

FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.

LETTER FROM PARIS.

(Correspondence of the Philadelphia Evening Bulletin.) PARIS, Friday, Oct. 1st, 1869.—Although the sensation created by the terrible crime of which Paris has recently been the theatre is beginning gradually to calm down, yet it would be impossible for me to choose any other subject than this still all-prevailing topic for the recommencement of my correspondence. On my first return here, indeed, a few days ago, the excitement caused by the event exceeded anything of the kind I had ever before witnessed, even in the excitable Parisian mind, upon a matter unconnected with politics. I cannot better convey an idea of the extent and character of the emotion raised, perhaps, than by likening it to a great moral and social earthquake. To witness the scene at the Northern Railway station, where crowds were struggling for tickets and places to go and visit the scene of the tragedy, one might have supposed, from the vehemence and gestures of the population, that some foreign enemy was at the gates and that the people were rushing to the defence of the capital. And then to see the way in which the popular and sensational journals, such as the Figaro, Courrier, and others, were literally scrambled and fought for every evening at the kiosks on the Boulevards! One would have thought that the telegram of some great victory, or great disaster, involving the fortune of the nation, was expected, so intense was the eagerness to know whether any new incident had come to light or any further progress been made in the course of the investigation. This feverish state of moral excitement, and what may be called public thirst for vengeance, has now, as I have said, somewhat passed away, since the assurance is felt that the chief if not the only perpetrator of the dreadful deed of blood is secure in the hands of justice. But only yesterday the public feeling seemed to break out afresh again, in presence of the funeral ceremony, which took place. The wretched and afflicted relatives of the entire family which has been so suddenly cut off have been in Paris, claiming the bodies of their murdered kindred, and desirous to transport them for interment to their former place of residence. But it appears that they are poor, and the expense incurred would be considerable, and a sum of at least 2,000 francs was required for the occasion. As it was decided that this amount should be taken from the sum of 5,000 francs forwarded to the Post-office at Guebwiller by the unfortunate father, John Kinck, in the hope that he was preparing to re-establish himself in peace for the remainder of his days in his native province of Alsace, after a long period of laborious industry and economy. How little he thought when he sent the money to its destination that he was only providing funds for the burial of his wife and six children, all then in flourishing life and health! There is something inexpressibly sorrowful and awful in such a mysterious dispensation of Providence, and in such an end and result which appears to have been the life of blameless industry and honest perseverance on the part of the father and the whole family. Your readers must excuse my indulgence in these reflections; but the public horror against the assassin is not a little augmented by the constant details which now reach us from Roubaix and elsewhere of the probity and good character of his victims. It would be impossible for me to enter at length into the details and minutiae of this dreadful deed, as they have now appeared for many days past in our journals, and the content myself with a summary of the conclusions arrived at, as they seem now to be established by moral evidence, if not quite yet by legal proofs. There is a remarkable continuity and consequentness in the fearful story as it now comes out and reveals a plot laid with great deliberation and with a cold-blooded calculation of sheer gain which makes one shiver. This man Traupmann was one of those who are determined to get money and be rich at any price. He had wormed himself into the confidence and knowledge of the affairs of the Kinck family, and especially of the father, and was aware that his and their property were in that state of transition and movement which made it possible to attempt a coup de main against them. That is, the family were breaking up from their present abode, and likely to be on the way with what they had valuable on their persons. Traupmann deliberately determined to cut them all off and possess himself of their property. With this view he first followed the father, and murdered him on the road to Guebwiller, hoping thereby to secure the 5,000 francs which he knew he had sent forward to the Post-office. The body of Kinck, the father, has not yet been found, nor is there yet proof of his murder. But apart from other strong probabilities of his having fallen by Traupmann, I put forward this fact, which, to my surprise, I have not yet seen remarked upon in any public notice, viz: It is likely that Traupmann would have assumed so confidently as he immediately did, both at Guebwiller and Paris, the name and authority of John Kinck, and written his family in that character, unless he had first made sure of him, and felt that his own false letters from Kinck dead could not be contradicted by others from Kinck alive? The inference, to my mind, is absolutely conclusive. Well, having despatched the father, he tried to get the money from the Post-office, but failed. Then he inveigled the son, Gustave, to Guebwiller, thinking he would be sure to obtain it; and then again, having lived him on (still in his father's name) to Paris, hoping to find the 5,000 francs in his pocket, in which he was disappointed. He first despatched him, and afterwards wrote for the whole family and despatched them. The day after he was at Havre, with the whole of their property in his possession, except the 5,000 francs, and on his way to America with it, having actually all but succeeded in his nefarious scheme of cutting off an entire household of eight people and appropriating their property. Fill up this skeleton with innumerable details and moving incidents, and you have the whole of this fearful history of murders and cold-blooded cupidity. There is not an extenuating circumstance of human passion, or weakness, or aggravation about it. Nothing but money, money; and a villainous covetousness of "other men's goods," rather than to "labor truly to get one's own living." It is a fearful picture of the depravity of the age, and to what an extent the desire to "get rich" has been intensified by the spirit of luxury and speculation, which everything here has lately tended to encourage. THE TRIPPING.—Lewis Jones was committed yesterday by Alderman Randall, on the charge of having robbed the money-drawer of the flour and feed store of David Hansel, at Darby road and Gray's lane. He took $1 while Mr. Hansel was in front of the store attending to business.

