theatre, taverns and other disagreeable places; whilst that down Chestnut exposes her to the crowds in front of the hotels, courts, State House and police office; whilst the walk to Broad and Christian will be by one of our great public good, ought certainly to be clear, grave and imperative. The Joint Committee of Directors and Shareholders has given those assigned a long, most anxious and careful serutiny, and have come to the conclusion Broad and Christian will be by one of offinest avenues, that is fast becoming the site of large public and private buildings. The distance of the proposed site from a central point is not therefore a valid objection.

But admitting it to be so, why cannot the system pursued in London and now being introduced into Philadelphia be so arranged as to prevent the necessity of the stockholder who objects to the distance, being compelled scrutiny; and have come to the conclusion that none of them separately, nor all combined are adequate to such a result. The principal objection to the acceptance of the legacy arises from the proposed site of the "Ridgway Branth" of the Library. It is true that the Committee would have preferred a more central site for the building. But the Fixeture of Dr. Rush, both from the expressed wishes of the testator during his life, as well as from his own judgment of the suitableness of the selected site, is indisposed to change it. The committee did not enter TO HE CHANGED. (who objects to the distance) being compelled to visit the Library?. Under the London system, an order by the despatch post or by a city telegraph will readily cause the messenger the Library to leave the desired book at the store holder's door and take the returned volume to the Library, as is now often done by a private serableness of the selected site, is indisposed to change it. The committee did not enter into the consideration whether the proposed site, situated as it is on the finest avenue of Philadelphia, might not at an early future be surrounded with the finest public and private structures, and thus become most eligible. Because a simple solution of the difficulty presented itself. This was to keep up and maintain our present Library on its present site, the standard of the Ridgway Branch only such This system of messengers must eventually be introduced as our city grows, whether the Library continues at its present location or is removed elsewhere.

Second—The Philadelphia Library now has been at least the later to have its own funds. and will continue to have its own funds. and will continue to have its twill in no way change the application of these funds, whilst it will furnish additional means of security for the books and extended usetransferring to the Ridgway Branch only such works as are sought for by students and profounder scholars; and if necessary, erecting a fire-proof building on our present, or some fire-proof building on our present, or some provided the Library Company in accepting the Trust is prely imaginary. purely imaginary.

MERIDGWAY BRANCH SEPARATE AND SELFsupporting.

Among the other objections to the legacy
fis one, that the Library Company of Philadelbina cannot, consistently with the Will of Dr.
lik Rush, retain any portion of their books in their present building. None of the objections taken seem to us more unsound than this. The Library Company of Philadelphia, its proferry and estate, are totally different things from the "Ridgway Branch of the Philadelphia Library." Dr. Rush distinctly provides for their always being kept separate and apart.

For a period of perhaps forty years, he has,
as a Director of the Library Company, proved binself as warm friend and judicious counsellor of the Company. Reticent, because wise, there is no reason now to doubt a devotion that years have tested; and naught but the "old fogyism" that clings to old haunts and hesitates at the adoption of useful changes because years have tested; and naught but the "old fogyism" that clings to old haunts and hesitates at the adoption of useful changes because of their novelty, could create a doubt of his course of action in a measure that is to others "all other accounts of said Library Company." The books to be purchased for it are to be of solid literary character. In the clause providing for the change of Trustees, in case of abuse of so palpably for the advancement of the interests of the Library.

In acting on this important question it is to be hoped that each stockholder, will take the trouble to vote in person on Tuesday next in the control of the control o gether with the other estate, to be transferred to the new Trustee. Without keeping the estate, property, books, &c., of the Ridgway Branch of the Library apart, the Will could not be carried into effect. In the opinion of favor of accepting this generous bequest t promote the interests of the reading portion of our community.

[For the Phila. Evening Bulletin.] The Rush Bequest.

