HOU Daniel M. Fox. Mayor of the city, it Hon. Daniel M. Fox. Mayor of the city, in receiving the statue, said:

No more pleasureable task has fallen to my lot since I have entered upon my official duties than the one in which I am now about to engage. To be the medium of receiving, on behalf of the authorities of our beloved city, this beautiful statue, constructed in commemoration of him who, under God, in the struggling days of the republic led forth the struggling days of the republic led forth the similes of the patriotic fathers to battle and to victory, and who was among the foremost of those who framed the Government of our country, is an honor which I most highly estimate:

The monument is a beautiful one, and will be an ornament to the city.

Its location here is peculiarly well selected; it is proper that the statue of Washington should be placed in front of and command the entrance to that venerable place where the great patrios was wont to enter, and especially so in the discharge of duties incumbent on him in connection with the advent of the nation. Its presence here will be a constant reminder to all of the words of wisdom he has left for those who should come after him, to study and to profit by; and if, as it may seem to some minds, by occurrences of the past, that the immortal patriot has been forgotten, and the story of his deeds for a time laid aside, this monument will bring to the people of this city, a fresh recollection of what it cost our fathers to win the liberties with which God has so richly blessed us, and it is to be hoped it will inspire us, and those who shall follow us, through all coming time, with a renewed determination, in a correct and upright citizenship, to maintain them pure and unsullied, as they were originally given us. The monument is a beautiful one, and will zenship, to maintain them pure and unsuined, as they were originally given us.

The day set apart for the unveiling this stately gift is most appropriately selected. No more fitting occasion, in the whole calendar of days, could have been designated than that which commemorates the Declaration of Independence—the one which we now, in these dependence—the one which we now, in these ceremonies, so fittingly celebrate.

And, above all, the fact that this munificent And, above all, the fact that this munificent project should originate with and be carried to its successful completion by the dear boys and girls of our city, yet among their books, with the studies of the great and good before them in their everyday tasks, thus carrying into practical life the patriotic lessons taught in our public school system of education, adds an our public school system of education, adds a crowning charm to the occasion.

In the name and on behalf of the authori-ties of the city of Philadelphia, I thank you, my dear children, for this beautiful gift, and you also, gentlemen of the Association, for your efforts in so successfully carrying out your efforts in so successfully carrying out the laudable movement of these youthful

To the President and Members of the Association of the Soldiers and Defenders of the Wir of 1812: The Executive Committee beg leave respectfully to report that since our meeting on the 22d of February last, but little has occurred in our affairs requiring special notice. We made the most vigorous efforts in our power, by petitions and otherwise, to induce Congress to pass an act for the relief of the relief of the soldiers of the Wor of 1812 who are in necessitous circumstances, but thus far without success. Each branch of the National Legislature, at different times, passed a bill with that object; but without concurrent action, no beneficial result has been accomplished. Whether anything will over be done, we cannot venture to predict. Although not absolutely without hope, we confess that the prospect of success is not very encouraging. In the meantime-our old comrades are rapidly passing away. At our meeting on the 8th of January last fifteen deaths were reported, and on the 22d of February eleval.

Mr. Childs's Excursion for the Ledger

Attaches.

