Fortunately, he was that afternoon visited by a friend, to whom he told the story of his unsuccessful application and sad perplexity, who is mediately exclaimed, "Why not apply to the President?" The Colonel had but little hope, but, acknowledging that the plan was worth trying, drove with his friend to the White House. They were too late. It was Saturday evening, and Mr. Lincoln had gone to spend Sunday at Soldiers' Rest, his summer ratreat. This was but a few miles from town, and the Colonel's indomitable friend-proposed that they should follow him out, and they went. There was then a popular belief that that they should follow him out, and they went. There was then a popular belief that all the wronged, the troubled and suffering could find a refuge in "Father Abraham's" capacious bosom; a belief that was not far out of the way. Yet there were times when, overburdened, wearied, tortured, the patriarch longed to clear that asylum of its forlorn in the country of the way and dauble look it furnitudes.
