EVENING BULLETIN.

Monday, September 13, 1869. DEMOCRATIC DISINTEGRATION. Mr. S. Gross Fry, the Democratic nominee for City Treasurer, has yielded to the conviction that personal respectability is more valuable to any decent citizen than the emoluments of the most productive office in the gift of the people. He members of society. has done himself the honor to decline association with a ticket which his party presents for the suffrages of the people of Philadelphia, and

The withdrawal of Mr. Fry is, we presume, a strategic move on the part of the Democratic managers, but it is nevertheless to Mr. Fry's credit that he has been selected as the most respectable name on the ticket to break the line of the McMullin noninations. He is sacrificed, in the hope of shaming the rest of the ticket into following his example. He openly pleads that they will do so. His own withdrawal is of no value to the party unless the other nominees surrender to the demands of public decency.

The National Expenditures. [Special Despatch to the Phila. Evening Bulletin] WASHINGTON, Sept. 13.—The statement has been extensively telegraphed from here that the books of the Treasury Department show no such figures appear upon the books of the Department. The absurdity of such a statement will readily be seen by comparing it with the total amount derived from revenues during the year specified, which amounted to three hundred and seventy millions who hundred and seventy pringers, Sheep-Were dull and lower; 12,000 head arrived and which amounted to three hundred and seventy millions, nine hundred and forty-three thousand, seven hundred and forty-seven dollars and twenty-one cents. If the statement was true, then it would appear that there had been an increase in the total amount of the public debt during the last fiscal year of one hundred and eighty-five million dollars, which, of course, was not the case, but, on the contrary, there was a large reduction. The expenses in the various departments were reduced as follows during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1868: War, forty-five millions; navy, five millions; civil and foreign intercourse, seventeen millions. The interest on the public debt also decreased ten millions. On account of a large increase in merchants and the business community, whose leg-interests are directly dependent upon a healthy w-of the money market. Southern securities were dull and without feature except for the special tax bonsd of North Carolina, which declined, and the Tennessees, which were active and higher.

The wild speculation in the Gold Boom, the uncasiness and activity in the money market, and the general bear movement of the week led to a decline of about two percent, in the leading issues of Government bonds. On Saturday, under a femporary change in the rate on call and through a feeling that the "bear" movement had touched bottom there was a reaction and prices were steady.
