I feel it to be my duly to inform you of the great benefits one of the members of my family received from the use of your ZINGARI BITTERS. One of my daughters was troubled for a long time with all the ills consequent upon the stoppage of the menses. She was pale, emachated, spiritless; in fact, a general wreck. We tried quite a number of dac-tors, many home and advertised remedies, but no benefit was derived, finally i induced her to try your BITTERS, and after using it but a short time, the catanenia were restored, and her general health has already wonderfully improved. The infittuation of mankind is marvelons. Men c The initiatiation of manking is maryonal. So good, sound sensely to in, of visit which diffy districts of country thirling the hot sublice months, without using a single precaution to ward, of disease. They, breathe min matter atmospheres and drink polsoned waters, but never provide an antidore against the deadly fevers that lurk in the air and float in the water. No man think himself in danger, but anyone , can readily see, that they are pursuing a suicidal course. Thus we find that whenever any of our friends are about to move into a fever country, all make haste to advise him to be sur and take with bini a reliable untidote like the ZINGAR BITTERS, for example; but its one seems, to think it necessary to apply this advice to himself. Thousands of people annually sacrifice their lives, by eghet, many more shake with the ague, burn with the er, are robbed of strength, broken down in spirit, fever, are robled of strength, broken down in spirit, emachated in body, so that they are uscless, burdensome skeletons. Yet many will reap harvests of sore affliction, disease and death if they fail to use the proper precaution to preserve health. Medical science and the experience of mankind have rendered nothing more certain than this, that the juices of heibs properly propared are the natural defences against malarions discases. As a safeguard against opidemic and endemic maladies generated by minenia, and sun-heated waters, no medi-cine has yet been discovered that in certainty to prevent diseases or efficacy in curing when once contracted, can in any degree compare with the GREAT ZINGARINI plant, discovered years ago by Cheopsus, the great All the known remedies were familiar to Dr. Cheopsus, a had used them in his practice in the Valley of th C. came almost the only remedy for mularious fevers. A few years ago this medicine was introduced to the American public in the form of the ZINGARI BIT-TERS, a pleasant and an agreeable liquid, but in not th slightest degree an intoxicating beverage. It is a gentle stimulant, but not an intoxicant. No one, therefore, needthesitate to introduce this article into his family for daily use during the seasons when the danger" greatest. Its usefulness as a domestic specific cannot be over es timated. In cases of the stomach, sudden spasms, colic hysterice, lassifude, nervous headache, and innumerable other little ailments that occur in every family, it is a sovereign remedy. This Bitters is especially adapted to soothe and ton the stomach, and every one knows that as long anth stomach is in a healthy condition no disease can effect a lodgment in the system. The digestive organs, when vigorous and in a normal condition, perfectly dissolve and assimilate the food, so that the strengthening and building up clements can be appropriated to all the the suce of the body. But if food is not digested, there i no material supplied to replace the natural weste of the system. The great value of the ZINGAIRI BITTERS lies just in this fact, that it keeps the digestive organs h tone, or speedily corrects then when deranged. Chills and fever are the pests of many communities, administered with perfect safety to all who need invision ants. Its increasing popularity and its extensive use, and its spperior qualities, detarmined by the most varied experiduce, is the strongest evidence of its utility.