CITY BULLETIN.

HOW THE ELECTION PASSED OFF.

A Few Rows. The election in the city yesterday passed off with fewer disturbances than any which has occurred for several years. The difficulty in the fourth division, Sixteenth Ward, an account of which was given in the BULLETIN of yesterday, was settled without resulting in any serious consequences. In the Thirteenth Legislative District there was a pretty lively time. In this district there was a triangular fight between John Forsythe and Michael Mullen, both claiming to be the regular Democratic nominees, and Joseph A. Geisz, Republican. The contest waxed warm all day, and the Mullen and Forsythe factions frequently led their forces in battle array to the polls. Knock-downs were plenty, and broken noses were to be seen at nearly every division in the district. Mullen was endorsed by the Democratic City Executive Committee as the regular nominee, but the Forsythe party were not to be hoodwinked, and they went to work to win. The Republican candidate, Mr. Geisz, being popular, he polled the full vote of his party, and was elected. At five minutes before six o'clock Arthur Mullen and his party entered the eighth division, Seventeenth Ward, at the southeast corner of Lawrence and Master streets. Return Inspector T. J. Chandler was busy at his duties, when he was seized by the throat and thrown into the cellar. The Mullen party then went up some papers and gutted the room. Mr. Chandler's clerk was somewhat injured, but both parties were glad to escape with their lives. It is said that the Democratic officers made up some kind of returns. There were also scenes of violence at the sixth and ninth divisions, which would probably have resulted in bloodshed but for the interference of the police under Lieut. Spear. Yesterday afternoon, about four o'clock, a disturbance took place at Frankford road and Norris street, during which Officer Seagraves was shot through the arm by some one in the crowd. The wound, though painful, was not considered dangerous. About noon yesterday, as four policemen were passing along George street, below Second, they were assailed by some young men who took refuge in a hose house, where they were pursued by the officers. It is alleged that the bolts of the hose carriage were then rang and the carriage taken out and driven at rapid rate up the street, during which the persons who commenced the disturbance made their escape. One of the officers was slightly injured. About half-past seven o'clock last evening Officer Bauer was shot in the shoulder while passing along Dauphin street, near Frankford road. The injuries inflicted were not serious. The person shooting made his escape. At Thirteenth and Chestnut streets last evening, while a large crowd of persons were preparing to go to the theatre, a young man carrying a party of young rascals was driven up to the sidewalk. A large crowd then gathered around the corner, when several shots were fired from the wagon. The vehicle was then driven hastily away. Last evening an ex-policeman was attacked by some rascals on Eleventh street, near Ogden. The assailant, in defending himself, fired a pistol. The ball took effect in the leg of John J. Colom, who was passing along the street at the time, causing a painful wound. Geo. H. Newman was arrested last evening at Tenth and Melon streets, upon the charge of having assaulted Policeman Todd with a black-jack and attempting to shoot him. He was taken to the Police Prison, where he was held in $1,200 bail. Wm. Bains was arrested yesterday at Second and Carpenter streets, upon the charge of illegal voting and carrying concealed weapons. He was held for a further hearing by Ald. Kerr. Last night the streets of the city presented the usual animated appearance incident to election times. Early in the evening Chestnut street was thronged, and the newspaper offices were crowded with persons anxious to get the returns. The Democrats gathered in force at Ninth and Arch streets, but dispersed early, after learning that their "swapping of horses" had availed nothing and