ANOTHER RAILROAD ACCIDENT.

An Extensive Smash-up on the Erie Road.

(From the New York Times of to-day.)

A fearful accident occurred at the Passaic bridge, on the New York and Erie Raiday, at 7.40 o'clock on Saturday evening, which, most miraculously, was attended without loss of life, though with considerable destruction of property. It appears that a Western-bound stock train, to which was attached engine No. 155, took the switch just previous to arriving at Passaic bridge. Next passed the lightning train, and following came No. 3 Paterson train. While the other two trains were passing, Mr. Roses-bridge superintendent, was standing at the enterend of the bridge, and as a schooner had been in waiting, his assistant commenced to turn off the upper or northern side of the bridge, when the freight train headed with engine No. 155 and twenty-five cars came thundering down. Mr. Rose, who was on that side of the bridge, commenced to shout and threw his hat high up in the air, which An Extensive Smash-upon the Erle Road was on that side of the bridge, commenced to shout and threw his hat high up in the air, which attracted the attention of the engineer, Ryan, and as the engine came on to the bridge, he and the fireman jumped off. On sped the train, and over went the engine, forty feet down; next came the tender, which, throwing a half somersault, struck her stern against the opposite abutment, and there rested; finally came the contractions one after another, crushing site abutment, and there rested; finally came the empty cars, one after another, crushing and grinding, until fourteen of them had completely filled up the chasm, and the fifteenth, for want of space, was stopped on the track.

Ryan, the engineer, was a new man on this section of the road, and he and the fireman have skedaddled, under the belief that an employe had lost his life. At the time the locomotive went over the draw, a brakeman was-ontop of one of the freight cars; but he made a sudden break for the rear, and as one after another went down he leaped onward, and thus saved himself. Mr. Terhune, a merchant of Jersey City, who stood below, just in range, says that the noise was the most terrific he had ever heard; and by subsequent testimony it appeared that the crash was heard at Ruther-ford Park Hotel, and below, three miles from the scene. Fortunately, nobody was killed, or even injured.

Thousands of people visited the scene yesterday. The Westward-bound drawbridge was smashed beyond repair. The Eastern-bound track was so far repaired that the Parish and terson train was passed over last night, and arrived here two hours late. The through trains went up to Piermont, and from thence came down to Jersey City over the Northern

A young man named Strappe died at Bellevue Hospital yesterday morning under circumstances that throw suspicion so strongly upon one Dr. Amand, of Bleecker street, that a warrant for his arrest has been issued. It appears that Strappe, being ill, obtained some medicine from Dr. Amand, which produced a frightful pain in the stomach, and on consulting another physician he took an emetic. A portion of the matter emitted from his stomach was analyzed and found to contain Sheel's green, an active poison.

An Old Negro Woman Released from Slavery. [From the Chicago Post, June 18.]

A reminiscence of Southern barbarism and defiance of law was brought to mind lately in this city, in the person of an old negress of 68 named Rebecca Whale, who for nearly seventy years has served under a family named Cole years has served under a family named Cole-man, living hear Lexington, Ky. Ever since the Proclamation of Emancipation has the poor woman been defrauded of her rightful ilberty by the continued because and described liberty by the continued baseness and deceit of those who impiously laid claim to her body and soul.

The woman was born on the Coleman estate,

The woman was born on the Coleman estate, and was, until a short time ago, held in bondage by James Coleman. In 1825, she married George Whale, and had two sons and two daughters. These were separately sold "down South." Her husband died, leaving then but one girl of twelve years, named Alice, with the mother. In 1847 she, too, was sold into Louisiana. The Colemans, of course, sided with the rebellion at its breaking out, and with the rebellion at its breaking out, and their property was confiscated. They removed further inland, taking Rebecca with them, and further inland, taking Rebecca with them, and even when peace came taught her that she was still a slave. Alice followed the Seventy-second Illinois from New Orleans, and finally settled in Chicago, where she married David Payne, a liberated bondman. Long search showed her brothers in business, in Ohio and Kentucky. Her mother was at last found to be still in Kentucky, and in bondage, and to her the daughter went, found her drudging for the Colemans, and living in a miserable hoveinear by, in rags, with nothing but a bundle of straw for a bed, the only reward of her long servitude, and brought her to Chicago, and the reunited family are now living at No. 123 West reunited family are now living at No. 123 West Polk street. Her son-in-law has, by industry, laid up treasures on earth, and the old lady is at last enjoying her long-denied freedom. The other daughter is still unheard from.

