Iceland for the Americans. Some years ago, says the London Saturda crice, the Icelauders were officially declared friends of the human race" in general, and therefore to be looked upon as neutrals in all warlike proceedings. It seems that an at-tempt is now likely to be made to induce them tempt is now likely to be made to induce them to become friends to the American race in particular, but whether the attempt will meet with success appears somewhat proble-matical. What is certain, however, is that "a report on the resources of Iceland and Greenland," dated 1868, has been compiled for the government of the United States by Mr. the government of the United States by Mr. Benjamin Mill Pierce, and that report appears to have been drawn up with the express view of throwing light on the subject of a proposed purchase of those dependencies from Denmark. It is very possible that Denmark may care for them as little as Russia cared for Alaska. But in the present case the wishes of the peo-ple whose allegiance it is proposed to transfer seem to deserve to be consulted. According to seem to deserve to be consulted. According to the author of the report, the Icelanders, who have long been complaining of the way in which Denmark neglects them, are looking hopefully forward to a union with America. The latter part of his assertion appears to be about as well-founded as is his calculation that the island, which now yields a bare existence to 70,000 souls, would, under American management engily support a million. The report to 70,000 sours, would, under American management, easily support a million. The report goes on to say that the acquisition of the island "is a question of vital magnitude" for the American nation, but that it is a question to the American interest that it is a question. which can easily be solved, as the island is geographically "an insular dependency of the North American continent."

The Icelanders themselves seem to know nothing of this intended transfer, but it can scarcely be carried into effect without their consent being first obtained. If Iceland were a mere province of Denmark, it might be arbitrarily dealt with by the Cabinet of Copen. hagen, but it claims to be considered as a de-pendency with a Constitution and laws of its own. According to this theory the King of Denmark has very little more right to hand over Iceland to the United States than the over Iceland to the United States than the Emperor of Austria would have to make a present of Hungary to Russia.

Having protested vigorously, and without interruption, against the right of Denmark to treat Iceland as a mere province, one destitute of any independent political existence, the islanders will probably cry out loudly against the idea that it may be bartered away at will by the authorities at Copenhagen. What the Americans would do with the island, if they purchased it, is not very clear. On the occapurchased it, is not very clear. On the occasion of its being taken possession of by an erratic English captain, the English Government hastened to disclaim any desire to retain their new acquisition. Perhaps the American Government may be just as free from any longing after so distant an outpost. It is "a far cry" from Reykjavik to New York.

SPANISH BRUTALITY.

American Prisoners in Hayana. The following letter was sent by an American citizen, who is now in confinement in

Havana, to the Secretary of State:

NATIONAL PRISON, HAVANA, May 28, 1869.

—To the Honorable Mr. Hamilton Fish, Secretary of State of the United States of America: I hope you will excuse the liberty I take in addressing you, as I claim protection as a citizen of the United States. Although a Cuban by barth, I swore allegiance to the United States in the city of New York, at the City Hall, in September, 1867. I have been a trader between here and America in such goods as are commonly sold here, which to the best of my belief is termed commission business. I arrived here near the close of last year, and was taken a prisoner on the 15th of Havana, to the Secretary of State: year, and was taken a prisoner on the 15th of January, 1869, in the town of Guanabacoa, at January, 1869, in the town of Guanabacon, at which time my evidences of citizenship were taken from me. They also took from me my Freemason's papers, which I received in the city of Brooklyn. After taking all my papers they threw me into a dark, narrow cell, with the two men—Leon and Medina—who were garroted on the 9th of April, and I did not know but they were going to take me next, as I was in the same cell.

While in the cell a guardia, civile came in

I was in the same cell.

While in the cell a guardia civile came in and told me if I spoke a word that he would shoot me down like a dog. They gave me three trials. First, they tried me as a rebel, and sentenced me to the chain-gang for ten years. After passing sentence on me they found the charge had not been proven, so they sent me back to the cell. Second, they tried me on account of being a Freemason, and then sent me back to the cell. as a loafer, and they are keeping me here as such.

I have written to Mr. Hall, and also to Mr. Plumb, informing them of my situation. They told my friends that they were attending to my case. I have been 130 odd days in prison, and out of that fifty-five days in close confinement. Each time that they took me to the court-house they had me handcuffed. They charge me here seventy-five cents-per day for room enough to put my bed in to sleep, and also extra for my board.

also extra for my board.

