

NEW PERIODICALS.

The American Quarterly Journal of Medical Sciences, for October, is a full, plethoric number, and contains the memoranda of seventeen instructive cases of medical and surgical treatment, furnished immediately by practicing physicians in this country, with occasional woodcuts; a series of other cases, re-published from the transactions of the College of Physicians and Pathological Society of Philadelphia; interesting book-reviews, devoted this quarter to Cancer, the Nomenclature of Diseases, and Excision in the Hip-Joint; Notices of Foreign and Domestic Reports and Medical Books; and the usual Summary of Improvements and Discoveries, describing sixty different experiments or marked cases. The editor, Dr. Isaac Hays, has made this number a complete history of inventions and summaries of progressive medical ideas in its various branches in our Western States. Dr. Edward Jarvis is eminent in a second paper on the admirable increase of Human Life. Mohammed, and his place in general history, are subjects of a study by James Freeman Clarke, who arrives at the following unflattering conclusion concerning the influence of Islamism.

The merits and demerits, the good and evil, of Mohammedanism are to be found in this, its central idea concerning the earth-quake in our Western States. Dr. Edward Jarvis is eminent in a second paper on the admirable increase of Human Life. Mohammed, and his place in general history, are subjects of a study by James Freeman Clarke, who arrives at the following unflattering conclusion concerning the influence of Islamism.

A Henry T. Tuckerman tells us something about the Old Bankers of Florence in the thirteenth century, drawing largely on Italian works by a descendant of one of the old money-selling families of Lucca, Sr. Peruzzi, by his conclusions. Of a lighter kind are such papers as that of Mrs. Agassiz, a Dredging Excursion in the Gulf Stream, from which we may dip up the following pretty figure of the nautilus, as caught among the Florida Keys:

"Sometimes we captured from the deck a Portuguese man-of-war, with its attendant colony of fishes. It is a singular fact that this animal is often thus accompanied, the fishes sheltering themselves among its long appendages. From the deck of a vessel one can form no just idea of the Portuguese man-of-war. You must capture him in a net and plunge him at once into a deep glass vessel filled with sea-water; then you will see the full beauty of his pearly float, shining and transparent as thin glass, with its ruffled crests—sometimes of bright crimson, sometimes purple or blue; and you will see the graceful curves of his pendant streamers, each one of which has its own life and function of its own. Always in motion, at one moment they are drawn up against the lower side of the float, at another they are thrown out, like the sails of a ship, or stretch to their full length, they drop straight as a plumb-line to the bottom of the vase."

Prof. Howell's Pedestrian Tour is a good specimen of his exquisite prose, and shows how the commonest American sights take a color and lustre when viewed by eyes refined by travel and observation. Mr. Howells' article on the Small Sims of Congress has unusually little pop in it; he comes down to his smallest beer. The fiction of the number is very little, Miss Chesbro contributing but a tiny instalment of her "Foe in the Household," Mrs. Olive A. Wadsworth a sketch of negro character entitled "Our Phil," which, though but short, soon gives the reader his fill too; and E. E. Hale reaching the catastrophe of his odd story of building and launching an artificial asteroid. The best poem of the month, Dr. Holmes on Bonaparte and Humboldt, we have already shared with our readers. The book-reviews are very good. The Philadelphia agent for this and the next magazine is Mr. Giesber.

The "young folks" who associate with Our Young Folks will sit down in measureless content this month with that "Bad Boy" whom Mr. Aldrich makes so interesting; with Mrs. Diaz's equally natural and whimsical "William Henry," who writes such imitable letters; with James Parton, who sticks no more at giving a full and analytical description of the "Terrible Cape Bojador," an African crag south of the Canaries, than if he had been a slave-stealer born and bred,—and thereby affords us a new and happy instance of his untamed audacity; or with Mr. Trowbridge, who is equally manly, though from a strictly boyish basis, and who knows probably better "How Ships are Built" than any marine. Besides these adventurous flights on the part of the versatile Mr. Parton and the mild Mr. Trowbridge, there is a whole picture-gallery of engravings. These display the true Bostonian refinement, care and neatness of touch, combined with the most abject unimpressiveness; we make one exception, in the case of Homer's illustration of Whitaker's "My Playmate," borrowed from the forthcoming Christmas edition of Illustrated Balaad. Our Young Folks are filled with plans for next year. Mrs. Whitney, author of "Leslie Goldwater," is going to write a story for them. Mr. Aldrich will contribute some witty things not unworthy of Tom Bailey himself. Colonel Higginson and "Carleton" are to write for them, and the other friends and favorites of Our Young Folks—Mr. Hale, Mrs. Agassiz, Mrs. Diaz, Mrs. Weeks, Mr. Parton, Major Traverser, and the rest—still promise their best attempts.

