MR LONGFELLOW.

Table of the contract of the c

Conferment of the Oxford Degree of D. C. L. upon the American Poet. L. upon the American Poet (From the Daily News, July 27) Yesterday, after a year's unavoidable delay ic degree of D. C. L. was conferred upon Mr H. W. Longfellow by the University of Oxford, at a convocation specially held for the purpose of adding the name of this most cherished of American poets to the list of those worthies whom the University delights to honor. It was only through entirely accidental circumstances that the author of "Evangeline" and the "Psalm of Life" was prevented a year ago from receiving in his own person this tribute to his genius and character of the great English-speaking race of the New World, who have recognized in him the true scion of a long line of intellectual ancestors in the Old Country. Mr. Long-fellow now joins a noble band of "Doctors," among whom several of his most illustrious fellow-countrymen have preceded him. He would probably have encountered a noisier, but certainly not a less cordial or enthusiastic, welcome at the hands of an under-graduate welcome at the hands of an under-graduate audience in the Sheldonian Theatre, in Commemoration week, than he did yesterday, when, in the depth of the Long Vacation, he was greeted by the smiles of a majority of ladies, Happily, an audience in which the gentler sex predominates would naturally respond with the most delicate and vivid symmetry to the interpretary of a next whose manly. pathy to the just praises of a poet whose manly strains are so pure, so tender and so refined, and in whom the chivalrous respect for all that is most dear and precious in "the-beauty and strength of woman's devotion," has found the sweetest of interpreters. Through Mr. Longfellow, as on former occasions, through Mr. Motley and Mr. Prescott in the field of history, our kinsmen beyond the Atlantic have paid us back in kind a part at least of the debt they owe to the literature of the mother country. Indeed, such writers as the present American Minister in England and Mr. Longfellow, make us debtors in our turn. Surely, if it be true that the whole earth is the tomb of illustrious men, it whole earth is the tomb of illustrious men, it is equally true that the light and warnith of a great productive mind and great communicative heart are the common heritage of all civilized nations. At any rate, a Motley and a Longfellow are as much a part of the literature of England as a Byron and a Walter Scott of the literature of the United States. Scott of the literature of the United States. And at a moment when some questions of the old and the new country are suspended rather than settled, as all good men on both sides must desire them to be settled, it is doubly pleasant to note how that inner sense of a common parentage, that strong family likeness, and those mutual affinities of taste and feeling, which survive all controversies and all separations, make all controversies and all separations, make themselves continually felt in many ways, whether in brotherly contest on the sea or on the river, or in the acknowledgment of re-ciprocal intellectual obligations, or in the exchange of University honors—and remind us on either shore of the great ocean that "blood is thicker than water," if not more

THE PORT JERVIS TRAGEDY.

Burial of Mr. Swinton...The Murderer in Charge of the Sheriff. Port Jervis, Monday, Aug. 9.—The funeral of Alexander Swinton, the victim of one of Warren Fellows' drunken orgies, was held yesterday afternoon. At 2 o'clock a large procession of the relatives and friends of the deceased assembled at the house of John D. Swiiton, his son, where the body has lain since the fatal occurrence, and, after appropriate prayers were made by the village clergy, proceeded to the Methodist Episcopal Unurch, where the funeral services were held.

FROM NEW YORK.

NEW YORK, August 10.—The case of John H. Pratt, the reputed Texan murderer and outlaw, came up before Judge McCunn, yes-terday morning, on writ of habeas corpus. The case being called on and the accused not being present, the Judge demanded that he should be produced, and adjourned the case until the afternoon. During the recess Commissioner Osborne, before whom the examination of the prisoner was pending, the examination of the prisoner was pending, ordered, as a matter of courtesy to the Court, that Pratt be taken before Judge Mc-Cunn, notifying the Judge that Pratt's examination was being held before him, the Commissioner. Upon the reassembling of the Court Pratt was present, and Judge McCunn remanded the prisoner to the custody of the United States authorities. The testimony against the prisoner is said to be overwhelming, and a requisition will be immediately forwarded from Texas for his rendition.

