We have the following news from Havana:
The military operations as reported, are of the same indeterminate character as heretotone. The appearance of a body of insurgents in Colon, between Palmillas and the city of that hame, has created considerable alarm emong the planters, as some of the most important plantations on the island are in that coulity. Palmillas is but 125 miles from Hamana and but six miles from Macagua, the present terminus of the railroad. The press here reports an engagement between the former two places, in which four or five insurgents were killed. "The Pole" is known to be in the vicinity with 1,500 well-armed men. The Diario reports that a small column while marching in the jurisdiction of Colon captured two spies, who were immediately shot. A gentleman from that locality states that one of these was an innocent ploughman, taken from the field and slaughtered because he did not know where the insurgents were. A telegram from Lesca to the Captain-General, dated the 23d, contains all the information furnished us through officinsurgents were. A telegram from Lesca to the Captain-General, dated the 23d, contains all the information furnished us through official sources of operations in the Cinco Villas. It says: "The military commandant of Sagua informs me that Captain Iriate has beaten a numerous party of insurgents on the Gonzales cattle farm on the Santos road, causing them fourteen killed and capturing fifty-four horses, sundry arms and war materials." The fact that the line has been down for the past two days doubtless accounts for our having nothing more of the same stereotyped character.

The arrest of the Cuban Junta in New York has vied with the anticipated arrival of De Rodas as a subject of conversation in the city during the week. The more intelligent, who are few, give it the importance it deserves, while the mass were jubilant or depressed in accordance with their sympathies. Many of the Spaniards considered it a prelude to sending the entire body here for trial, and it was seriously stated that the flagship Gerona and the iron-clad Victoria were to be sent to New York to bring them hither. Indeed, it is reported that several Spaniards proffered the request to the Captain-General that war vessels should be sent for that purpose. It is doubtful, however, if so great stupidity can dwell even in Spanish minds.

The Spaniards give Minister Roberts credit for, what they deem, this masterly stroke, and it has given rise to the following telegrams

REPLY.

WASHINGTON, June 20, 1869.—Senors: I beg of you in my name to make known to the Spanish residents there that I feel grateful from my soul for their patriotic felicitation, and to add that they will always find me ready to sustain the national integrity in the Island of Cuba, and to defend with dignity the flag of our dear Spain. Lopez Roberts.

Evidently the Spaniards consider that Lopez Roberts holds your administration by the nose. The investigation in the murder of Mr. Robinson, of Matanzas, by the volunteers of Corral Falso, is progressing. A brother of the victim was recently taken on board the British iron-clad Defence, at the former place, he fearing violence from the volunteers. A riot between some volunteers and the peasantry recently occurred in Wajay, a few leagues from this city. An affray took place, in which sparsaff were wounded. The affair would seem to have no political significance.

General Puello, late Commanding General of the forces operating in the jurisdictions of Santi Espiritu, Moron and Remedios, arrived here on the 20th, he having been relieved by General Lesca. He seems to have retained the good will of the Spaniards, as he was serenaded in Trinidad and has not been molested here. He had an interview with General Espinar soon after his arrival, in which he represented the imperative necessity for reinforce-

The Captain-General has received the following telegram, dated Madrid the 22d:

His Highness, the serene Regent of the kingdom, orders me to manifest to your Excellency that he appreciates, in the most cordial manner, the felicitations your Excellency sends him on your own behalf and that of all classes in that island. He is gratified at the favorable news made known to him and hones favorable news made known to him, and hopes from the patriotism of the troops, volunteers and others, that they will continue, with in-trepidity, in their work of pacification, which he doubts not will be very soon attained in the whole territory.

THE INDIANS.

Reported Views of General Sherman-Indians Off their Reservations to be Treated as Ontlaws.

[Editorial Correspondence of the Lawrence (Kansas) Republican.]

