The Carrington Murray Difficulty ---Novel Scene in an Euglish Court of Novel Scene in an English Court of Justice.

On the morning of July 6 Lord Carrington was arraigned in the Marlborough street Police Court, London, to answer for an assault upon Mr. Grenville Murray, whom the accused taxed with having written in the Queen's Messenger certain articles reflecting discredit upon Lord Carrington's family. After the magistrate, Mr.D'Eyncourt, had decided to hold Lord Carrington to bail, and had amounced his decision. a scene occurred never before his decision, a scene occurred never before witnessed, says the Times, in an English court of justice. Mr. Newman, a solicitor, who had brought a large tin box into court, containing MSS, of the Queen's Messenger, was about to remove the box, when a rush was made simulmove the box, when a rush was made simultaneously from several parts of the court, and a dash made for the box. Mr. Newman, an elderly gentleman, threw his arms around it and called loudly for the police. The noblemen and gentlemen on the bench rushed forward to give assistance, and for a quarter of an hour a kind of free fight went on, sticks and fists being used, and from twenty to thirty engaged actively in the scuffle. The police were too few to be of use, but they exerted themselves vigorously, though they were puzzled to know what the aproar meant or who were the offenders. If they took hold of one they were told "I am the Duke of ...," and they were obliged to content themselves with marking the most active in the affray, and, when assistance came, in securing them.

Mr. D'Eyncourt ordered the Court to be cleared, but the row became so serious, and cleared, but the row became so serious, and approached so alarmingly near the seat of justice, that he left the Court. When something like order was restored, the Court appeared a little wreck. Chairs were broken as well as inkstands, the ink spilt over the desks and several hats trodden out of shape.

and several hars trouden out of single.

Mr. Giffard (of counsel) said, now they had got breath again, he had to ask that sufficient protection might be given to Mr. Newman to take away the documents he had brought to that Court under subpeena, which documents, by an exhibition of force unexampled in his experience of Police Courts, he had been nearly deprived of.

Mr. D'Eyncourt said he was happy to say such a scene was unexampled in his own experience.
Mr. Gill applied to have the box given into the custody of the police, the documents being the property of the proprietors of the Queen's Messenger, from whose custody they had been surreptitiously obtained.
Mr. D'Eyncourt said he should require Mr. Newman to give an undertaking that he would not part with the documents.

Mr. Newman said he had already done so.

Mr. Edmund Lewis applied to have the charge against Lieutenant Archibald Campbell, who was in custody for taking part in the riot, postponed. The application was granted, and the defendants were then released on bail.

FRANCE AND BELGIUM.

Solution of the Railroad Question---Text of the Protocol. The Convention settling the Franco-Belgian difference was signed on July 6, at Paris. The following is a summary of the protocol: The Liege-Limbourg Company preserves its autonomy; this is the main point. But a double international service will be established: one from Basle to Rotterdam through the Liege-Limbourg railways; the other from Basle to Antwerp, through the Grand Central network. Therefore the traffic from France to Holland through Belgium will be divided at a determined point, and the intedivided at a determined point, and the interests of the port of Antwerp are thereby protected. The direction of that traffic is regulated by the principal clause relative to the establishment of a transit international service, the details of which have been agreed to by the interested companies. The Belgian Govthe interested companies. The beginning for-ernment gives its sanction to the principles of those arrangements, and consequently waives implicitly the right of applying to the compan-nies called to profit by them, the stipulations of the law concerning railway concessions voted by the Belgian Parliament during the last ses-tern As to the Luvenhouse line it is not sion. As to the Luxembourg line, it is not comprehended in the preceding arrange-ments. However, the Eastern Company has agreed that the treaty relative to the working of the Ardennes line by the Luxembourg Company should remain in force. That treaty insures to the Company the transport of the ores, one of the principal elements of its traffic and which was to expire on the 1st of January It was the prospect of the ending of the treaty which had determined the Luxembourg

Company to code its network to the French To sum up: the cession treaties are shelved; the Belgian companies preserve their autonomy, and consequently remain under the Belgian laws concerning the matter. On the other side, the economic and industrial interestrate into the working of the lines are ests relating to the working of the lines are protected by an agreement which respects at once and in an equitable measure the preten-sions of the French and of the Belgian lines.

The President at Long Branch.