The President arrived in this city late yesterday afternoon, and proceeded at once to the residence of his brother-in-law, Mr Corbin. At twenty minutes past nin o'clock the President, accompanied by Secretary Fish and General Porter, left for Washington.

EMBEZZLEMENT IN CHICAGO.

A Sixty Thousand Bollar Transaction-Surrender and Confession. [From the Chicago Journal, August 7.]

Nearly six months ago some startling revelations were made concerning certain defalcations of one Charles Goodman, a young man who was at that time an employe of the Chicago Dock Company. Having served the company satisfactorily for some time Goodman had been promoted to the position of cashier, and, of course, he had the handling of considerable money. It was suspected for some time that Goodman was not rendering a strict account of his transactions to the company. Large sums of money strict account of his transactions to the company. Large sums of money went amissing from time to time, and the young man was at the same time known to be on terms of intimacy with one Michael McDonald, a notorious gambler of this city. Rumons were afloat that McDonald had won heavy sums from Goodman—as high, even; as $40,000 or $50,000—and his employers, on making inquiries into the circumstances, discovered a good deal more than they were willing to make known to the public. At length, however, the matter was so freely discussed that concealment became impossible, and in order to prevent the worst coase-quences to his victim, McDonald sent fine the extent of his defalcations were currently stated to be about $15,000, although it was generally believed that they amounted to a much larger sum Goodman disappeared, and from that time to the present nothing definite has been known as to his whereabouts. Pinkerton's detective force were put into operation, and he was followed supfrom place to place, but never caught. The decectives have been close on his track all the time, sometimes coming within a few days of him, and again arriving at one city only to find that he had just decamped to the next. About a week since the fugitive wrote a letter to M'Donald, in this city, stating that he was reduced to abject this city, stating that he was reduced to abject poverty, and begging the author of his ruin to send him some money. This appeal McDouald magnanimously complied with; but the young man appears to have tired of a vagaboud life and starvation, and vesterday, we are informed, he came back to Chicago, determined to make a clean breast of the whole transaction. He went to his old employers, it is alleged, and versuled to them the niture is alleged, and revealed to them the nature of his dealings with McDonald, who, it seems, has won from him from time to time at the gambling table various heavy sums, amounting in all to the sum of $50,000. The result was the arrest of McDonald last evening on a capias, to appear before the Su-preme Court to answer unto the Chicago preme Court to answer unto the Chicago Dock Company on a plea of trespass on the case to the damage of plaintiff in the sum of $60,000. He was just on the point of starting for Buffalo when the Sheriff arrested him, and he was lodged in the county jail. The Sheriff now holds him in bail to the amount of $28,000, which, it is understood, will be furnished by several personal friends of the accused.

CITY BULLETIN.

How a Robbery was Neatly Committed.

—A young clerk employed in a large business house on Market street, was sent to bank to make a deposit of $2,600. The notes were placed in the bank book, which he carried in make a deposit of. $2,600. The notes were placed in the bank book, which he carried in his hand, the ends sticking out so as to be readily seen. While on the way he stopped in front of the show-window of a store on Chestnut street, near Fourth, and stood there several minutes examining the articles there displayed. Three men were standing on the pavement, near the curbstone, in front. Presently, a genteelly-dressed young man stepped up behind the clerk, and very dexterously removed a portion of the money from the bank book. The thief acted well his part. He was observed by the three men, to whom he made certain signs, such as winking his eye, and making other motions signifying to them stockeep shady. This bare-faced effrontery threw the men entirely off guard, they believing that he was only playing a trick upon the unsuspecting clerk, whom they supposed to be a well-known acquaintance, probably a boon companion. This idea was quickly strengthened as the clerk started towards the bank, followed by the unsuspected thief, who turned round, and with a mischlevous smile upon his face, motioned to the men to keep mum. The clerk reached the banking-house and entered, and took his place in the line of depositors and awaited his turn. The thief, to throw off all suspicion, also entered the bank and the three men who had The thief, to throw off all suspicion, also en-tered the bank, and the three men who had also followed were now quite sure that everything was right, and that the individual who had so adroitly removed the money, as stated, intended it as a caution to his friend to be more careful in the future when conveying money to bank.