The Galaxy has the abiding advantage of giving the best tale going just now anywhere, in serial literature. The oracles are dumb; Dickens and George Eliot and Collins all brooding with their mantles folded about them, and the mild, perfect Trollope raising no clatter with his Vicar of Bullhampton to interrupt the eventful rataplum of Mr. Reade's novel. Since we have mentioned, however, the exceptional though noiseless energy of Mr. Trollope, we shall find no better place to say that he contributes to this November Galaxy a little sketch, "An Editor's Tale," which shows precisely how the light hand of a master is revealed in the treatment of the most insignificant and pointless incident, by its native ease and nice touch. As for Mr. Reade, his usual story, it finds itself less at large than usual this month in carpet incidents. The turning of Henry into a "swell" by a single visit to the opera is just a literary and contemporary young ladies do not often, in our experience, use the stately diction which Mr. Reade can never quite rid himself of, such as this little masterpiece from Grace Carden, all re-dolent of calcium-lights and fifth act curtain-descents: "I give you the love and respect you deserve so well; and I thank God for creating such a character now and then—to embalm this vile world!" The sensational part of the month is his not, however, confessedly fortitious, and anonymous writer professes to have to tell the whole history of the mysterious little "Infernal" newspaper, whose May of life commenced last July, in a misadventure of dream. He tells of his birth in a hall bedroom of New York, and of its connection with the melodramatic club of Triumvirate Empire Occidentalis. Justin McCarthy tells what most of us knew in "The English Universities;" Richard Grant White is just enough for the matter, but not very fresh in "The Play of the Period;" and Eugene Benson's midnight studies of Poe and Hawthorne, which is a ghastly gasping failure, a shark out of water, if ever there was failure. We mix these grains of wholesome disparage with our notice, because we are very conscious that, after all, and in spite of all, the Galaxy has made the hit of the month.

Putnam's presents for November an expansion of Captain Bent's theory of finding the Pole by tracing up the Gulf Stream, which he declared to distribute a quantity of heat daily sufficient to melt and set in flow a more than Mississippi of molten iron, and which is believed to circulate around the pole in a temperate ocean. This paper has the authority of Prof. T. B. Maury's signature. The other contributions are: "Lady Cinella," Parts II. and III, by Edward Spencer, "Calypso," by B. Davcott, "Leaves from a Publisher's Letter-Book"—II., by G. P. Putnam (a mere collection of letters), "Hellenic Nationality and the East," by Karl Biland, "The Radical Duke," by G. M. Towle, "Indian Summer," by Jas. M. Trimble, "Ten-Life in Kamchatska," by Geo. Kennan, "The New Fuel," by W. B. Redfield, "Contemporary French Literature," I., by Elie Reclus, "To-Day," A Romance—Ch. XI.—XIX., by R. B. Austin, "Overweighted," by Mrs. J. G. Austin, "Overweighted," Book Reviews, and Miscellaneous.

Godey's Magazine has a very pretty steel engraving, "The Two Friends," a seven-figure fashion-plate in tinted steel, Part I. of Louis Grant, by Marlon Harlan, and the usual fecundity of advice in the modes, feminine work, housekeeping and harmless fiction.

Mrs. Henry Peterson's Lady's Friend has an uncommonly fine steel-plate of "The Sisters," which reveals, though not disagreeably, a photographic origin; abundant fashion-plates, and varied contributions in prose and verse. The Lady's Friend is a charming journal for home reading.

Appleton's Illustrated Almanac for 1870 has a brilliantly illuminated cover, a number of large quarto-size illustrations, including Darcy's "Four Seasons," and a generous selection of airy, out-of-doors literature appropriate to the changing year. Sold by Claxton, Remsen & Haffelinger.

