HER ARMAMENT, OFFICERS AND CREW Her Designs Against Spain

The steamship Hornet is at last fairly at sea, flying the Cuban flag, with a full crew and a heavy armament, prepared to wage war against such Spanish commerce as may fall in The history of this smart blockade-runner during the last few months has been an exciting one, from the time she left the yard of Reaney, Neafle & Co., at Kensington until she completed her equipment an armed privateer, during the present week. She has slipped successively through the fingers of the customs and revenue officers of this port, the authorities of Halifax and of the port of New York, has Leaving Halifax on Sunday, September 12, the Hornet took a southern course, and sighted Gay Head light, Long Island, on the 15th. She cruised in that neighborhood for a couple of days, and was then joined by a small schooner, from which she took twenty-five men, who have stace appeared as marines.

Soon afterward, the schooner Onward, from New Bedford, arrived with arms and ammunition. Several days were lost in transferring her cargo, in consequence of rough weather, the steamer standing off and on, and the schooner lying in shore, until the captain of the latter threatened to go home if he was not

I may either canvasser, at the request of a citizen, issue a subpæna while in sersion?

To the first question, we answer: Yes, but not before. II. Does the power to arrest for a disturbance give either of the canvassers the right to order an arrest?

III. Shall the two books, the division transcript and assessment, be kept during the meeting as follows: Une by the minority and one by the majority canvasser; and shall they be sealed, and by whom kept-between Saturday and Monday?

To the Third question we answer: The act does not say which of the canvassers shall have the custody of or keep the books, but the suggestion contained in the question would seem to be fair and just. Each book aught to be sealed with the seal of each canvasser, and remain in the custody directed by the majority of the canvassers, between Saturday and Monday.