These men passed on up Chestnut street, and were soon lost to view in the busy throng. The thief, finding the coast clear, started down Chestnut street with his ill-gotten money. Finally the clerk offered the deposit, and was astonished to find it short nearly one thousand six hundred dollars. He was dumbfounded, and could not form the least idea how, when, or by what means this amount had disappeared. A thought occurred to him that it might have been left behind in the counting-house. This glimmering hope, how-ever, was of short duration. The parties directly interested at last came to the conclusion that a robbery had taken place, and the firm reluctantly entertained very strange suspicions against the clerk. He became melancholy, and his friends were apprehensive that he would commit suicide. The occurrence was made publicly known; the detectives recorded the principal points in their published police reports, through which light was at last obtained. One of the three men whom we have already introduced was a reader of the newspapers. He detailed, at the Central Station, the circumstances of the affair, much to the relief of the young man and his employers relief of the young man and his employers and thus the mystery and suspicion that rested upon the victimized clerk were dissipated by the light of truth. The thief was never positively discovered. The individual supposed to have accomplished this job, died in "Sing Sing" about five years ago. We were reminded of this robbery a day or two since, upon observing a young man carrying a large roll of notes in his hand, exposed to public view, while he was standing on the outside edge of a crowd, near Fourth and Chestnut streets, attracted there by the falling of a horse. attracted there by the falling of a horse.

New Banking House.—The Manufacturers' National Bank, which has been located for many years at the Northwest corner of Third and Vine streets, is about to erect a new banking house. CORONER'S INQUEST.—This morning Coroner Daniels held an inquest on the body of Joseph Brilinger, a German, who was found lying on the pavement of No. 10 South Tenth street, on Sunday morning last, injured to such an extent about the head that he died at the Pennsylvania Hausital an tho gard day. an extent about the head that he died at the Pennsylvania Hospital on the same day. The deceased had been boarding at the house of Joseph Schnell, No. 10 South Tenth street, since Wednesday last. Several witnesses were examined. The evidence showed that the deceased was found lying upon the sidewalk about 4 o'clock on Sunday morning. He had evidently fallen out of the window, but in what manner was not disclosed by the evidence. The man who occupied the same room stated that when he entered the apartment there was no person init. Samuel Hannifen and F. R. Farleigh testified that they took a drink with the deceased about half-past ten o'clock and then accompanied him to his room. That was the last seen of him until he was found on the sidewalk.

BREWERS PICKIC. The Iwentioth annual session of the Gambrians, Beneficial Society is now in progress at Engel & Wolf's farm. The Society is composed of the employes of the various breweries in the city. Previous to going to the festival grounds this informing. to going to the festival grounds this morning a parade was made. Ludwig Stein acted as Chief Marshal. The procession was led off by a cavalende, and among the riders was a representation of King Gambrinus. Then followed a long string of brewery wagons. The horses were decorated with small flags, and the wagons, were filled up in a manner to present the appearance of miniature gardens. Sitting among the trees and evergreens were the employes of the breweries dressed uniformly in white Some of the wagons contained women and

The procession was well arranged, and as it passed through the street attracted great attention on account of its novelty. At Engel & Wolf's farm the members of the Society assembled in large numbers, and are enjoying themselves in various amusements. various amusements.