Yesterday was a gala day to many in Atlantic City. Aside from the pleasant characteristics which go to make up a pleasant time to the sojourners at that beautiful. "City by the Sea," and the usual observances incident to the national holiday, the interests of the occasion were largely enhanced by other features which made the day eminently attractive. The grand excursion given by George W. Childs, Esq., the generous and gentlemanly proprietor of the Public Ledger, to the numerous employes of that establishment, was signalized as the most successful and satisfactory of the season. At twenty-five minutes past nine o'clock in the lishment, was signalized as the most successful and satisfactory of the season. At twenty-five minutes past nine o'clock in the morning, the train, consisting of twenty-six cars, and filled with fifteen hundred human beings, all specially invited for the occasion, started from Cooper's Point, Camden, for the shores of the "deep blue sea." This mammoth train was drawn by two locomotives, and as it passed through Haddonfield, White Horse, Longacoming, Atco, Waterford, Winslow, Hammenton, Egg Harbor City and Absecum, it excited the admiration and applause of the populate, and was, in several places, saluted with the usual explosive material at the command of the patriotic. At Ashland, the residence of Mr. Henszey was magnificently decorated with flags and other paraphernalla of patriotic mandat various other points along the route the rear of musketry, pistols, fire-crackers, &c., was heard above the deep rumblings of the rolling train. The country looked beautiful, and rich fields of ripening grain almost "ready for the renper's gathering hand" waved like coming and retreating ripples on the bosom of a sylvan lake, while the crops of growing corn seemed to look up and smile at the fostering hand of Providence. The day, growing corn seemed to look up and smile at the rostering hand of Providence. The day, growing corn seemed to look up and shined the fostering hand of Providence. The day too, was serene and invigorating, just such a day as was calculated to give appreciation to the pleasures in store for the light-hearted and happy throng who were thundering over the iron track toward the "mighty sea," an institution which about one-half of the number had never beheld. Beck's Band had been engaged for the occasion, and as the train passed point after point, some of the excursionists could hear a passing strain which, was fortunate enough to escape being knocked into "pi" by the dense clouds of dust the train "kieked up," but as a general thing the "harmony of the band was absorbed by the dust" long before it could reach the ears of one-half the musical critics on board.

Arrived at Atlantic City, the train stopped in front of the splendid new Sea View House, erected especially for the accommodation of excursion parties, and the disembarkation commenced. This presented a scene of animation and interest which has not been witnessed at that place before. Men, women and children emerged from the cars, like the long train of emigrants moving across a prairie, on board. children emerged from the cars, like the long train of emigrants moving across a prairie; with but one objective point in view, and that was a room to dust in, wash, comb and spruce up for dinner. But, soon the spacious halls, rooms, &c., were filled to overflowing, and the cry was, "Still they come!" The ladies were-furnished with all necessary appliances, so soon as the excitement had subsided which such an immense crowd had produced upon the sensitive nerves ment had subsided which such an immense crowd had produced upon the sensitive nerves of Mr. Konigmacher and his house-keepers, and the gentlemen were met with attentive waiters, dust-brush in hand, and shown to the wash-room where they soon rid themselves of the dust that had accumulated in their serve and man their hands and their ears, eyes, and upon their hands and

But one motive now seemed to actuate every one. That was to make each other as happy as possible, and to see who could get a seat at the first table. But, by a wise arrangement of Mr. Childs and Mr. Muckle, which was faithfully carried out by the proprietors and the fully carried out by the proprietors and the servants, the ladies and children were seated servants, the ladies and children were seated first, and they filled the capacious dining room to its utmost capacity. After the ladies had finished, the tables were immediately surrounded by those of the sterner sex, and the eating was kept up until nearly the time had arrived for returning home.

The bathing was grand, and many enjoyed its luxury to their hearts' content. One of the most pleasant features of the whole occasion was that not a single individual of the whole hifteen hundred who availed themselves of Mr. Childs's invitation became in the slightest degree affected by a too free indulgence in intoxicating drinks. Hence, no accident occurred, and no one was in anywise endangered. About 3 o'clock half the dining room was About 3 o'clock half the dining room was cleared of its tables, chairs, &c., the movable partition walls put up, and the lovers of Terpsechorean exercise commenced "tripping the light fantastic toe," to the "sound of flutes and soft recorders," if trombones, big drums, cornets, piccaloes, horns, bassoons, &c., can be thus designated. Whilst this was going on in one part, the hungry were satiating their appetites in the other, and "all went merry as a marriage bell.

In half an hour the multitude were comfortably seated, and, at twenty minutes past seven, they were again on their way home, invigorated and retreshed by their visit to the sea.

Everything passed off pleasantly, nothing occurring to mar the happiness and pleasures of the day. The whole thing was a complete success, and it must be a source of gratification and delight to Mr. Childs to feel and know that he has thus contributed so much towards cementing the ties of friendship between himself and those in his employ. It is an exhibition of those characteristics which are not measured by moneyed considerations, are not measured by moneyed considerations. and which will find their reward in the affections of the beneficiaries.