Washington, Sunday, June 20, 1869.—In a former letter I intimated that I might give, more in detail, General Sherman's views as to the means for preserving peace on the frontier. His policy is characterized by that directness, force and eminent practical sagacity that govern him in all his public and official acts, whether as the heroic leader of an army in its magnificent march to the sea, or as the head of a military department or bureau in time of peace. Sherman says the four great Indian reservations are well defined and marked out; that upon these the Indians must be colonized, where, if the "Government chooses to feed where, if the "Government chooses to feed them with sugar-plums," to use his own ex-pressive language, it can do so; but off from these reservations they must be considered as outlaws, and to kill a member of these wild, hostile tribes off these reservations is not to be considered murder, and the party killing need not wait for an overt act of arson, depredanot wait for an overt act of arson, depreda-tion or murder to have been committed in order to justify a premature and sum-mary sending of the wandering nomad to "the happy hunting-grounds." The fact of his being off the reserva-tion is prima facie evidence that he means murder, and in self defence the white settlers, whether as individuals or as organized, bands murder, and in self defence the white settlers, whether as individuals or as organized bands, are justified in killing such Indians so, roaming about the country without any "local habitation or a name." With the present diminution of the army it is extremely difficult to spare any troops from the east to protect the frontier, but if General Schofield shall certify that the troops under him are inadequate to protect the exposed frontier, authority will be given to raise and equip volunteer militia. In addition to this, Sherman thinks the Sheriffs and other police officers in the frontier counties should at once organize a force under their command to act as a police force for protection, and to cooperate with the a force under their command to act as a police force for protection, and to cooperate with the Government, but acting practically inde-pendent so far as their own movements are concerned in the wiping out of all Indians who may be seen within their precincts. In other words, the Plain Indians have no right who may be seen within their precincis. In other words, the Plain Indians have no right to be within the geographical limits of Kan-sas, and, if so found, can be treated by the po-lice force, by the citizens, by the military, by everybody, as public enemies.

The Tailors and their Advertisements An English paper says:

What will be the next art invoked by advertising tailors? They seem to be going the round of the muses. One has employed poetry, and another has just taken to portraiture. A volume called the "Illustrated Fashion Book" contains, we are told, the portraits of "thirteen young princes, from four to sixteen years of age, two learned divines, and twenty-two eminent poets and painters." Each of these distinguished persons is, we gather, represented as if issuing from the tailor's slop, wearing some particular garment which he is supposed to have just purchased. In the present confused state of the law we do not know whether this is libellous; but it certainly seems hard, for example, that Sir Edwin Landseer should be handed down to posterity as a man whose choice was the "New Albion Overcoat, 21s," and yet be without a remedy. Moreover, it is not easy to see what principle of selection is adopted or what is the affinity between the man and the coat in each case. The "two learned divines" are, indeed, managed in a way that shows some sense of theological perspective, for while the Bishop of London has a "clerical frock suit at 66s.," the Rev. Newman Hall is turned out with nothing but a "clerical overcoat, 25s." But what can be the meaning of investing Mr. Robert Browning with a "professional Oxonian," or Mr. Tupper with a "Yachting suit?" The only case in which the coats appear to have reference to the circumstances of the wearer is that of the Prince of the Asturias, who gets the "sac overcoat," a most ungenerous allusion to the way in which his family has been treated by

Ancient and Modern Billiard Playing The games and appliances of the modern billiard room are of comparatively recent adoption, though the sport is of respectable antiquity and may be traced to one of the several ball games practiced by our remote ancestors. The side stroke, the caramole, or third ball cuetips, slate tables and india-rubber cushions are recent improvements on the billiards of a century since; and to each of these innovations considerable opposition was offered by the vet-eran players of George the Third's time, who feared-that-"science" would suffer from every diminution of the material obstacles to the attainment of precision. Only a few months since "The Old Soldier,"—an old professional player who began his career as marker at Bath—observed to Mr. Roberts, "Before 1 enlisted, and went to India, none but persons of rank, or high connection, played billiards ten years later, on my return, every street had its room, and every hotel its public table; the players were 'mixed,' certainly, but a hundred times more numerous." The players were indeed "mixed," as the Old Soldier suggestively observes,—two chief elements of the mixture being the rascality of sharpers who haunted the public rooms for the sake of nefarious gain and the helpless simplicity of raw boys who, in the recklessness of youthful dissipation, pitter their honest experience against the fraudulent craft of professional gamesters. The evils of the old-billiard-room justified the abhorrence in which it was held by anxious parents; and it was not till society had taken the game from the public rooms and planted it in domestic life that it began to acquire the good name and favor it now enjoys in the majority of prosperous English households.—Roberts on