I feel you will sympathize with me in my present trouble, and if there is any favor you can possibly show me it will be the greatest blessing you can confer upon me in procuring my release. I remain, your most humble servant,

Theodore Cabias.

John Brougham in California. On the evening of July 5-Independence celebration-Mr. Brougham made his first ap-pearance on the San Francisco stage, at New pearance on the San Francisco stage, at New California Theatre. The house was crowded. The best class of the population turned out to welcome the comedian. Mr. Seward occupied one of the private boxes. We read that the occasion was in every way pleasant. Mr. Brougham played Fitzmaurice in "A Gentleman from Ireland," and Micanber in "David Copperfield." The acting was excellent, the applause emphatic. One of the papers endeavors to present Mr. Brougham's speech, made whenhe was called out at the end of the first nieco:

first piece:

"Of course," said he, in answer to the demand, "I am expected to make a speech. I cannot call the situation I find myself in a novel one; of course, you are all well aware that I ought to be used to it by this time. went on with an amusing assumption of diffi-dence and hesitation, greeted at intervals by the hearty laughter of the audience, who readily saw and appreciated the joke. It was not, after all, so easy to put the simple matter of thanks in such language as it would be easy for him to utter, or pleasant for them to hear.

He thought when he looked at the magnificent rocession which celebrated the nation's anniversary, that such an insignificant indi-vidual as himself would be entirely overlooked vigual as himself would be entirely overlooked—submerged, in fact, in the continuous cataract of Chinese combustion; but he was happy to find that he had been mistaken. He was happy, to find himself surrounded by so many in such a beautiful theatte, a theatre managed by two capable and competent gentlemen—gentlemen from habit and instinct—and with a company account. managed by two capable and competent gen-tlemen—gentlemen from habit and instinct— and with a company second to none that he had ever met in either hemisphere. He again returned his thanks, and hoped that he would have other and greater opportunities of renew-ing the acquaintance thus pleasantly com-menced, when the periodical tornado of patri-otism would be over. otism would be over.

FROM NEW YORK.

NEW YORK, July 15 .- A tin box, containing $35,000 in bonds and stocks, was stolen from the Seamen's Bank for Savings, in this city, on Monday afternoon, by two men, who apparently called on ordinary business, but on departing carried the box with them. On Tuesday morning the cashier was notified that a box containing stocks and bonds to the amount of over $25,000 was at No. 15 Howard street, where it had been left in the entry directed to him. The returned bonds could not have been negotiated by the thieves.

Dudley Chittenden, a lad of seventeen, and W. H. Higgins, were before Commissioner Shields yesterday, on a charge of opening a Post-office letter containing five checks and a draft. Chittenden was accepted as a witness in the case for the prosecution of Higgins, but stated that he had himself obtained the letter originally, and had opened it, and that Higgins had finally arranged with him to obtain the reward for the return of the valuables.

The prosecution rested, and the case was adjourned till this morning.

Edward Jewett, of New Haven, while stoping temporarily with his family at No. 153
ixth avenue, shot himself yesterday through the brain, producing death almost instantly. He had been complaining a few minutes previously of an acute pain in the head.

The Metropolitan Board of Health held a protracted upon much business of a highly interesting character. In the course of a discussion esting character. Six deaths had occurred within a few days from this cause, and he therefore opposed the proposition to allow any vessel—from Cuba to come to the docks until he could be assured that such a proceeding would not jeopard the public health. having no sickness on board, should be allowed

Emil Butts was tried for the mur-der of Thomas Hughes, but was acquitted, it being shown that the act was committed in being shown self-defence.

CITY BULLETIN.

DANGEROUS .- Two or three years ago several persons were killed outright and others were crippled for life by getting jammed between brick-piles and passenger-cars on the public streets. The City Councils, in order to prevent a recurrence of such deplorable accidents, enacted a law providing that bricks should not be piled within a certain distance of the railroad tracks. The enforcement of the law prevented any accident, and the com-munity by this time has become lulled into security in consequence. But, in many instances, this law is violated, and unless the proper officers in the Department of the May-oralty see to it, some unfortunate creature will be mangled when least expecting it. In some parts of the city large brick piles are within a few inches of the track, and should some unfortunate passenger in a city railroad-ear harmen to leak out a part his arm agree. car happen to look out, or put his arm care lessly out of the window, he might suddenly lose his life or become a cripple.

