Gentlemen: Your communication of this date, apprising me of my nomination for the position of Select Council, is received, and I thank you for the compliment and implied confidence.

Although I have always felt a deep interest in the civil and political affairs of the city, as well as of our common government, I have refrained from seeking public position, or accepting office, notwithstanding I have frequently been urged to do so; nor would I be willing at the present time to accept the nomination voluntarily tendered by you, if it were not for the peculiar circumstances of the case, circumstances which seem to demand, for the furtherance of the Republican principles by which we are guided, and which I fully and heartily endorse, that I should acquiesce in your request. I therefore accept the nomination tendered, and in the event of my election I can only promise to fulfil the duties of the position to the best, of my ability.

I am gentlemen,
Yours, truly,

THE FILIBUSTERS.

The Hornet in Wilmington—Festivities and Gay Times on Board the Embargoed Tessel—Mingling of the Wilmington Fair and the Bold Privateers.

(From the Wilmington (N. C.) Journal of Oct. 7.1 It is with gratification that we state that the Cuban man-of-war in her stay in our port has not found the detention tedious. Though the chain mar-or-war in her stay in our port has not found the detention tedious. Though the government may delay the trial in the effort to huntup witnesses, yet so long as the spirit of gallantry and true gentlemanly breeding still remains in the hearts of her brave officers they will find their stay in our port anything but irksome. A charming and attractive scene was witnessed on board the decks of this noble ship yesterday. A large party of ladies and gentlemen, availing themselves of the kind invitation of the officers, visited the chir last evening, and there was a beautiful and glorious mingling of the brave and the fair. The main-deck was converted into a ball-room, the cabin into a saloon, and the after-deck into an ante-toom, where a rich collation was spread. All that gentlemanly hospitality could suggest was enjoyed in turn by the full promptings of gratitude and appreciation. Our ladies were out in all their beauty, our gentlemen full of courteous reciprocation, Qui ladies were out in all their beauty, our gentlemen full of courteous reciprocation, and the gallant officers donned their most captivating smiles and agreeable manners to render the occasion pleasant and their ghip a place of welcome. By kind invitation we were one of the favored number present. We more than enjoyed the scene. The afterdack was hung around with the flag of the young remaitions, above which the flag of the young renations, above which the flag of the young re-mations, above which the flag of the young re-public of Cuba floated proudly and defiantly. Raised aloft by gallant hands and unfaltering hearts, there they declare it shall continue to wave proudly and yet triumphantly, or else be bathed with their blood, unless the Gov-

he bathed with their blood, unless the Government should ruthlessly seize and condemn this ship which made our port in distress. Here on this deck pleasant tete-a-tetes were formed; below were the dancers in joyful numbers treading the intricate mazes and whirl of gay cotillions. Paired off with fair and beautiful maidens, lovely in the modesty with which their whole appearance hermed were the collant officers many in beamed, were the gallant officers, manly in their noble bearing and yet yielding to the in-spired sound of the music, their fine new uniforms mingling pleasantly with the gaver colors of the ladies' handsome attire. In the cabin the honors of the ship were done in the absence of Commodore Higgins (forced on shore by indisposition), by Lieutenant Commanding Dornin and Captain Ingraham, the commander of the marines and private Secretary to the Commodore, and Lieutenants Reide, Telfair, and the other courteous offi-cers. Here the members of the press had especial evidence of the hospitality of the ship, and were toasted and did toast. Many plea-sant responses followed, and many were the compliments paid to this noble body of men, embarked in a new enterprise under a flag, and regularly commissioned as officers of a regular man-of-war in the Cuban service, scorning all allusions to privateers and proud in the consciousness of their authority and in the consciousness of their authority and strength. We cannot say how long the dance and other pleasures enjoyed would have continued had not night warned the fair ones and their gallant attendants away. We confess that we had not time to look over the ship as we desired, but hope to visit her again to-day. Of her officers we have already spoken. The men are a stout and fine-looking body, and under most excellent discipline, and we have no doubt will prove themselves to be what they are re-will prove themselves to be what they are regarded. We were shown some of the commissions of the officers. These are regularly executed in due form, and have the seal and endorsement of the Cuban Republic, proving evond question that the ship She is a noble vessel, and manned by

Ratification of the Fourteenth and Fif-

Ratification of the Fourteenth and Fif-teenth Amendments in the Two Houses —Adjournment of Both Branches until October 18—The Senatorship.

