NEW YORK, June 25.-Colonel Ryan, who made such a daring escape from the deputy marshal, is believed to have taken a tug, with a large portion of his Cuban command, and the street, so that we shall doubtless witness the lacteal financial process repeated several times before the advent of the new fiscal year and the inanguration of the new plan of the Treasury bring calm to the money market. Commercial paper is only nominally quotations. The fallure of a prominent produce house is reported this afternoon with heavy limbilities.

The foreign exchange market was dull until late in the afternoon, when a better inquiry stiffened rates at the best of the figures which have prevailed in the recent inactive period. The decline in gold was not sufficient to stimulate purchases, and the foreign market was marshal, is believed to have taken a tug, with a large portion of his Cuban command, and sailed for Cuba or some point out of reach of the Marshal. The remainder of his expeditionary force will probably leave to-night. Lieutenant-Colonel Michaelovsky and Captain Clancy were arrested by the Marshal last evening. Colonel Courrier was brought before Commissioner Shields yesterday, with his hands manacled, and was remanded to jail, being charged with assisting Ryan to escape, stimulate purchases, and the foreign market was favorable to the production of bond bills, while legitimate buyers would prefer waiting for to-morrow, steamer day. These facts encourage the suspicion that the bills bought were $15,000. Peters was released on giving $7,000 Deputy Surveyor Lewis J. Kirk and Charles F. Kane, Inspector of Court. bills.

The other branches of business were more or less affected by a change in the English money market, the Bank of England directors having at their meeting this morning reduced the discount rate to 3½ percent. This alteration was more visible in consols than in American securities, which, in the London market, hesitated until

F. Kane, Inspector of Customs, went down to lower Quarantine on Wednesday, in the revenower Quarantine on Weinesday, in the revenue cutter Una, Captain Lay commanding, in pursuit of smugglers. After cruising about a short time their attention was arrested by a suspicious looking craft, which they approached, and found to be the British alteration was more visible in consols than in American securities, which, in the London market, hesitated until late in the afternoon, when five-twenties advanced to 30%. The first effect on the home market was simply to keep-prices firm, but as the day wore on-the heaviness of the gold market induced lower quotations.

As a sequence of the reduction of the Bank of England rate of discount a great deal of interest centred in the Gold Room, where a large party were selling on the strength of the news, but the buyers were in many instances strong houses, and the price was forced down only as far as 136%. The fact would seem to indicate that the "bull" side of the stock market were buying gold to keep up prices; for the two markets have lately greatly sympathized, and the presence of the agents of some heavy stock operators in the Gold Room to-day seems to give color to the surnise. In fact, it has become almost a matter of necessity on the part of the stock cliques to keep up the premium; for the course of gold and stocks had been regarded as identical during the recent money stringency, and a decline in one was sure to demoralize the other. The fact may be important also as showing the real drift of the present speculative feeling in the latter and in forcing the prominent operators to show their hands. The highest price in the forenoon was 1372 and the lowest at the board 136%. From this latter flagure there was a recovery to 1372 under large purchases, the strength in exchange being used to assist the upward movement; but the final price was 13674a137, when bonds came to 80%. The officers board-the vessel and asked for the manifest, which was produced by the second officer in charge, the Master being absent. Suspicion was excited that there was an attempt at muggling, and search was accordingly insti-uted, which in a short time resulted in the scizure of 75,000 cigars found secreted in com-partments evidently constructed for the pur-pose of concealing merchandise. The men on board, of course, affected total ignorance. The Revenue Officers put their prize aboard the cut-ter and returned to the Custom House, where-the cigars were safely deposited yesterday. This is such a flagrant violation of the revenue laws, that, besides the forfeiture of the cigars, a heavy fine will be doubt be invested and a heavy fine will no doubt be imposed upon the vessel. The same officers seized 5,000 more cigars yesterday, which altogether will amount to about $12,000 in value.