THE JUNGER MAENNERCHOR.—This Society, which gained a prize at the Eleventh General Sängerfest now in progress at Baltimore, will return to this city this evening. A meeting of the associate members and friends of the So-ciety was held this morning, and arrangements were made for an appropriate reception of the singers. The half in Cherry street, above the singers. The half in Cherry street, above Fifth, is to be handsomely decorated, both inside and outside. The Society will be met at the Baltimore depot at 7P. M. by a large delegation on horseback and on foot, and will be escorted over the following route: Up Broad to Chestnut, down Chestnut to Fifth, up Fifth to Arch, up Arch to Eighth, up Eighth to Vine, down Vine to Third, up Third to Green, up Green to Fourth, down Fourth to Race, up Race to Fifth, and thence to the Hall. At the latter place a handsome centertainment will be latter place a handsome ontertainment will be provided. The prize won—a grand piano— will be brought along from Baltimore by the victorious singers. Velocifed singers.

Velocifed E.—Much complaint is made against the use of velocifiedes on the public highways in Fairmount Park, because the appearance of them at such places frighten horses. About the year 1804 or 1805 the City Councils enacted a law preventing the use of velocifiedes on the public highways. Any intelligent member of the Select or Common Convent of course can refer directly to the Council, of course, can refer directly to the page of the ordinance book containing the alutary law.

THE FIRE ZOUAVES.—The board of officers of the Philadelphia Fire Zouaves held a meet ing last evening, at the headquarters, Eighth and Vine streets, and received a report from the Committee on Summer Encampment. Th regiment will leave on the 31st instant for the encampment at Atlantic City, where it will remain for one week. A soirce militaire is to be given at the United States Hotel on the 2d prox., and promises to be a grand affair.

IDENTIFIED.—The body of the young woman found in the Schuylkill yesterday, as stated on the sixth page of to-day's BULLETIN, has been identified as that of Miss Mary Crowell. She resided on Eighth street, below Walnut. She has been distressed in mind for some time past, and there is no doubt that she committed

The deceased was an adopted daughter of David Crowell, residing on Wallace street, above Ninth.

LARCENY.—A German named John Smith entered a drinking saloon at Sixth and Lom-bard streets yesterday. He had a carpet-bag which he put down on the floor. After taking a drink, he discovered that his valise and a negro who had been in the place were miss-ng. The negro was subsequently arrested on the charge of larceny, and was sent to prison by Alderman Carpenter. His name is Isaac

THE SAENGERFEST .- The most of the German singing societies of this city which have been in Baltimore, participating in the Eleventh General Sängerfest, are expected to re-turn this evening. The members who re-mained at home have made arrangements to give the singers appropriate receptions.

GREY RESERVES ENCAMPMENT.-A detachment of thirty men started this morning for Cape May. The regiment will move to-mor-row morning at seven o'clock, taking with them four hundred men, accompanied by Mc-Clurg's Band, nineteen pieces, also a corps of BOARDING HOUSE THIEF .- A young man who gave his name as Henry White, secured boarding at the house of Henry Corner, at boarding at the house of rienry Corner, at 2008 Coates streets, a few days ago. This morning he disappeared, and it was then discovered that the trunk of another boarder had been broken open and robbed of a silver watch marked "C. P.," and a lot of clothing.

SUPPOSED ROBBERY.—A small iron safe, such as is generally used for the safe-keeping of deeds and valuable papers, was found this morning in Latimer street, between Sixteenth and Seventeenth, and awaits an owner at the Fifth District Police Station. The box bears the appearance of having been broken open and rifled of its contents.

Larceny of Shoes.—Win. Griffin (colored) has been committed by Recorder Givin to answer the charge of the larceny of two pair of shoes from one of the Baltimore steamboats lying at Chestnut street Wharf.

FATAL ACCIDENT.—About five o'clock yesterday afternoon, a horse attached to a wagon took fright in Atherton street, Second Ward, ran away, and dashed upon the sidewalk. The family of Mr. Wm. Hogan, consisting of his wife and three children, were sitting on the steps of their house, No.918, at the time. Mrs. Hogan observed the danger, and quickly pushed one of the children into the house. Before she had time to get the others out of the way the wagon struck the steps. Mrs. Hogan and the two children were knocked off and were run over. A little boy, Edward, aged three years, was so badly injured that he died this morning. Mrs. Hogan and the other child were hurt, but their injuries are not of a serious character.

Gambling and Betting.