Long Brance, July 20.—The President and his distinguished company are spending a very quiet and apparently a pleasant time at this favorite resort. They take their meals in private, and walk, ride, drive, or sit on the corridors with perfect indifference and undisputed freedor. Last evening the President puted freedom. Last evening the President, accompanied by ex-Secretary Borie, visited Howland's House, and spent the evening in a very agreeable manner in the parlors of that popular resort for Philadelphians, listening to some exquisite vocal music furnished by the lady guests. An impromptu hop was got up in the evening at the Stetson, at which it was expected the President would be present. His absence was a sore disappointment to the numerous belies, who had arranged their toilettes with especial reference to the presence of the

with especial reference to the presence of the notable guests.

While I have been engaged in writing the above, the General has been enjoying a drive behind a team of sorrel horses, the property of Mr. D. C. Pettie, which have been placed at his disposal by their owner. The team is one of the fastest here, and the President, accompanied by Gen. Comstack, seems to have companied by Gen. Comstock, seems to have enjoyed the ride amazingly. As I write he is just starting in another direction behind another fast team. His friends here seem determined that he shall not want for recreation in that respect.

At the Committee meeting held last evening to arrange for the grand ball next Monday evening, in honor of the President, the following were appointed an Executive Committee to make the necessary arrangements and take charge of the affair. James Scligneau, Chairman; Lewis B. Brown, Secretary and Treasurer, and Messrs. D. C. Pettie, Senator Thomas Murphy, S. B. Driggs, W. N. Fleiss, Attorney-General B. H. Brewster, J. H. Davis, Geo. W. Childs, J. S. Abacasses and C. A. Stetson, Jr. The ball will be a splendid and costly affair. Among the guests to be invited are affair. Among the guests to be invited are Generals Sherman and Sheridan, and the Governors of New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania.

Gen. Comstock left here this afternoon for Washington, on important business intrusted to him by the President. A reception is to be tendered the President at the Stetson House on Thursday evening.—N. Y. Tribune.

Oppressed with Greatness.—The Russian journals bring us an account of a singular suicide—that of Komissarron, who in 1866 saved the life of the Emperor Alexander by knocking up the arm of the assassin Karakosow just as he was about to direct a pistol against the person of the Czar. The man who was fortunate enough to render this service to His Majesty was a working hatter, and was about thirty-five years of age. From this time out honors continued to rain upon him. For his plebeian name was substituted a noble one—that of Kostunski. He received an entailed estate, with all its privileges, was made Colonel of a regiment of the Imperial Guards, and a national subscription was opened for him, which produced nearly two millions of roubles. This favorite of fortune, however, could not stand the intoxication of his good hears at hearth was a substituted and the intoxication of his good hearth and the stand the intoxication of his good hearth and the stand the intoxication of his good hearth and the stand the intoxication of his good hearth and the substituted has the substituted and the same of the stand the intoxication of his good hearth and the same of th OPPRESSED WITH GREATNESS.—The Russian which produces nearly two millions of roubles. This favorite of fortune, however, could not stand the intoxication of his good luck, and he sought to counterbalance its giddy effects by another species of inebriety. The Cowardly Assassination of Colonel A. J. Haynes, [From the Memphis (Tena.) Post of July 18.1 Another of those most dastardly, assassing tions of ex-United States officers by rebel detions of ex-United States officers by rebel desperadoes, which have blackened the history of the Southso many times since the war occurred last evening at about 6.30 o'clock; at the little town of 'Marion, the capital of Crittenden county, Ark., which lies across the Mississippi from Memphis. Capt. A. J. Haynes, formerly, a gallant officer of the Third Colored Cavalry, was shot in the back and instantly killed, without a word of warning, by Clarence Colwas snot in the back and instancy killed, without a word of warning; by Clarence Collier. It appears that Cptain Haynes had just returned from a trip to Memphis, had stepped out of the hack which runs from Mound City to Marion, dropped into Justice Wilson's office for a moment, and started to walk home to his place, a mile or mile and a half distant. On the best of terms with all the citizens of On the best of terms with all the citizens of the county, he had no apprehension of danger. He had, however, barely turned the corner at Mrs. McAllister's, when Collier, who had apparently been lying in wait for him, came out from a grocery on the opposite corner of the street Haynes was leaving, and, without a word of warning, drew a bead upon him with a double-barreled shot-gun, and fired. The charge took effect in Capitain Haynes's left side. The assassin instantly discharged the contents of the second harrel into charged the contents of the second barrel into his back. The Captain fell upon his face a corpse. But the vengeance of the brutal fiend was not satisfied. He advanced toward his prostrate victim and emptied his revolver into his dead body, riddling it with balls. Two lodged in his head. The assassin coolly returned to the grocery whence he had issued to do his bloody work, received his coat, it is said, from the hand of Gilbert Dowell, mounted said, from the hand of Gilbert Dowell, mounted a horse, evidently prepared for the occasion, and rode out of town undisturbed. It is reported that, beside Dowell, John McClung, and Captain Click were in or about the grocery referred to during the assassination. These men are also reported as having left the town as soon as the excitement began to spread. The citizens rushed out on hearing the reports of the shot-gun and pistol, but had not recovered from their consternation ere the assassin was beyond their sternation ere the assassin was beyond their reach. The colored people, who were warmly attached to Captain Haynes, some of whom had served under him in the army, frenzied with rage, seized any arms at hand, mounted themselves as best they could and followed the trail of the murderer. They were out all night and are still hunting him in the cane-brake in the southern part of the county.

