DESTRUCTIVE CONFLAGRATION

Burning of Patterson's Bonded Warehouse.

Twenty-five Thousand Barrels of Whisky Consumed.

LOSSES AND INSURANCES.

About seven o'clock last evening a fire broke out in the large brick buildings on Front street, above Lombard, well known as Patterson's Bonded Warehouse. These buildings were erected in 1854 by John Allen, builder, for Col. William C. Patterson. These buildings were divided into eight sections, lettered from A to H, inclusive, and having a front of 220 feet on Front street, and running back 135 feet, all seven stories high, except section H, which was six. Each was supposed to be completely fire-proof, and built with-out connection with each other, and therefore supposed to be perfectly safe from destruction by fire. The walls of the building were eighteen inches in thickness throughout. The partition walls were solid from the cellar foundation upwards, and the connections were by arched doors; but each one of them had solid iron doors always connections were by arched doors; but each one of them had solid iron doors always closed. Every window was protected by iron window shutters, and these were invariably closed at night. The building on the northeast corner of Front and Lombard streets (Section H) was used to a large extent for offices, and in it was contained machinery, thus reducing to some extent the capacity for the strenge of merchandise. On Lombard the storage of merchandise. On Lombard street, twenty feet east of Front street, the boilers were located. The machinery used in the building consisted of powerful elevators to hoist and lower goods; consequently the boilers were of much power. They were located beneath the pavement, or rather in the vault. The fire-room connected with the offices by steps. Between seven and eight o'clock in the morning these stores were opened, and they were closed at 5 P. M., a watchman being left in charge. In former days these stores were used principles. pally for the storage of sugar, molasses and cotton, but since the close of the war vast amounts of whisky have been placed in them by the United States Government and a number of individual firms. ORIGIN OF THE FIRE.

The fire originated in section H, which was at the corner of Lombard street. About 7 o'clock a large portion of the wall on Lombard street fell to the pavement with a loud crash, surposed to have been pushed out by the world the street flow. the weight upon the floors. The whisky stored went down with the ruins, and in a few moments a terrific explosion took place, throwing down every will of section H, scattering bricks, timbers, &c., in every direction, while the flames shot up in a solid body far above the surrounding buildings, creating a general consternation among the residents of the trighlerhood for it was soon removed. the neighborhood, for it was soon rumored that a number of children had been killed, and several men badly if not atally hurt. / Women were running around frantically to find children that had left their homes, but as those who were running the contract of the contract missing began to return the excitement some-what abated. The explosion of course set the entire contents of the warehouse on fire, and soon burning whisky ran down the gutters in Swanson street to Pine, and thence into the swer leading to the river, and in a short time an explosion took place in the sewer, breaking a portion of it, but not doing any very great damage; the time continued, however, through the sewer to the end of the wharf, which it set on fire, and came near firing a brig lying near the pier, but fortunately a steam tug happened to be close by, which towed the

When the wall on Lombard street fell, the roof was left hanging in position, but when the explosion took place, all the walls and the roof fell to the ground, exposing the walls of the next section, from the roof to the pavement. The bricks were piled 8 or 10 feet high in Lombard and other streets adjoining. The firemen were soon on the ground and worked with great zeal and energy, not only to check the flames pouring forth from the destroyed building, but to save the surrounding property, and at half-past eight o'clock it was thought the flames were under control, and that the other sections of the ware-house would be saved. In a very short time, however, the flames broke out in section G, one of the seven-storied buildings, and in a brief time the contents of the warehouse were one mass of fire, the flames shooting up far above the roof of the building, and lighting up the streets and buildings for squares around. Firemen and citizens who had not been apprised of the first fire now flocked to the scene, crowding the thoroughfares in that vicinity to such a degree that it was almost impossible to get within several squares of the scene of conflagration.

About 9 o'clock the fire had made its way to section F, reaching this building by the iron sheething along the edge of the roof, and in a very short time the side wall fell, and in a few moments thereafter the front wall came down with a loud crash, creating an in-

GENERAL ALARM. At 9.24 a general alarm was rung by order of Chief Engineer Downey, and at 9.40 this alarm was repeated by direction of Mayor Fox, who was upon the ground. The firemen from all sections of the city came upon the ground, and as the light made by the conflagration could be distinctly seen for many miles. gration could be distinctly seen for many miles, people flocked to the scene in large numbers. The crowd became very great, and all of the policemen held in reserve in the station houses were sent for. Ropes were then stretched across Lombard and Pine streets to keep back the spectators.

The flames continued to spread through the entire block of stores, and to burn furiously despite the most strenuous exertions on the part of the firemen. Section after section took fire, and when the interior had been con-sumed the walls fell in. About one o'clock this morning a very heavy shower of rain fell. This aided the tiremen materially, but This aided the firemen materially, but the flames were not got under subjection until nearly daylight. The fire was very far from being extinguished by that time, but it was under such control that the greater portion of the fire department could be dispornon of the fire department could be dis-missed. At noon to-day the fire was still burn-ing in the ruins of section H, and in a portion of section A which is still standing. All that is left of this fine series of stores is the front wall of section A on Front street and the walls of sections A and B on Pennstreet.

