Queen Victoria's Friendship for George Peabody-An Invitation to Windsor for a "Quiet Talk"-Fatal Interfer-ence of Death.

LONDON, Nov. 11, 1869,-I learn to-day that at a moment just immediately prior to day that George Peabody leaving England on his last visit to America, Queen Victoria addressed a letter in royal autograph to him, in which she expressed a great wish to meet him at a personal interview, and requesting him to inform her of the moment of his return to England. On his arrival at his home in this city from the United States, Mr. Peabody, in accordance with her Majesty's invitation, communicated the fact to the Court, and in reply received an

the fact to the Court, and in reply received an invitation from the Queen to come and spend a day quietly with her on her return to Windsor from Scotland.

When the Queen was subsequently made aware of the very serious illness of Mr. Peabody she proposed to visit Sir Curtis Lampson's house and see him; but the rapidly fatal termination of the disease prevented her termination of the disease prevented her Majesty, to her very great regret, from carry-ing her friendly intention into practical ef-

LORD DERBY'S FUNERAL.

Private Character of the Obsequies. [From the Pall Mall Gazette, Oct. 29th.] At noon to-day the remains of the fourteenth Earl of Derby were laid in the new family vault at St. Mary's Church, Knowsley. As al-ready announced, the funeral was of the most ready announced, the funeral was of the most private character. The cortege consisted only of the hearse, eight carriages containing the relatives, and some eighty of the principal ser-vants. Inside the church, the family chapel, the pulpit, communion table and the pews had been derived in block. The ordinary busing been draped in black. The ordinary burial service of the Church of England was read by the Rev. W. L. Fielding, Vicar of Knowsley, without any choral addition. The remains of the deceased Earl were inclosed in three coffins, the first formed of oak grown upon the estate; this was inclosed in a lead coffin of unusual strength and weight, bearing upon the top of the lid a coronet, and in the upper panel the words "Edward Geoffrey, fourteenth Earl of Derby, born March 29, 1799, died October 23, 1869." The whole was encased in an oak coffin, covered with crimson velvet, with splendid gilt furniture, and a plate bearing a corresponding inscription to that upon the

THE ŒCUMENICAL COUNCIL.

The Pope and the Council. The Pope's enthusiasm respecting the Council is said to be unabated. Not long ago a priest brought him a large sum of money from the ladies of a German diocese, and in action of the ladies of the la the ladies of a German diocese, and in accepting the gift the Pope inquired whether the Bishop was coming to the Council. The priest replied that he was too old, being in his seventy-first year. "You call 71 old" exclaimed the Pope. "I am 78, and I feel young, and shall assist at the Council without neglecting my other duties." Under date of Oct. 25, the Roman correspondent of the London Post writes: Apropos of St. Peter's, I hear that the Marquis of Bute lattely wrote to the Pope offering to replace the wrote to the Pope offering to replace the present glass windows of the portice of the church, which are really unworthy of so splendid an edifice, with single panes of massive plate glass for each window, reserving two of them for the arms of the Pontiff and the court pat in color but merely cut on the his own—not in color, but merely cut on the glass. His Holiness, after having consulted the architects of the "reverenda fabrica," and the conomo, Monsignor Teodoli, instructed the latter toreply to the Marquis that there were at the present moment more urgent restorations required in the basilica than changing the windows of the portico; thanking his lordship at the same time for his generous offer, and hinting that the money required for carrying it into effect, estimated at 18,000fr., would be acceptable for other pur-

Reply to the Pope's Letter. The Evangelical Council of the Lutheran Church, now in session at Chicago, has addressed the following letter to Pope Pius ie pro We quote iro

Ninth. We quote from the report of the proceedings:
Rev. Dr. Krauth, of the Committee appointed to reply to the letter of Pope Pius IX., reported as follows:
The Committee appointed to reply to the letter of Pope Pius IX., dated Rome, Sept. 13, 1869, and addressed to "All Protestants and other Non-Catholics," would respectfully report that they organized by the appointment of a Chairman, who at once took measures by which an official copy of the Pope's letter was secured. After a careful examination of the letter your committee would lay before you the facts following:

the facts following:

1. The Pope's letter repudiates, in its only address, all recognition of any part of the Protestant world, as having an organic existence as a church—even de facto. It is adence as a church—even de facto. It is addressed to individuals, as such, and may be properly replied to by individuals at their personal discretion. The idea, for some time current, that Protestants are to have any rights, or are invited to any privileges in the "Œcumenical Council," is entirely groundless. Whatever may be the suavity of the manner, the Pope is as inflexible in the thing as if we were in the middle ages. He simply invites individuals—of whom he affirms that they "do not profess the true faith of they "do not profess the true faith of Christ," and for whom, collectively, he has no better name than that of "societies" and "sects"—to abandon their convictions and make their submission to the particular communion of which he is head.