To the Members of the Philadelphia Library Company: On Tuesday next you will be called IMPORTANCE OF IMMEDIATE DECISION. It is also urged that the time has not yet ar upon to adopt or reject certain resolutions then to be submitted to you. Let us consider rived for the acceptance or refusal of the begacy, but that such election is only required to be made when the Library Building, insended by the Executor to be placed under the care of the Library Company of Philadelphia, is erected and completed. This position was not regarded by the Joint Committee as the practical effect of either course. One or two other objections started may be disposed of in a few words. It is said that under the language of the will, books might be introduced of questionable morality. But as no books can be placed on our shelves, except by the consent and with the approbation of the Directors, the high, social and moral character of these geutlemen, is a guarantee against such an imaginative danger:

FREEDOM OF THE COMPANY FROM PECUNIARY

There is nothing of practical value in the notion that the Library Company may incur pecuniary liabilities, in accepting the simple execution of the trusts of the Will. The estate is immense, and will come into our hands from debty or liabilities. The coult of the content of the company would be no fund to pay expenses until the annulus of the content of the c execution of the trusts of the Will. The estate is immense, and will come into our hands free from debts or liabilities. The only obligation the Library Company will assume in accepting this trust will be the obligation to execute its duties with fidelity. Your Committee therefore advise, that the first four resolutions, submitted to the stockholders, be voted on affirmatively.

The fifth resolution A virtual rejection to it. There would be no fund to pay expenses until the annuities should fall in. The annuities ($8,480 per annum) would hardly pay the taxes, and the gift would be in the nature of a white elephant.

Suppose, on the contrary, the members should reject these resolutions, or, in other words, suppose the Company should resolve to do nothing now. The Executor in this case, not knowing for which company he was this

1.—Is there no better way to secure a good, popular library, than the kidgway?

2.—Is it true that the classical title of the eminent testator's literary productions is "Vox et præterea ntial?"

3.—Is it altogether proper that newspapers, styled in Dr. Rush's will "teachers of disjointed thinking," should be employed for disjointed thinking," should be employed for disjointed thinking," cussing the propriety of accepting or rejecting his bequest?

4.—If the matter is decided in the newspapers, may not the jointage of the Philadel delphia Library Company become a disjoin did, if he had thought a rush for the newspa pers would be the consequence?

will be no bulwark left to defend the rights and liberties of the people. The army will play into the hands of its masters, who will give to Spain just as much or as little "liberty" as suits their personal views: Sic transit gloria mundi.

Up to date, at the very outside, 6,000 or 7,000 have sailed, and I have reason to think the total will not be increased beyond 10,000. Every day the Government publish accounts of favorable telegrams just received from General Caballero de Rodas, which repeat the oft-told story of the decline of the insurrection, and the success of the Spanish arms. On Monday, President Rivero convened all the editors of papers he could get together, and told them they could publish to the country the glorious news that General Sickles's note had been withdrawn. Accordingly the Roria, Imparcial, Epoca, and all the monarchical papers, together with one

Accordingly the Iberia, Imparcial, Epoca, and all the monarchical papers, together with one or two Republican ones as well, announced the fact yesterday, all with more or less comment, and some with great eulogies of General Sickles, while others thanked his Government for ordering him to do it.

to the long list of those concocted, now on this and now on your side of the water, to influence public opinion on the Stock Exchange. I can safely assert that the note is not withdrawn, and will not be withdrawn. Then it has been said the United States Government has disapproved General Sickles's act. This is entirely false, as is also the statements made in the New York papers and telegraphed over here to the effect that General Sickles had telegraphed to Washington a picture of the state of public feeling excited here by his note, and an intimation that France, Austria and Russia would probably help Spain in preserving her hold on Cuba. General Sickles never telegraphed one word of the kind. Even the report that his offer of the friendly mediation of the United States had been refused, is not strictly true. The fact is, the Spanish Government have "put off" a VILLEAR, Agents at Georgetown.

It is said a reduction of the Spanish army will be proposed at the next session of the Cortes.

Three Republican papers published in Madrid have been suppressed, and two others are under prosecution.

The rumor of the death of Gen. Gastello, who commanded a division of Cuban insurgents, is confirmed by a Havana despatch.

The Yerger case was argued yesterday in the U. S. Supreme Court. Upon the conclusion of the argument the Court adjourned until Monday.
