COUNTRE NO. AND THEE COUNCEL. To the Editor of the London Times: The editor of the Westminster Part of deserves a medal from the Pope for his observes a medal from the Pope for his observes of all exercise of private judgment whatever. His last is a reiteration of his first communication, with the addition of invective and other seasoning, intended to cover in poverty of argument and hide his retreat from an intenable position, rashly taken up. That Protestants are admissible, under certain conditions, to an rashly taken up. That Protestants are admissible, under certain conditions, to an Ecumenical Council is obvious from the injunctions quoted by Archbishop Manning at page 275 of his work, "England and Christendom." It is headed, "The injunctions by which the Pope notified to the legates what he would have to be observed before the Protestants ware admitted. served before the Protestants were admitted served before the Protestants were admitted to be heard." After enumerating the requirements he concludes, "If they admit as aforesaid let their complaints and statements be listened to and discussed (with all gentleness and deliberation and be carried to the head himself, the Supreme Pontiff, for his final determination, together with the approval of the Council." Council."

The Protestant powers were invited to attend the Council of Trent, in 1600, on its third convocation. But they declined, as their requisitions or rather conditions were refused. Hardwin states, 1x., 1722; "A citation was issued by the Pope to the Bohemian heretics to appear before the Lateran Council." Huss and Jerome were invited to the Council of Constance. Constance.

The approaching Council at Rome may well follow and need not be ashamed of such precedents. In tact, and as I have proved, the Pope has invited heretics and schismattes —not, of course, in the case of the former, to seats and votes, but at least to a hearing in the said Council. So true is this that "M. At." in his translation in the "Times, modified and pared down the words, apparently in order to meet the exigencies of controversy.

Lastly, if the Pope has been so good as to tell us of our grievous heresies and nexils of his translation in the Times, modified and pared down the words, apparently in order to meet the exigencies of controversy.

Lastly, if the Pope has been so good as to tell us of our grievous heresies and perils of eternal death, and entreated me to consider our awful position and review our whole situation, and "avail ourselves of the opportunity of the Council," the least we owe or can give is our accepting the invitation and giving a reply, justifying, as we can, the ground on which we stand. Where, I ask, can all this be accomplished? The Pope plainly proclaims the approaching Council as the time and place, in a letter addressed to us. So clear is this that Dr. Manning, Sir George Bower and I equally understood the Pope to invite and expect our presences.

This is merely recapitulating what I have proved; but the utter absence of any new fact or reasoning in the last communication of the editor of the Westminster Getzette absolves me from any further reply in this direction, and his melancholy floundering like a fish in a net leaves one to feel for him, and his indulgence in mere abuse is quite after the manner of the fathers of the Inquisition so far as they clothed us heretics with odious dresses and fearful names, and only fails in the imitation of so canonical a custom by his not being able to hand over the Dean of Ripon.

canonical a custom by his not being able to hand over the Dean of Ripon, Mr. Spurgeon, and myself, to what would seemingly delight his heart—an auto da fé. Far be it from me to blame the editor of the Far be it from me to blame the editor of the Westminster Gazette for preferring his own translation of the Pope's letter. But, in all-ducing reliable documents, I never accept any private translation, or even rely on my own, so long as I can have access to an authorized one. Nor would I dare to insult the chief minister of the Roman Catholic Church in England by admitting or imagining, as the editor of the Westminster Gazette does, that the Archbishop has allowed a false translation to appear in an official document for the use of all the priests and Roman Catholics of England with permissu superforum on its title-page. I repeat I am ready "to ayail myself of the opportunity of the general council," as required and invited by Pius IX., as soon as the Pontiff is pleased to inform me in answer to my respectful letter that, I shall be heard in reply to his earnest entreaty to renounce the Protestant faith and return to the Roman Church. I have no desire to see the editor of the Westminster Gazette does, that the Archbishop has allowed a false translation to appear in an official document for the use of all the priests and Roman Catholies of England with permissu superforum on its title-page. I repeat I am ready "to avail myself of the opportunity of the general council," as required and invited by Pius IX., as soon as the Pontiff is pleased to inform me in answer to my respectful letter that I shall be heard in reply to his carnest entreaty to renounce the Protestant faith and return to the Roman Church. I have no desire to see the spectacle or to be made conspicuous by being spectacle or to be made conspicuous by being ordered to leave in twenty-four hours, or by ordered to leave in twenty-four hours, or by being "treated and dealt with" as "a condemned heretic," according to the Pope's instructions to a general council already referred to. "Strike, but hear," is my request. I have gone to work deliberately and carefully, and I now wait for an answer to my letter.

I am, sir, your obedient servant," have a much larger amount of solid substance, richer in medical ingredients than any other spring in Saratoga, and shows what the taste indicates—namely, that it is the STRONGEST WATER.

It also demonstrates that the STAR WATER contains

100 Cubic Inches More of Gas

in a gallon than any other spring. It is this extra amount of gas that imparts to this water its peculiarly sparkling appearance, and renders it so very agreeable to the taste. It also tends to preserve the delicious flavor of the water when bottled, and causes it to uncork with an efferveseence almost equal to Champagne.