A STRANGER LUSES HIS WATCH.-A coupl of men, strangers in the city, arrived at the Baltimore depot last evening, about 9 o'clock. They had no money, and, in order to raise some stamps, one proposed to sell his watch. At Broad and Fitzwater streets they met an, and entered into conversation with him. The sale of the watch was mentioned, and an offer of $7 for it was accepted. The fellow In handed over a bank note, saying, "Here is So, I will go into the tavern, get change, and give you the other $2" He went into the tavern, but that was the last seen of him by the owner of the watch. The latter then examined his bank note, and found it to be a $3 bill on the Bullion Bank of Washington, an institution which has been out of existence for many

Selling Lotter Policies.—Sergeant Heiss and four policemen of the Tenth District made a raid on a lottery policy establishment, No. 414 Thompson street, yesterday afternoon about four o'clock. They found Christian Renner, alleged proprietor, and his wife, Frederica, sitting at a table writing policies, and arrested them, as well as one white man and five negroes, who were there for the purpose of buying tickets. All of the books, papers, &c., in the place were taken possession of. The prisoners were taken before Alderman Eggleton. Mr. and Mrs. Renner were each held in $1,500 bail, and the others in $500 ball.

JUVENILE TILL-TAPPER.—James Gallagher aged fourteen years, was arrested yesterday afternoon by Lieutenant Gercke, upon the charge of robbing the money-drawer of a dry goods store at Seventeenth and Market streets. He was held in $600 bail by Ald. Beitler. he was need in $5000 ball by Ald. Bettler. A very small boy, who was in company with him, was discharged with a reprimand. These boys had a very ingenious plan for effecting a robbery. They throw each other's hats into a store and then run after them. As this appears very much like play, the attendants did not give it much attention, and when a good chance is presented the money-drawer is relieved of its contents.

ROBBING A DRUNKEN MAN.-John Taylor and David Beard were arrested this morning at Fourth and Shippen streets, upon the charge of larceny. A man who was drunk was lying on the pavement. He had $107 in his boot. The accused it is alleged, pulled off the boot abstracted the money and decamped. They were subsequently arrested. The stolen money. was not recovered, but on the person of one of the prisoners a bunch of keys belonging to the robbed man was found. The accused will have a hearing at the Central Station this after-

RECEIVING STOLEN GOODS.—Fred. Smith. proprietor of a second-hand shop, on Tenth street, below Locust, was arrested, yesterday. and taken before Alderman Williams, upon the charge of receiving stolen goods. On Satur day evening two boys were arrested for steal-ing tin and solder from Porter's store, Second and Arch streets. They acknowledge that they had sold the plunder to Smith, and some of the property was found in his store. The accused was held in $1,000 bail to answer at Court. POCKET PICKED.-J. Beazen had his pocket picked in Camden this morning, while enterng the cars to go on an excursion. The pocket-book contained $35 in cash and a promissory note for $200. MAD Dog.—A dog, supposed to be mad, after snapping at several children on Tenth street above Thompson, this morning, was killed by Policeman Knorr.

"RAILROAD COMFORTS."—The Philadelphia and Trenton Railroad Company have had placed in their cars running on the 12 o'clock midnight lines, to and from this city, "Reclining Chairs." These chairs are gotten up in a superior manner, being well upholstered, and are designed in a measure to take the place of those used in sleeping cars. It is a much desired comfort and convenience, and no doubt will be fully appreciated by the many travelers who will have occasion to use them.

LARGE FALL SALE OF BOOTS, SHOES AND BROGANS.—T. L. Ashbridge & Co., Auction-cers, will sell to-morrow morning, at 10 o'clock, by catalogue, at their store, 505 Market street, about 1,500 packages of boots, shoes and brogans, of city—and—Eastern—manufacture, to which the attention of buyers is called. Open—early in the morning for examination, with catalogues.

Eliza Leary was convicted of a charge of stealing a quantity of wearing apparel. She entered a dwelling and took the goods. Her excuse in Court was that she was very drunk, and did not know what she was doing.

A number of Aldermen were summoned into Court, this morning, to explain their neglect in regard to returning cases of prisoners committed for trial. Aldermen Tittermary. Shoemaker, Kerr, Benkert, Bonsall, and White, appeared, and all gave an explanation; some of the cases having been disposed of by the discharge of the prisoners. When there was neglect the Aldermen were instructed to at once make a return, in order that the District-Attorney might send the bills before the Grand Jury and have the cases disposed of.

Judge Brewster instructed the Aldermen to be more careful in the future, and to recollect that by their neglect they were doing great in-justice to the defendants.