The Sheriff gathered a posse, armed them mounted them and started for the river, exmounted them and started for the river, expecting that Collier would attempt to effect a crossing to this side of the Mississippi. The whole county is on the alert, and apparently sincere in their determination that the cold-blooded murder shall not go unpunished. Parties from Jones's Landing, a small place about twenty-five miles below Memphis, on the Arkansas shore, report Collier as passing there, on a jaded horse, about 10 o'clock last night.

Clarence Collier, the assassin, is a young man only about 21 years of age, of slim build, weighing about 135 pounds, with black hair, dark eye-brows and a small dark moustache. As young as he is, it is, said that he has killed no less than five men. It will be remembered that young Bethell, a son of our well-known that young Bethell, a son of our well-known ettizen, P. C. Bethell, was killed by him a year or so ago. We are informed that Haynes and Collier had never had any hard words. Collier, having been connected with the Kuklux, as alleged, fied from the county when the militia came, but when the militia left he returned, and assured Haynes that he had returned to live peaceably with all men. The relations between them are understood to have been of an entirely friendly character. Indeed, we are assured that Captain Haynes was living on apparently the most friendly terms with all the citizens of the county. He interfered with no one, and since county. He interfered with no one, and since the advent of the militia was molested or hreatened by no one.

CHARGED WITH SWINDLING .- Robert Mc-Guiggan, aged 20 years, and James Hargraves, aged 44 years, were arrested yesterday afternoon, by Lieut. Jacoby, of the Schuylkill Harbor Police, and Park Guards Nos. 11 and 18 of Trenty Guth and Coates 18, at Twenty-fourth and Coates streets, upon the charges of swindling and peddling with-out a license. It is alleged that the accused were about Fai mount Park yesterday morning, offering for sale for three and four dollars rings which they declared were brought from Liverpool, cost £2, and guaranteed to be eighteen karat gold. A countryman bought two rings for seven dollars, and it was then found that they were worth only about five cents each. The attention of Lieut. Jacoby was called to the matter, and he followed the men, who were engaged in dividing money when they were arrested. Hargraves denied having any connection with McGuiggan, but when he was searched, six of the bogus rings were found in his vest pocket. One ring was found on McGuiggan. The prisoners had a hearing before Alderman Pancoast, and were each fined $50 for peddling without a license, and were held in $500 bail to answer the charge of swindling. were about Fairmount Park yesterday morucharge of swindling.

LARCENY.—Ann Williams was before Ald. Williams last evening upon the charge of larceny. She boarded with Mrs. Smith, at Third and New streets. Yesterday, it is alleged she took some clothing belonging to Mrs. Smith and pawned it. The pawn tickets were found on her person when she was arrested. She was held in $400 bail for trial.

The Stricets.—The approach of the Board of Health's pay-day is indicated by increasing activity among the street-contractors. Quite a number of streets have been cleaned within the last few days, and the brooms and scrapers are still briskly at work. The "no-work, no-pay" system operates admirably.

UNPROVOKED ASSAULT.—George Shaffer, while passing Otis and Coral streets, last evening, was attacked, without provocation, and was knocked down. Wm. Stroup was arrested upon the charge of having been the assailant. He was taken before Ald. Senix and was held in $1,000 bail to answer at Court.

Accident.-A horse attached to a wagon took fright at a locomotive, at Pennsylvania avenue and Green street, last evening, and dashed against a lamp-post. Mr. Thomas W. Price and daughter, who were in the carriage, were slightly injured.

Arm Broken.—Joseph McCarrity, eleven years of age, residing at 517 Chippeway street, was thrown or pushed off his step, by a companion, and had his arm broken in two places. He was conveyed to the Pennsylvania Hosephial