After an interval of nearly sixteen years (says the London Daily News) the British Government finds itself engaged in a hot crusade against the evil of betting. We say the government, because the police prosecutions of which we read almost daily are not only too numerous, but extend over too wide an area to be referred to the discretion of one or two chiefs of police. For a long time it seemed as though the extension of education and the general progress of society were likely to abate and finally suppress the practice of gambling by a gradual and invigorated constitutional action, working a cure more thorough than could be hoped for from the application of external and local remedies.

The experience of the upper classes appeared to favor this view. We do not hear now of noblemen staking £5,000 on a single card, as Fox told Croker had been done in his day, nor of losing and winning £70,000 in a single night. Pitt went in and looked at this kind of life, and, as Wilberforce attested, displayed intense carnestness when joining in the games; but he perceived their increasing fascination, and soon abandoned them for ever. Wilberforce himself kept a bank "for one night only," and won £600, but the pain he felt at knowing that much of this money was lost by those who could not pay without serious inconvenience, cured him of the taste for play. Practical worldly sense in one character, and kindness of heart in the other, led to the same resolution. During the whole of the last century gaming of some sort was the ordinary amusement for both sexes in the best society and it was not uncommon to hire a professiona gamester to keep the bank at a private house for the evening. The deepest gaming that had ever been seen in England took place during the American war; but there was some very high play at White's and Brooke's for five year. preceding the peace of 1815.

So late as 1843 there were as many as twenty public gambling houses and hells in Pall Mall. Piccadilly, and St. James's, called into exist ence by the success of Crockford, who had then retired; but about that time many of them were suppressed. But long before that date society which fifty years before had been the occupa-tion of young and old, in and out of the season and in town and country. Between gaming proper and betting as it is practised with reference to horse-racing, the distinction is unessential; in each case there is a wager depending mainly on a chance. For the last twenty years the increase of race meetings and the increased circulation of newspapers which, for good or evil, augments every force at work in society have enormously stimulated the practice of betting, until it may be said that there is no place where money can be earned, Forrowed or tolen, where horses are not backed.

A Senator in Salt Lake City Pleases the Gentiles.

[Salt Lake City Correspondence Chicago Tribune.] Some considerations made a little speech of Senator Howe's, spoken last evening in response to calls from Gentile serenaders, peculiarly grateful to the feelings of the Gentiles of the city. No one expected anything so significant, and I only give a sketch of his remarks from memory. I shall be satisfied if I convey as good an idea of the life and humor of the speech as a skeleton does of the beauty; and grace of the human form. He said that this unexpected call found him in something like the condition of the new boy who, upon being asked to spell dog, began:

"Eh?" says the teacher. "D-" "Yes, that's it. D-A-"

"Tut, tut," broke in the teacher again.

"Well," says the boy, "I can't spell here, I haven't got the hang of the house." He couldn't speak here; he hadn't got the hang of the place. Neither was he in quite the same position as his friend (Seward) who had preceded him. He felt more like the New Hampshire Judge caught drunk in Boston, who didn't want his friends to hear of it because he had a character to lose. From all he heard and saw, this was as likely a place for him to lose it as he could find by traveling twice as far. Another difficulty that confronted him was what he heard of the faith of the Latter-Day Saints. He had been brought up in the falth of the early saints. But as he knew nothing of the former, and none too much of the latter, he couldn't well venture to discourse on the subect of faith. Again, it was said some gentlemen in the town had more than one wife.
["Oh, no; it's somewhere else;" "They're only women," &c., from the crowd.] He didn't know but he was a little weak on that point He had lived with one wife thirty years, and had sometimes thought that if he should meet others just like her he should go for them. But there weren't any like her; not one. He believed in one faith, one wife, and one baptism—didn't know as he quoted correctly, but it would answer his purpose. There was one thing, however, said the Senator, growing seri-ous—and he pointed over the crowd to the Seventh Infantry band dressed in full uniform, their instruments glistening in the light of the lanterns—there was one thing he knew all That was the colors worn by the genibout. tlemen who had given them so delightful a mu-sical treat. Wherever he saw them he understood that he was under the protection of American law. Not that it was their duty to make, to interpret or to execute that law; it was to interpret or to execute that law; it was theirs simply to remove opposition, to make a plain, broad, straight pathway through or over all that rose up against the authority and sovereignty of his country. This they would do in the future as they had in the past. In his younger days he had heard and read and the next work about the heart, and observed. thought much about the beauty and charm of blue skies, but within the last eight years he