that the "commissioner's tickets" had been very badly beaten. On Broad street, in front of the Union League House, there was an unusually large assemblage, and as the different Republican agents and speakers were read out, the enthusiastic cheering. About 8 o'clock it became pretty well settled that the Republicans had carried the city by quite a large majority. About 9 o'clock the Republican candidates in citizens' dress, but accompanied by the Liberty Cornet Band and carrying their large transparencies, turned out and marched to the League House, escorted with hearty cheers along the streets through which they passed. During the evening Hon. Leonard Myers and Hon. Wm. B. Mann delivered addresses at the League House, congratulating the Republicans upon the gallant fight which they had made and the glorious victory which they had won. In order to prevent any disturbances last evening, policemen were stationed at different points where crowds were likely to assemble. One hundred and five policemen, under the command of Lieutenants Spear and Jacoby, were stationed on Broad street, and the immediate neighborhood, to cover the League House, the National Club House, and other places. Forty men were also in reserve at the Fifth District Station house. Fifteenth and Locust streets. Ninety-five men under command of High Constable Clarke and Lieutenants Kilgaly and Henderson were stationed near Washington Square, and seventy-three men, under command of Lieutenant Kelly and High Constable Nutt, were in reserve at the Central Station. A squad of men was also stationed on Market street, near Eighth. The services of the policemen were not required, as everything passed off in an orderly manner. By midnight every body was satisfied of the result of the election, and the streets became deserted and assumed their usual quiet appearance. THE RETURN JUDGES.—By the Registry law the Return Judges are required to meet on the second day after the election (to-morrow) to make up the official returns of the city. The meeting will therefore be held to-morrow at 10 o'clock A. M. in the Supreme Court room. All of the judges should be punctual in attendance so as to avoid any delay in counting the votes. STEALING COWS.—Jacob Hamilton and Jacob Higgins, colored, were arrested yesterday on the Lancaster turnpike by Policemen Lambert, on suspicion of having stolen two cows which were found in their possession. Upon arriving at the station-house the prisoners acknowledged having stolen the cows from a farm in Chester county. Alderman Randall committed the accused for a further hearing. FIRES.—This morning, about four o'clock, a fire occurred in the grocery store of John L. Carney, at the northwest corner of Twelfth and Federal streets. Mr. Carney has an insurance of $1,100, which will more than cover his loss. IMPORTANT DISCOVERY IN MEDICINE.—Whether the nauseating compounds administered to the patient are not frequently more injurious than beneficial in their effects, is a question that the physician should ask himself when called to the bedside of the suffering. That which is revolting to the taste has its virtue necessarily impaired in a large measure. To administer the same curative without such effects is what the medical profession has long sought to attain, and what Doctor Erasmus Winslow has at last succeeded in accomplishing. His Liver and Stomach Lozenge, while a most effective cathartic and alterative, is quite as agreeable to the taste as ordinary confectionery, and could not cause the most sensitive stomach to revolt. While its drug taste has been extinguished by chemical art, the virtues of the lozenge have not been the slightest impaired. It is an infallible cure for dyspepsia, biliousness, constipation, sick or nervous headache, piles, dropsy, and all the irregularities to which the female sex are subjected.—St. Louis Times.

BASE BALL.—The return game between the Athletics of this city, and the Atlantics of Brooklyn, will take place to-morrow (Thursday) afternoon at Seventeenth street and Columbia avenue.

NEW JERSEY MATTERS.

