fat and prospered. It would be next to impossible for the imagination most fertile in wicked invention to con ceive anything more devilish and mischievous, or an evil that might be perpetrated with less fear of detection. The mainspring of the prett scheme is not to impose on the benevolence and credulity of the living, but to blast an vielify the character of the dead. To obliterat from the hearts of those who were nearest and dearest to him-the husband dead and buried -all kindly remembrance of him; to tear, as it were, from his poor honest body the white shroud in which tender hands had enveloped

it, and show him to have lived and died a traitor, a hypocrite and an imposter, false to that very last breath with which he bade his wife, his "only darling," farewell; and this may be accomplished is much more simple than vould at first appear. The prime condition of the impostor's success is that he must reside at ong distance from those it is his intention to dupe. The swindler lives in France or Germany, sometimes as far away as America. The first "move" is to look into the newspaper obituary notices for a likely victim. A gentleman who dies young, leaving a wife and a numerous amily to bemoan their bitter bereavement. Is not uncommonly the case fixed on. If, during is lifetime, he was a man who, from his sta tion in life, must have been tolerably well known, so much the better. It is a woman who writes the letter. She writes of course to the ndividual as though not in the least suspecting that he is dead. The following genuine copy o such a letter will, better than anything, illustrate the cold, cruel, subtle villainv essential to the success of the "dead man's lurk," as, in the rofession, it is styled : "My Ever-dearest Robert : It is only after en-