FACTS AND FANCIES.

-Macaulay was not always as polite as he was witty. He was at one of Rogers's breakfasts outo, when the majority of the guests could talk about nothing except a fall of houses which had recently occurred, and which was supposed to have suggested an incident in one of Mr. Dickens' novels; but a small minority listened to a fivent and prolive cident in one of Mr. Dickens' novels; but a small minority listened to a fluent and prolix lecture on philosophy from Miss Martineau. Weary of both, Macaulay suddenly repeated Dr. Johnson's couplet, from his enumeration of the plagues of London:

"Here falling houses thunder on your head, And here a female atheist talks you dead;" and, having thus relieved his emui, left the table.

SATURDAY NIGHT MARKETS.—It is possible that many of the numerous readers of the that many of the numerous readers of the Evening Bulletin are not aware that in certain localities Saturday night markets have become an indispensable institution, and a great convenience to the industrial classes who receive their weekly wages upon closing their labors on each Saturday afternoon. Three of these markets are located in the southern part of Philadelphia, the principal one being the Washington market-place, public property, extending from Third to Fifth, on Shippen street.

This location is contiguous to two of the steamboat ferries which connect Philadelphia and New Jersey, affording admirable facilities for fresh supplies of vegetables from the last-named place. The scenes on Saturday night at this market-house are curious and interesting. Periods the public lamps, the butchers ing. Besides the public lamps, the butchers dealers, hucksters, truck-farmers, peanut and dealers, hucksters, truck-farmers, peanut and ice-cream venders, and fish-mongers have their own flambeaux, which cast a reddish glare upon all surrounding things. To take a "bird's eye view" of the entire scene through the long range of the markethouses, the spectator will be astonished at the gay and cheerful aspect. Myriads of lights are continually bobbing up and down, as some enterprising butcher is exhibiting his beef, veal, pork or mutton, and extolling their excellent qualities, or as some dealer or local farmer is displaying the vegetable productions "fresh this very evening from the garden." Every now and then the ear is saluted with cries of venders: "Ere's yer pea-nuts, only five cents a pint!" "Lemon ice cream, and vanilla too!" "Oranges! who'll buy?" "Fish, fresh fish!" "Lemonade!" and many other similar ejaculations in all tones of many other similar ejaculations in all tones of the human voice, from the husky basso to C in alto, add a refreshing liveliness to the business.

Besides this, at one point, a one-armed or one-legged organ-grinder is receiving odd pennics, to the tune of "Sherman Marching Through Georgia," and another is deing the same thing at some other point, to the refrain of "Old John Brown." Carts, wagonsgo-carts, wheelbarrows, stands crowd the vicinity of the market-houses—all attended by hardworking, industrious; clever people, anxious to turn a penny, which, in its turn, must be turned over to somebody else. The market generally ceases about the midnight hour, and the butchers, hucksters and dealers put out their lights, pack up and go home. It cannot be definitely ascertained how much money changes hands at this place on a busy Saturday night, but the amount is variously estimated from twelve to fourteen thousand dollars. The establishing of markets on Saturmated from twelve to fourteen, thousand dol-lars. The establishing of markets on Satur-day nights does away with the necessity of hold-ing market—on—Sunday morning, as was the case for many years "down town." The Sunday morning mar-ket at the present time is principally for the sale of catfish and eels, which are caught during Saturday night. These fish are so much in demand that the Sunday morning market is frequently over by six o'clock.

frequently over by six o'clock. Anniversary Celebration.—The Independent Order of Druids is celebrating its twenty-fifth anniversary to-day, by a pic-nic at Washington Retriat. The Order is a benevolent one, and is composed almost entirely of Germans. It has seven encampments in Philadelphia; one at Lancaster, Pa.; one at Columbia, Pa.; three in Baltimore, and three in St. Louis. When the procession reached Third street and Givard avenue the members of the Order and Girard avenue the members of the Order were joined by thrir families, and cars were taken for Washington Retreat, where the day s to be spent in various amusements.

THE WORK OF INCENDIARIES.—The loss by the burning of the carpenter shop of Stanton & McGarvey, at Twenty-third and Market streets, last night, is $6,000, and the insurance $1,400, in the Ætna, of Hartford, Conn. The flames were kindled by a gang of incendiaries who infest the neighborhood. While the fire was at its height these same incendiaries took from the West Philadelphia Hose Comstreet wharf, on the Schuylkill, and dumped it overboard. Then they returned and with knives cut the hose of the company so as to make it useless. Previous to the breaking out of the fire, the alarm-box at Twenty-third and Chartmat expects was hovelen open by the rese Chestnut streets was broken open by the ras-cals and the works broken so as to prevent an alarm being promptly given.