The Journal of the Franklin Institute, for October, is received from the editor, Prof. Henry Morton. It is beautifully illustrated with four plates and twelve cuts, and presents the following table of contents: Editorial; Items and Novelties; "The Louisville Bridge," p. 217; "Safety-Catch for Double Hoists or Inclined Planes," "Paper Belting," 219; "East River Bridge," "Ship Canal between New York and Newark," 220; "Electricity in the Washer," "A New Method of Purifying Oils," 221; "Marking Ink for Linen," "Artificial Ebony," "Eclipse Notes," "Photographs of the Chromosphere," 322; "Abstract of Professor Young's Report," 224; "Photographs of the Corona," 226; "Moon Pictures," 227; "Condensing Magnetism," Editorial Correspondence: "The Use of Cornish Engines for the Water Supply of Cities," by J. Vaughan Merrick, Esq., "Water Power on Dams Built to Improve Rivers for Canal Feeder, &c.," where an Uniform Depth is Required," by D. S. Howard, C. E. Civil and Mechanical Engineering; On the Construction of Dams and the Importance of their Permanence," by D. S. Howard, C. E. "Belting Facts and Figures," No. 117, by J. H. Cooper, (continued), "The Hydraulic Swing Bridge over the Ouse," by Sir Wm. Armstrong, Mechanics, Physics and Chemistry; "On Various Processes for Preserving Timber," by Dr. Adolph Ott, (continued), "Solar Eclipse, August 7th, 1869," (continued), "Report of A. M. Myer, Ph. D.," "Report of Charles F. Himes, Ph. D.," "Report of Professor E. C. Pickering, Ph. D.," Spectroscopic Notes, No. 2," by Prof. C. A. Young, of Dartmouth College.

THE CUBAN REVOLUTION.

Enlistment of Convicts for Service in Cuba. The Paris Temps publishes the following letter, signed by R. De Armas y Cespedes—a relative, we understand, of the distinguished Cuban leader: A telegram from Madrid stated that the Spanish government intend to form a battalion of able-bodied men from those who have been committed to prison for "slight" offences, and who are to receive their freedom on condition of engaging to join the army in Cuba. It appears, therefore, that Spain intends to honor Cuba with convicts as adversaries; but Europe should know that this is the second time the Spanish Government has entrusted convicts with the suppression of revolution in that island. Last year Gen. Lersundi formed a battalion of convicts, calling all who could read and write to join, without distinction of race or criminality, and promising them freedom and riches. But they had scarcely entered the campaign, when they engaged in a battle to burn and plunder at pleasure. If the convicts that Spain contemplates sending to Cuba leave with the same promises as those of the Havana prison, and expect to join the army in Cuba, they may be assured that they will find yellow fever and Cuban steel their only reward. On the whole, it is well that Europe should know the real state of things against the most justifiable of all revolutions. The Cubans can say, on their side, that (during the period they have been fighting for independence they have shown no disposition to approach freedom by honorable means alone.

THE VIRGINIA ELECTIONS.

Satisfaction of the President at the Election of Senators from Virginia. "The Globe" in the way of representation in Congress—Effect of Gen. Canby's Report. The President to-day, in conversation with a member of his Cabinet, expressed great satisfaction at the action of the Virginia Legislature in selecting men for the United States Senate whom he can take to the White House. Having notified the fourteenth and fifteenth amendments and complied in other respects with the reconstruction acts, he did not see any obstacle to her selection to representation in Congress, and he hoped there would be none. The President seems to entertain a high opinion of Governor Walker, of Virginia. He intimates that so far as Governor Walker has adhered to all the pledges he had made to the President, and the latter regards him as a strictly honest man. Whatever opposition may be made by the radical party to the admission of Virginia, it is evident she will have the support of the President, who is honestly anxious for the representation of all the States in Congress at the earliest time possible. It is believed that the report of General Canby, relative to the manner in which the election was conducted, to which allusion was made in these despatches a few days ago, will have an important influence upon the radicals in Congress. Ben Butler, who is relied upon as the leader of the opponents of the admission, said, within some time ago, that except there was some ground of fraud having been practiced, or intimidation used, he saw no reason for setting aside or refusing to admit the State.—Herald.

QUARTER SESSIONS—Judge Ludlow.—This morning District Attorney Gibbons stated that after conference with the counsel for the defence in the case of the parties charged with the assault upon Mr. Brooks, the trial had been fixed for to-morrow. No other case being ready, the Court adjourned.

