THE TROUBLES OF SPAIN. Spanish discontent with the regency, and the general policy of the government at Madrid, hows itself in various ways, in Spain as well home has developed in a rising in favor of Don Carlos, as the rightful claimant of the throne. This created considerable alarm, and the government was obliged to resort to severe measures to suppress the various outbreaks. Telegrams from Madrid say that these measures have been successful, and a telegram from Paris, of yesterday, says that Don Carlos had ordered a cessation of the movement in his behalf, and that consequently his partisans were much discouraged.

feated, the Spanish people have no prospect of obtaining a King, or a stable form of government without a King. The resolve to create a egency was, at best, a pis-aller, and so was the strength daily, are especially opposed to a form of government which is anomalous, and which gives no hope of anything better.