The estimated value of the warehouses destroyed is from $600,000 to $800,000. The structures are fully covered by insurance, but the names of the companies could not be

THE SURROUNDING PROPERTIES. Much of the surrounding property was in great danger, but owing to the exertions of the firemen and the insurance patrol, the loss beyond the warehouses is inconsiderable. The Country in a State of Anarchy. The Madrid correspondent of the N. Y

Times says :

The fact is, the country is in a deplorable state. Robberies, assassinations and mur-ders are of frequent occurrence. Yesterday in Madrid alone there were three robberies from the person during a public funeral given to Señor Aguirre, the President of the Supreme Señor Aguirre, the President of the Supreme Tribunal of Justice, and at the same time in a different part of the city there was two deaths from violence. Bands of armed robbers go up and down the smaller populations committing all sorts of ravages, some of these to the cry of "Vive Charles VII.," and others to the cry of "Vive la Republica," both which are supposed to be mere sham cries to create the confusion and disorder favorable to these simister plans. On Sunday cries to create the confusion and disorder favorable to these sinister plans. On Sunday evening one of these bands, composed of fourteen individuals, all well armed. entered the little bathing-place of Fuenta-Santa, in the Province of Ciudad Real. The first thing they did was to murder the two Civil Guards who were on duty. They then entered the little inn or hotel. In the dining saloon they were bravely resisted by Don Antonio Coco, a newly-elected Deputy to the Cortes, whom they also murdered, as well as a priest who joined him in the resistance. By this time some of the other guests who were in the place and the servants, arming themselves place and the servants, arming themselves with swords, pistols and other weapons, came to the rescue. A fearful conflict ensued, which resulted in the precipitate flight of the bandits. who succeeded in carrying two little girls of with them, one being the daughter of the murdered Señor Coco, and the other the daughter of Dr. Obon, of Ciudad Real. The accounts received do not speak of any casualties among the aggressors. The motive for the abstrac-tion of the children is unknown, except it be to exact a ransom. The whole armed force of Ciudad Real had set out in pursuit of the rascals, but at the last date had not come up

THE ENGLISH ROAT RACE.

Comments Upon the Harvard Crew and the Racing Prospects. [Fron the London Daily News.] When the men of Harvard stripped in New York, "the general verdict was, that if they lidn't win, it would take a good crew to beat them." We are not in the least inclined to doubt it. Four picked men, from four such doubt it. Four picked men, from four such States, will require an uncommonly good crew, indeed! Happily, there is a quiet little family party, a good deal out of the reach of "touts," seriously thinking the matter over, oar in hand, down Windsor way, and if these young gentlemen cannot win the match for us, we know not where else we should look. Let there he no earning or cavilling in look. Let there be no carping or cavilling in this matter. We must remember the exact position of the Harvard crew. It was puerile —but for the obvious good faith of the pro-posal, it would even have been impertinent— to challenge them to meet any great public owing club, recruited indiscriminately from parsmen of all districts. Our visitors come over here purely and simply as University men, to a contest with what England accepts as her best University crew. They have nothing to do with non-academical bodies. They were, no doubt, willing enough to include Cambridge in the challenge, had Cambridge thought fit; but the whole charm and spirit of their enterprise would disappear if they were to engage in miscellaneous contests with "all and sundry," no matter how eminent might be the clubs that invite them. It is essentially an University race; and this character should be most scrupulously retained. We cannot for a moment profess indifference as to the issue. It would be a poor compliment indeed—a false courtesy almost amounting to a rudeness—to tell these gentlemen who have crossed the Atlantic to meet us that we really don't much care who wins. We do care—and we hope, as we always expect, to see the glorious old dark blue shoot ahead, and keep ahead, of the stars and stripes; but we would rather the match were lost than that any susplicion of unfairness should attach to it, or any legitimate cause of complaint arise. If, as i is said, the contest will take place over the old course, from Putney to Mortlake, then we say, once for all, that better order must be once for all, that better order must be kept among the steamboats, or the result will be most disastrous. We are not thinking of the Cockneys who might get drowned; the visitors who urge steamboat captains to go at full speed under such circumstances are persons in whose fate we can have no interest. We are thinking of the cry that would be raised, not without reason to the effect that whatever have reason, to the effect that whatever chance I larvard might have had against Oxford on our unfamiliar waters was ruined by the crowd-ing of steamers and the crossing of barges. Better a dozen defeats than a victory so gained. For the sake of our own champions, not less than that of our visitors, we point out this danger in time to all whom it may concern.

The Junta and the Funds. The N. Y. A slight fracas occurred yesterday afternoon about 24 o'clock between an Irish gentleman, an agent of the Junta, and an Englishman, a spy of the Spanish Consul. The spy had been dogging the footsteps of the agent from No. 71 Broadway, backwards and forwards through several streets, when between Bowling green and Broadway, the latter furned through several streets, when between Bowling-green and Broadway, the latter turned upon the former, taxed him with being a spy, slapped his face, and put him to flight. What has been already said in the Tribune about an expedition being in preparation is receiving daily confirmation. The place of departure will be a certain Southern port, which, for obvious reasons, it is not thought proper to mention. An experienced Irish officer, formerly in the Volunteer Cavalry, is singled out as the commander. The seizure of the Spanish gunboats is still a subject of exultation among the Cuban leaders here. The Spanish Consul has yet in his employ several spies of different nationalities who follow the Cuban sympathizers, and strain every nerve to ascertain their intentions. The dissensions to accertain their intentions. The dissensions to ascertain their intentions. The dissensions if any such existed, between Schor Lemus and the Junta, are totally healed, and the cordial unanimity which pervades their counsels betokens success to their future under-

Philadelphia, August 5th, 1869. CARD.

The undersigned takes the earliest opportunity of assuring the business community of his ability to discharge all his obligations in a very short time. His asset exceed his liabilities by at least three hundred thousand dollars ($300,000.) In view of the extent of his loss (estimated at over $400,000) by the burning of the Penn Warehouses, yesterday evening; the induspones of a short time to enable him to settle with Insurance Companies, and restore his business to its former condition, will, we trust, not be thought unreasonable.