RICHMOND, Oct. 8, 1869.—The floors and galleries of both houses of the General Assemblywere thronged this morning because of the announcement that the two constitutional amendments would come up for ratification, and the most intense interest was manifested
by the members and the rect and inner. Some and the most intense interest was manifested by the members and the vast audience. Some degree of uneasiness was felt about the Fourteenth Amendment, which declares ineligible to office all the prominent leaders in the late rebellion that held office prior to the war, and among whom are some of the most respected and inwhom are some of the most respected and in-fluential men in the South. This amendment, which left the question of suffrage with the States, was rejected by the Johnson Legisla-ture of 1866-7, only one vote being cast for it in that body, and hence the formal ratification required to-day created a good deal of anxiety. The radical factionists were hopeful that the Walker Republicans would vote against it, Walker Republicans would vote against it, and thereby furnish them a pretext to lay before Congress to defeat the admission of the State; but they were disappointed. In the Senate, Mr. Herdon, from the joint committee on the Governor's Message, reported that they agreed to report the two bills, one ratifying the fourteenth and the other the fifteenth amendment to the constitution of the United States, with the recommendation that they do pass. Amid a solemn silence the Senate bill No.1, ratifying the fourteenth amendment, was taken up and passed teenth amendment, was taken up and passed to its third reading under a suspension of the rules. Upon its final passage the yeas and nays were demanded, only four persons voting in the negative—namely, Anderson, Johnson, Pendleton and Lyons, the latter being a colored member. There was a feeling of evident relief upon the announcement of the vote, and the fifteenth gine upon the relief upon the announcement of the vote. the fifteenth amendment was taken up and rati-fied, Messrs. Johnson, conservative, and Lyons, colored radical, alone voting in the negative, Lyons, who is ignorant, and asked his discretion of other members of his party, explained that he voted against the amendment because he protested against the legality of the Senate and every act performed by it, which he felt confident would not stand one moment before Connects would not stand one moment beare Congress. A resolution pledging the General Assembly to ratify the amendment after the admission of the State, if Congress thought it necessary, was lost, as such a condition was considered superfluous.

The scene in the House resembled that in The scene in the House resembled that in the Senate; the feeling, if anything, being more intense among the spectators and members. The Fifteenth Amendment was first taken up and passed its several readings, and was ratified unanimously, 132 votes being cast, which was followed by suppressed applause, the Radicals evincing their chagrin by sullen looks and muttered ejaculations of disappointment. A resolution that the ratification should have no effect until Virginia was a co-equal state in the Union by virtue of her admission have no effect until Virginia was a co-equal State in the Union by virtue of her admission to representation in Congress was not consi-dered, as the passage of the bill accomplished that object. The Fourteenth Amendment was then put on its passage, and it was ratified by the following vote: Yeas, 126; nays, 6—Messrs. E. B. Bagwell, J. H. Keely, D. J. Miller, T. C. Passmore, S. Smith and W. R. Win voting in the negative.

Both houses adjourned to-day until the 18th instant, when they will meet again to elect a United States Senator on the day fixed by law for that purpose, Tuesday, the 19th inst.

General Canby to-day issued the following

POLITICAL. THE PRIDE OF THE VALLEY.

Great Chance for Packer. The New York Tribune says:

There is an amusing story of Edmond-About's touching a swaggering French colonel of the first Empire, who, having been desiccated by a chemical process, is carefully preserved for half a contury and brought to life again in the reign of His Majesty Napoleon III. The fictitious chemist of the lively Kreich navalist, has a rival however in the leon III. The fictitious chemist of the lively French novelist has a rival, however, in the real professor, Grusselbach by name, and Swede by nation, who by his own account has discovered a wonderful sleeping potion which will enable anybody to slumber as long as he may desire. Drink some of this magical liquor and your limbs are benumbed, your senses suspended, and life remains locked up in your body, until at the appointed time the Professor (supposing that you have not been broken to pieces, or mislaid, or, forgotten in some lumber-closet in that you have not been broken to pieces, or mislaid, or forgotten in some lumber-closet in the meanwhile), sprinkles you with a "stimulating fluid," and you wake up. What a blessing this discovery must be to gentlemen in low spirits, henpecked husbands and hungry beggars, is obvious at a glance. Suicide and workhouse are rendered superfluous luxuries, and the toothache a thing of the past.

We advert to this discovery just, now, how-and the toothache a thing of the past.

We advert to this discovery just now, however, principally on account of its possible importance in politics. Many a candidate in a rash moment of exaltation is induced to stand for office and is very sorry for it afterward. How nice if he could only put himself to sleep as soon as he perceived the hopelessness of his chances, and remain unconscious until after the election! What a comfort it would be to noor Mr. Packer If he it would be to poor Mr. Packer If he could go to bed to-night and remain comfortably unconscious of all things until about the middle of October, by which time Governor Geary's election will be officially certified; or better still, if he could sleep long enough—say a hundred years or so—to let the world forget all about his vote in favor of the slave-trade! When he got up again he would not be much further behind the age than the rest of his party, and indeed we have already a good many Democratic leaders who, to all intents and purposes, have been askep for the better part of a century, and don't even know-it. If the whole rank and file of the Democracy could be supplied with a drink of that liquor (and they will take almost anything in liquor (and they will take almost anything in the form of liquor), they might be saved a good deal of trouble and mortification, without much change in their condition. Except that they have an unpleasant habit of walking about and shooting people, they are all the same as asleep now. In the character of politicians we can't call them successful, but s sleeping beauties they might do very well

KING BOMBA AND THE POPE. The Ex-King of Naples to Give a Donkey to the Pope.