THE DEMOCRACY.—The Democracy of Camden county held their convention to-day at Longacres for the purpose of making their county and legislative ticket. Quite a number of prominent members of the party from Camden went down in the early train, but the threatening aspect of the weather and the news from Philadelphia, Pennsylvania and Ohio had a depressing effect upon their spirits. It is hoped by those in the Secret interest that the convention will endorse the candidate which the party have made, but such hopes will be grievously disappointed. If the general impression that Henry Fredericks will be selected for State Senator, and that, according to custom and usage, Randall E. Morgan, present incumbent, will be nominated for Sheriff. ENCOURAGING.—The results of the elections held yesterday have given increased encouragement to the Republicans of Camden city and county, who will go to work in a good cause with renewed vigor and zest at the election of Senator Bettie and the whole Republican ticket. The successes in Pennsylvania inspire them with confidence, and prospects are bright notwithstanding the severe defection, the regular candidates will be elected by an increased majority. SELLING WITHOUT LICENSE.—A large number of persons in Camden have been indicted by the Grand Jury for selling intoxicating liquors without license and also on the Sabbath. Some of them have been arraigned several times for similar offences, and the probability is that this time they will be pretty severely punished. HEAVY LIST.—The Grand Jury of Camden yesterday afternoon adjourned for the term, after having presented one hundred and twenty-seven true bills of indictment against various persons. This is the heaviest list ever presented by a grand jury of the county, and will occupy the time of the Court for about six weeks. THE COURTS.—The Camden Courts on Tuesday adjourned over until Thursday, for the purpose of allowing time to prepare business. CITY NOTICES. See Sixth Page for Additional City Notices. IMPORTANT ANNOUNCEMENT.—In our travels about town, hunting up Election Returns, what surprised us as well as pleased us most, was the return of Mr. M. Marshall, to his new quarters at Third and Market streets. It is always a gratifying duty for us to chronicle the progress of buildings intended for trade and commerce. Among this class of improvements, the new store occupied by Mr. M. Marshall, Northwest corner of Third and Market streets, holds a prominent position. The building fronts on Market street three feet, and on Third street, constituting one of the most attractive business edifices in Philadelphia. Mr. Marshall has purchased this well-known stand during ten years, and has established a first-class trade. His substantial property has been secured by an intricate system of mortgages, and by an undulating system of profits, he has been enabled to pay off his debt. Mr. Marshall is just as represented, and his prices are uniformly put together, or a wholesale order filled with promptness. He stocks up his store with the best of the market, and he has large facilities for the dispensing of fine drugs. We notice that he includes in his assortment of goods, a large quantity of window glass, both of French and American manufacture, together with many other articles. We are pleased to note this improvement on Market street, and hope our readers who happen to be in that direction will not forget to call and satisfy themselves of the truth of what we assert. The great difficulty which physicians have been laboring for centuries to overcome has at length been obviated. A Vegetable Cathartic and alterative more efficient than any mineral preparation of the same class, and as agreeable to the taste as ordinary candy, is now offered to the sick in the form of a Lozenge. DR. ERASMUS WINSLOW'S LIVER AND STOMACH LOZENGE is the most important medicinal novelty that modern chemistry has produced. It contains two botanical extracts, perfectly harmless in themselves, but embodying all the remedial properties of mercury, and destined in this pleasant form to supersede and banish from general use the nauseous pills and potions of which that dangerous excitant is the main ingredient. More than ONE THOUSAND EXPERIMENTS were made by the inventor of this peerless remedy before it was brought to its present state of perfection. The Lozenge is harmless in its operation, and although the medicinal taste of its curative components has been extinguished by chemical art, their virtues remain as active and potent as ever. In Dyspepsia, Biliousness, Constipation, Sick or Nervous Headache, Piles, Dropsy, and the irregularities to which the feeble sex are subject, the Lozenges will be found infinitely more effective than any of the horrible and disgusting compounds usually administered in such cases. As an anti-bilious specific and general aperient, they have no equal either among advertised preparations or the prescriptions of the regular pharmacopoeia. IT IS GUARANTEED that no one who has once tried DR. ERASMUS WINSLOW'S LIVER AND STOMACH LOZENGE will ever again take a purgative powder, or draught, or pill. REMOVALS. THE FINE ARTS. JAMES S.