The famous organ of the Pope, the Civiltà Cattolica, is said to circulate less than fifteen hundred copies.

CITY BULLETIN.

The Last—Police Lieutenant John Spear, of the Tenth District, and William Jacoby, of the Twelfth District, resigned this morning. It having been intimated by Lieut. Spear that his resignation would be acceptable. These are the last of the Lieutenants remaining from the previous administration. Lieut. Spear was appointed by Mayor Vaux, May 31, 1868. He managed the affairs of his district, comprising the Sixteenth and Seventeenth Wards, in such an excellent manner, that he was re-appointed by Mayor Henry, and has remained in uninterrupted command of the district since his installation, enjoying the respect and esteem of citizens of both political parties, and was for some time in the Mexican war, commanded a company in the Scott Legion Regiment in the three months' service at the outbreak of the rebellion, and with the Henry Guards, a well-disciplined company which he had previously formed of policemen, he promptly responded to the call of the Governor in 1862 to repel the rebel invaders from the police force is longer than that of Lieut. Spear, having been appointed Sept. 14, 1864. When the police force was re-organized by Lieut. Spear in 1864, he was placed in command of the Twelfth District, composed of the Twentieth Ward, and there he has been retained by Mayors Conrad, Vaux, Henry and McGonigle, and is now appointed by Mayor Fox. The citizens of the Twentieth Ward all knew him as a faithful, intelligent and energetic officer, and will regret to lose him from the service. He was formerly discharged his duties as policeman without regard to political views, and for that reason they possessed the confidence of citizens of both parties in their districts.

THE WATER SUPPLY.—Chief Engineer Greiff gives notice that the supply of water is now sufficient to allow all reasonable use of the wash-pavement pipes. In this connection Mr. Greiff says: "The opportunity to express gratification at the manner in which the majority of our citizens acceded to the necessity of economy in the use of water during the recent drought. The untiring efforts of the Department to prevent positive failure of the supply would not have availed but for the aid thus afforded by our well-disposed citizens."

AN OLD LANDMARK GONE.—The primitive one-story office at the corner of Main street and Fisher's lane, Germantown, was demolished last week to give place to two dwellings of similar style, which will be commenced on its site. It was erected about a hundred and fifty years ago and has been almost uninterruptedly inhabited. At the time of its construction the residence was occupied by persons who were not frequent visitors in Germantown. But few of these old structures now remain, and they are annually decreasing in number.

MISSING FIREMEN.—The Hope Hose Company, No. 2, of Norfolk, Va., which has been on a visit to Wilmington, Del., as the guests of the Washington Fire Company of that city, arrived in this city this morning. No arrangements have been made for the reception of the visitors, and they were taken in charge by Chief Engineer Downey, Thos. H. Peto, S. Y. Greer, and other prominent firemen. The strangers are quarters at the Washington Hotel and will remain until to-morrow.

NOVEMBER STONES.—The resolutions approving the sureties of Messrs. Hancock, Worrell, Peltz and McCuen, who were declared to have been legally elected City Controller, and Messrs. G. W. C. H. and J. J. J. Commissioners in October, 1868, still remain in the hands of the Mayor, unsigned. The Mayor has expressed his intention of considering the matter to-morrow.

MURDEROUS ASSAULT.—A colored man named Fred Stevenson, was before Alderman Kerr this morning upon the charge of assault and battery on Patrick Kelley. The affair happened at Lancaster and South streets, and after the latter, it is alleged, committed the assault with a bar of iron. The accused was held in $800 bail to answer at court.

LARCENY OF A TRUNK.—James Benson and John Gray, colored, were taken to the Washington Jail on the charge of the larceny of a trunk from in front of the shoe store of Mrs. Gillespie, at Fifth and South streets. They were committed by Ald. Kerr.

ACCIDENT.—David Houseman, the driver of a Knickerbocker Ice wagon, had a leg fractured by being kicked by his horse, at Thirty-seventh and Sanson streets, this morning. He was taken to his home at Seventeenth and Carbon streets.

FINED.—Pat. Murphy was arrested yesterday at Fifth and Christian streets, on the charge of violating a city ordinance by dumping ashes on the sidewalk. He was fined by Alderman Lutz.
