vas not intended to publish the work as a matter of profit, and it was to be regarded as a mere slip rather than a text-book. r. Jenks stated that 19,000 of the books had been circulated, and somebody was making a nice profit off the job. r. Freeborn complained that the Committee had overstepped their authority in discharging a music teacher without authority of the d. He moved the whole subject be recommitted to the Committee, and that hereafter, when a charge is made against a music teacher, the question of her dismissal shall be submitted to the Board. At Space and the book, and did not think the subject of admitting it or not into the schools a part of the business of the Committee on Revision of Studies. He thought by adopting the report of the committee the Board would, to a great extent, commit itself in favor of the admission of the work, which he was not prepared to do. The book was full of advertisements of pul shing-house contrary to the meaning and intention of the Board, and the words of some of the songs had en pronounced objectionable. Freeborn withdrew his motion, and Mr. Elkin moved that so much of the report as referred to the appropriation 'of $19,000' for next year, and the teaching of music without authority, be adopted, which was so ordered. Mr. Steinmetz then moved the rules be sus ended for the purpose of allowing the admission of the book as a text-book of the public schools. This he subsequently withdrew and, pending several amendments and different parliamentary tactics, Mr. Cassidy moved to lay the whole subject on the table, which was agreed to. Mr. Wetherill offered a resolution abolishing the Committee on Revision of Studies, and re ferring the subject of music in the Public Schools to the Joint Committees on Text Books, and Grammar, Secondary and Primary Schools:

[We reprint the above in consequence of an error that appeared as printed yesterday.] The Career of Father Hyseinthe.

(From the Londou Telegraph.) Although still comparatively young, Pere Hyacinthe stands among the chief pulpit forces of the Romish Church. Joining the order of Barefooted Carmelites, he speedily woor disting tion by his scholarship and his culture, no less than by his extraordinary power of speech. At an early age he promised to add a bright star, to the galaxy of French pulpit cloquence. But, from the time of his first "utterances, lie was regarded with suspicious glances by leading dignitaries of Rome. He was seen to be twitted with Libertier. be tainted with Liberalism. His words had not that tone of absolute submission to the Holy See which is now coveted by the most powerful among the priests of France. Of France, almost as much as on Ireland, th Ultramontane party has laid its grasp. Mucl of the power which the Jesuits have more th once lost in that country they have won back Such dioceses as that of Orleans are ruled with a rod of iron, in accordance with the dictates of the Ultramontane creed; and the prelater who represent the old Liberalism of France in spire in men like Bishop Dupanloup much the same hostility with which the extreme High Church dignitaries of England regard their ex treme Broad Church rivals. The Ultrainontane party, however, have been forced to fight a hard battle with their Liberal foes. They have had to contend with a band of men to whom nature had given traordinary intellectual gifts, and whose piety it was impossible for the jealousy of orthodoxy itself to impugn. Such men as Lammenais, Lacordaire and Montalembert fancied that they could bridge over the chasm between the theological creed of the fifteenth century and the political creed of the nineteenth. In the encounter Lammenais was so utterly over-thrown by the members of his own Church, that he cut loose the ties which bound him, not only to Rome, but to revealed religion itself. Lacordaire died while the struggle was yet at its hottest; and Montalembert's record has yet to be written. To the same band of enthusiasts, although he occupies a less exalted place, belongs the preent Archbishop of Paris, Monseigneur, Darboy An ardent Liberal as well as an ardent Catholic, Monseigneur Darboy has more than once been the object of Papal suspicion, and has been forced to reaffirm his devotion to the Holy See. But his chief offence was the admission of Père Hyacinthe to the Cathedra of Notre Dame. To that historic church th intellect and the religious fervor of Paris flocked when attracted by such eloquence as that of the baretooted Carmelite. And the eager crowd was not disappointed. Lettered eager crowd was not disappointed. Lettered and unlettered, academicians and épiciers, felt the fascination of the brilliant preacher After the great church had been filled in every part, a man of short stature, and singularly bright, prepossessing face would ascend the pulpit and address the expectant multitude. His oratory was strikingly natural. It was very much like the best speaking of the forum transferred to the sanc-tuary, and made holy by the fusion of sacred themes. It was the reverse of ecclesiastical About the Church the Father did not say much : about doctrines he said still less : and about the clergy he said little that was not rebuke. On the other hand, he made the aisles of Nôtre Dame resound with the mos uncompromising Liberalism. In words o burning eloquence he taught men that they owed duties to each other as citizens, and that as fathers of families they were dowered with rights which the Church could not take away. The claim of the clergy to "direct" the conscience of the wife, and to set aside the authority of the hus band, was a pretension which Pere Hyacinthe denounced with that peculiarly cutting, because personal eloquence, which men can wield when assailing the members of their own order. He asserted the right of the nu-band to be supreme in histown household and the duty of the citizen to obey the laws of this

own country. Unmoved by the threats ic Rome, he raised up that old banner of French Liberalism, on which was inscribed devotion't the family and to the nation. Without directly assailing the priestly pretensions, of the Ultra montane party, he set forth doctrines which mad those pretensions null and void. Hence th men of France listened to the French preache with undisguised rapture. A religious creec which did not compel them to break off al visible connection with Rome, and yet left them masters in their own households and citthem masters in their own households and cit-zens of their own country, was the very thing for which they pined. On the other hand, the ' Ultramontane' party of Parts were furious against the discourses of the Carmelite. All ' his eloquent denunciations of the vices which are preving on the life of France were power-less to still the fierce cry of heresy. The preacher was assailed with that cry; and, at last, even the courageous Archbishop of Paris so far bent before the storm, that he put an end to the series of Carnelité discourses, and in vited the chief rival of Père Hyacinthe ti fill the pulpit of Notre Dame. The new preacher, Père Felix, strove hard to undo the mischief wrought by his gifted predecessor A Jesuit, and dowered with the graces of h own most accomplished order, he lent all the riches of his thetoric to vilify Protestantism submission to the Holy Of uncompromising , submission to the Holy Church, as represented by its chief bishop. But the effort was in vaid The echoes of Hyacinthe's eloquence still lin-gered on men's ears. At last, however, the words of calumny won over to the side of his loes the chief dignitary of his order, who had before encouraged the great preacher with lov-ing words. In a letter to Hyacinthe the Father-General of the Barefooted Carmelites blamed him for doing the very things which he had previously encouraged him to perform, and commanded him to use a language, or to preserve a silence, which would not be the loyal expression of conscience. OPPOSITION IN THE COUNC The correspondent of the Berliner skreat Pope is said to be very much concerned by the reports made to him by Cardinals Nardi and Merode respecting the forthcoming Ecumeni-cal Council. A Hittherto his Holiness has entercalcouncil. Printer of the formers has cheer tained the belief that in all important political and social questions submitted to the Council, the prelates would be quantized in their opinions, whereas it would now stem, from the latest reports, that such quantized is by no means to be calculated on. The doposition of means to be calculated on. The opposition the German Bishops is more especially dread in the Vaticau, while the little opinions some of the English and Bolton prelates g very little satisfaction. It is stated here t
