Since the above was written we learn that evidence was heard before Collector Muhlenberg this morning. One of the witnesses—a young colored man in the employ of Dr. Hart-man—testified that he was instructed to carefully remove the revenue stamps from the bar-rels of whisky which came from Good's distillery. It appeared, also, that these stamps were sent back to the distillery, where they were again placed upon full barrels, and by this means the fraud was perpetrated. Detective Brooks discovered this in examining the books of the firm of Hartman & Co. It is proper to say in this connection that the proper to say, in this connection, that the books of the storekeeper at Good's distillery were found to be all right. Such is the report, at all events.

In the hearing of the statements this morning before the Collector, reporters and all others, except those immediately concerned, were excluded, and what is stated above was picked up piecemeal from those who were present. All concerned seem to be more or less reserved in speaking of the matter. Per-haps, in the course of a day or two, we shall 11% all 1/2c. Graceries dull and unchanged.