2. The individuals thus addressed are not of a class to which the members of the Lutheran Church belong. Though the Lutheran Church is a Protestant Church, and, in the strict, original, historic limitation of the word, the only Protestant Church, yet, as the Pope addresses Protestants who are "non-Catholics," he uses the term in a sense in which it does not embrace the members of our Church. They are not non-Catholic. Protestants, but are testants against Rome only because Rome her-self is non-Catholic. Our Church believes in the Holy Catholic Church, the Universal Christian Church, the Communion of Saints, whose faith she confesses, and of which she is a pure part, and her true people living mem-bers. The very address of the letter makes a fictitious assumption, and to acknowledge that it is meant for us would be to grant an untruth and to fix a stigma upon ourselves. If there be those called Protestants who concede that they are non-Catholics, they, an they only, can properly consider the Pope's letter as addressed to themselves.

3. The Pope raises no pretensions in this letter which have not been officially rejected by our Church, again and again, and offers no ar-guments which have not been completely re-fitted in our confession and by our great di-

4. The records of the Lutheran Church. against the errors of Romanism, written, not only in her own literature and life, but in the only in her own interactive and he; but it that history of the whole civilized world for more than three centuries, is so clear, before Heaven, earth and hell, that any new official protest against those errors, on so slight an occasion as the letter of the Pope, is more than needless, and might almost excite the suspicion, or prompt the insinuation, that the body which made it was hazarding its dignity by seeming to catch at an opportunity for cheap declama-tion, to swell the sensation of the hour, or to court popular applause.

5. What is here true of all genuinely Lutheran bodies is preeminently true of this General Council. We have recently and unreservedly accepted those great confessions of our Church, in the principles of which alone Romanism can be successfuly resisted, and which have proved for ages the mightiest bul-wark against it, that any official act on our part would seem specially an act of supererogation. In view of these and other weighty reasons your committee made no reply, and would recommend that none be made to the Pope's letter. [Signed]

FATAL RAILROAD ACCIDENT.—A man named Patrick Lee, aged 45 years, was found dead close to the track of the Roading Baildead close to the track of the Roading Bailroad, near the Falls of Schuylkik. He had evidently been returning home from his work, and is supposed to have been struck by a passing train and thrown violently against the bank. The deceased resided at Falls of Schuylkill, and leaves a wife and several children. At the time of the recent flood he made a narrow escape from drowning. A dog was washed away and he went to the rescue of the animal. He got into the swift current, and, on a log, was carried down the river to Laurel Hill before he could reach the shore.

SERIOUS AFFRAY.—This afternoon, between one and two o'clock, a row occurred at Aiken's tavern, at Spafford and Shippen streets. During the melee a young man, named Joseph Brooks, twenty-five years of age, residing on Pine street, above Sixth, was struck on the head with a pitcher and was severely injured. He was conveyed to the Pennsylvania Hospital. Wm. Kane is alleged to have been the assailant of Brooks. After the affair he went to his home, on Spafford street, and went to bed. He was arrested while in bed, and was taken to the Stationhouse and locke i up for a hearing. house and locke i up for a hearing.

by fire on the 16th of April. I had then in use what I supposed was a Fire-proof Safe, but upon opening it I found everything was destroyed, and fire burning therein.
You will recollect, gentlemen, there was several of your safes in that fire, also several in the fire at Sixth your safes in that fire, also several in the fire at Sixth and Commerce streets, the next May, five weeks afterwards, all of which upon being opened proved they were fire-proof indeed, for I witnessed the opening of the most of them, and in every case the contents were preserved, while safes of other makers were partially or entirely destroyed 1 at once concluded to have something that I could depend upon, and purchased one of your safes. The safe I purchased of you at that time was subjected to a white heat (which was witnessed by several gentle-men that reside in the neighborhood) at the destruction of my Marble Paper Inctory, 221 Wallace street, on the afternoon and evening of the 24th inst. After digging the safe from the ruins, and opening it this morning, I was much pleased to find everything, consisting of books, papers, money and silverware, all right.