The Italie, of Florence, of the 22d September, reports : The Romans The Romans have expected to see a renewal of the ceremony, performed by the King of Naples, of presenting a hackney to the Pope on St. Peter's day, as an earnest of homage and recognition of the suzerainty of the Holy See over the kingdom of the Two Sichles. The animal used to be a white mare, richly caparisoned, carrying a purse of 7,000 golden ducats attached to the saddle, and the presentation was made on June 25 by the Ambassador of the King of Naples, under the portico of St. Peter's, as an acknowledgment of vassalage to the Sovereign Pontiff. This custom, which dated back to Charles of Anjon, ceased in 1780, under the reign of tiff. This custom, which dated back to Charles of Anjou, ceased in 1780, under the reign of Ferdinand IV., the personal enemy of Pope Pius VI., whose election he had opposed. The presentation of the hackney was replaced by the purely private offering of 16,000 crowns deposited in the caisse of the Mont de-Pete at Rome, at the disposal of the Pope. This offer Pius VI. at first refused, asserted his inviolable rights, and took note of the disobedience of the King of Naules. At a later period, however. rights, and took note of the disobethence of the King of Naples. At a later period, however, the same Pope, finding himself in want of money, wished to lay his hand on the deposit, but the funds had been withdrawn a few months before by order of the Emperor Napoleon I., without any information sent to his Holiness

Holiness.

* * * It results, continues the writer, that the concession made by Pius IX. in no way affects the real or pretended rights of the Holy See; the question of the hackney was Holy See; the question of the hackney was intact and in suspense; it has just been solved afresh. Next year, on June 29th, the solemn presentation of the steed will be re-established and the Pope will be acknowledged as suzeram lord of the old kingdom of the Two Sicilies. By this act Francis II. will connect his own rights of sovereignty with the temporal rule of the Pope, which will constitute an additional, though but a slight, guarantee, and we shall see the white mare, accounted in housings of red or blue velvet, presented by a courtier on his knees to the Pope in person. courtier on his knees to the Pope in person.

THE HIGH TIDES.

The Late Terrible Storm Along the Bay of Fundy.

The New York Herald says:
The late heavy equinoctial—so far as known the heaviest along the Atlantic coast, from Virginia northward, in its rainfall, of all the Virginia northward, in its rainfall, of all the storms of the nineteenth century—appears to have been far more disastrous to property, including live stock, in the British provinces of New Brunswick and Nova Scotia than at any point within the United States. Around Sackville, N. B., among the damages reported from the tremendous tide driven up the Bay of Fundy, are the destruction of bridges, wharves, dikes railways, telegraphs, shins, houses and rundy, are the destruction of bridges, wharves, dikes, railways, telegraphs, ships, houses and barns, the sweeping away of thousands of tons of hay and the drowning of thousands of cattle. These losses will doubtless involve much suffering in the inundated districts; and the worst of the losses have yet, perhaps, to come, for it is hardly to be supposed that in this sweeping tidal wave no men, women or children were drowned.

It is remarked that this was the storm pre-dicted by Lieutenant Saxby, of the Royal Navy, last December. If so, we have another evidence of the value of the late discoveries of science touching the laws and seasons of these great storms. With a proper telegraph system of warnings and signals we know that system of warnings and signals we know that New Brunswick and Nova Scotia, even from New York, might have had twenty-four hours' notice of this equinoctial, for it reached its climax here on Sunday night, and at Sack-ville, N. B., on Monday night. Here we see, then, that with a proper system of storm sig-nals millions of property along the Atlantic coast might have been saved from the de-structive consequences of this late equinoc-tial.

AMUSEMENTS.

—Mr. Booth appeared as "Othello" at the Walnut Street Theatre, last night, in the presence of an immense audience. We sincerely regret that our limited space to-day makes a lengthy notice of this personation impossible. Mr. Booth's performance was very fine, and, leaving his reading of certain presence. barring his reading of certain passages—as, for instance, his address to "Cassio," "Never more be officer of mine,"—spoken in deep melo-dramatic tones, instead of a voice expressive of mingled sorrow and indignation it was exceptionally good. But upon this question of proper reading there will always be wide differences of opinion, and if, as some claim, Mr. Booth is a constant sinner in this respect, there can at least be but a single verdict upon the matchless grace of his action, the elegance of his attitudes, the consummate skill of his by-play, the force of his passion. He never makes a mistake in these respects, and it is these, rather than peculiarities of emphasis, these, rather than peculiarities of emphasis, which captivate an audience, and hold them breathless awaiting the climax. Mr. Booth's "Othello" will not rank as high as his "Hamlet" and "Macbeth," but it is so much better than that of other actors with whom we are familiar, that it can be seen with keen endoy ment. This evening Mr. Booth will appear in Richard Third. On Monday, Macbeth; on Tuesday, The Lady of Lyons; on Wednesday, Richard Third.