Model Street-Paving.—The intersection of Dickinson and Ash streets, in the First Ward, has been substantially covered with the Belgian pavement, under the direction of Mr. Mahlon H. Dickinson, Chief Commissioner of Highways. All the coal ashes that formed the bed of previous pavings were entirely removed, bed of previous payings were entirely removed, and screened grayel to the depth of fourteen inches substituted. The paying is perhaps the very best in the city. The place occupied by the intersection was, a few years ago, about the centre of a large area of marsh, whereon rail and reed bird were shot in great numbers at high and low water. He came here yester-day, and whilst going up Catharine street, above Seventh, his attention was attracted to above Seventh, his attention was attracted to the door of a house near by, which was stand-ing ajar. Charles quietly opened the door and slipped into the entry, and finding no one within earshot, he took from the rack a hat and coat, sneaked to the door and took a sur-vey of the surroundings; then he bundled up his plunder and walked into the street, and then into the clutches of a policeman, who took him before Alderman Dallas, who bound him over for trial. him over for trial.

THE STREETS, INLETS AND GUTTERS.— Special Policeman Andrew Noble, detailed by Mayor Fox to look after the condition of the streets, this morning presented to his Honor a lengthy report, setting forth that portions of Essex. Cadwalader, Montgomery avenue, Marsellis and Alder street; are reeking with filth, and that American street is piled full of school at cortain points; that numerous inlets ashes at certain points; that numerous inlets are choked up, and the condition of the gutters all over the city is deplorable, inviting disease by the offensive smells they constantly

SUNDAY NIGHT PASTIMES .- Last night- a number of men, among whom were Henry Cornell, David Barclay and Albert Gaw, went to the public house of Jas. G. Smith, on Delaware avenue, above Walnut street, and de-manded—admittance.—They—were—refused, whereupon, it is alleged, they assaulted Mr. Smith. The parties named were arrested and taken before Alderman Carpenter, who held them to answer.

Rowdies Captured.—A gang of rowdies have, of late, taken possession of one of the corners at Thirty-first and Market streets, and have amused themselves by discharging firearms, swearing, and insulting females. Yesterday the Sixteenth District Police inade a raid on the corner-loungers, and arrested six of them. They were fined by Alderman Maull.

A GENUINE FRAGMENT OF THE TEMPLE AT JERUSALEM.—We have been shown a frag-ment of limestone which possesses a very peculiar interest, as it has never seen the light, in all probability, from the time of the destruc-tion of the capital of the Jews by Titus until tion of the capital of the Jews by Titus until very recently. It is, in fact, a fragment of the walls of the Temple at Jerusalem, a trophy of the energetic and intelligent explorations now being made in the holy city by a party of the Royal Engineers under the direction of some English archaeologists. The bit in question was dug from beneath the Harem Enclosure, under the portal known as Robinson's Arch, at a depth of as much as eighty feet beneath the present surface of the pavement. Our Consul at Jerusalem, M. Victor Beauboucher, received this earnest of an interesting enterprise from Lieut. Charles Warren, of the Royal Engineers, for a gentleman of this city, Royal Engineers, for a gentleman of this city, to whom the specimen was directed by the English officer. DARING ATTEMPT TO ROB HERRING'S

Patent Franklinite Banker Chest.

PERRYSVILLE STATION, Penns. B. R.,

June 12, 1869. Messrs. FARREL, HERRING & CO., 629 OHESTNUT Street, Philadelphia.

GENTS: A persistent but unsuccessful effort was made on the night of May 29, 1869, to drill the Bankers' Chest received from you a few months ago. From facts that have come to our knowledge, it is evident that the attempt to open it was renewed on Sunday evening following. Finding all efforts to drill it useless, the effort was then made to break the lock. The hammering was heard by parties in the neighbor-hood for several hours, but supposing it to arise from the railroad men replacing a defective rail, it excited no alarm. The tools, with the exception of the drills, were left. It is evident that they were not only well prepared, but perfectly familiar with the construction of your Chest. That they failed is another evidence that your Bankers' Chests are what you claim for them-Burglar-Proof.

Respectfully, yours,
J. BALSBACK, Agent.
