigor, while others looked as if they might do good duty as hat-racks.

Their names are as follows: B. A. Sullivan, Elias Bower, Jno. Maguire, Geo. Callahan, Geo. White, Louis Rocksberry, John Derr, James E. Simmons, Joseph Jackson, Wm. Meade, Louis Garside, Thomas J. Crout, Henry Faren and Philip R. Theobald. William Meade, James E. Simmons and Thomas J. Crout were discharged. The rest were compelled to play

Messrs. FARREL, HERBING & CO., 629 CHESTNUT Street, Philadelphia. GENTS: A persistent but unsuccessful effort was made on the night of May, 29, 1869, to drill the Bankers' Chest received from you a few months ago.

From facts that have come to our knowledge. it is evident that the attempt to open it was renewed on Sunday evening following. Finding all efforts to drill it useless, the effort was then made to break the lock. The hammering was heard by parties in the neighborhood for several hours, but supposing it to arise from the railroad men replacing a defective rail, it excited no alarm. The tools, with the exception of the drills, were left. It is evident that they were not only well prepared. but perfectly familiar with the construction of your Chest. That they failed is another evidence that your Bankers' Chests are what you claim for them—Burglar-Proof.
