THE EXPELLED MORMONS.

Cards and Protests. The Utah Magazine for October 30 contains The Utah Magazine for October 30 contains cards from the excommunicated Mormons—W.S. Godbe and Eli B. Kelsey—an "appeal to the people," and a formal protest against the action of Brigham Young and the Council. The editor says: "We have no intention of suspending the issue of this magazine." The war has evidently opened in earnest.

The "protest" sets forth that it is the right of all Mormons to refuse to accept principles or measures on the sole authority of the Priestor measures on the sole authority of the r res-hood; that they have a right to retain a stand-ing in the Church so long as their lives are pure, without regard to the opinions of the leaders; that the right of public discussion that it is than illegal and pure blacus use of the Holy Priesthood to expel any person from the Church, because they cannot conscientiously admit the divinity of any measure presented by the Priesthood; and the final protest is against compulsion."

Mr. Godbe declares he is still a faithful Mormon, but substantially reiterates the declarations of the formal protest. He adds that he has paid thousands of dollars to the Mormon authorities, at times when he thought the measures in contemplation were not wisely planned, but he was not prepared to destroy "unity of action" by refusal."

Mr. Kelsey says: "I have apostatized from

Mr. Keisey says. I have apostanzed from no doctrine nor commandment ever given to the Church by revelation through Joseph Smith, nor, indeed, from any of the measures of President Young—save it be wherein he claims infallibility for President Young, at the same time admitting his fallibility as a mau."

A Terrible Mining Disaster in Guanajuato

Over One Hundred Men, Women and Children Crushed Beneath Twenty-five Thousand Tons of Rocks--Thirty-four Persons Drowned.

Mexico, Oct. 16.—The most horrible catastrophe that has occurred during the last half century in any silver mine in the world happened within the old mine of Jesus Maria, near the city of Guanajuato, on the 9th of October. About 1,500 peons and Indians are employed in this mine during the entire year. It was opened in the early part of the sixteenth century, and has been worked continually since that time. Some of its chambers have been extended 3,000 feet from the opening. On the date mentioned, while the laborers were seated in one of the broader chambers, earling their tor-tillas con chili—noon-day meal—they were startled by a sudden, crumbling sound above them, caused by the giving way of an im-mense portion of the shelving rock which formed the roof of, the chamber. The whole number rose to their feet, breaking in different directions and running against each other in wild confusion.

With them were their wives and children which them were their wives and children who had brought them their simple meals, and were waiting to return with their pails and baskets. Scarcely a second intervened between the instant the alarming sound was heard from above and the erash upon the chamber floor below, followed by a cloud of dust and the mingled cries of a thousand voices.

Twenty-five thousand tons of rock in a body had buried in an instant, as was afterward ascertained, upward of an hundred miners, their wives, sisters, and children. The height—400 feet—from which the immense fragment of the overhanging mountain fell gave such deadly momentum to the great weight that none who were struck knew of the terrible blow which sent them into eternity. The alarm was soon spread to neighboring mines. Thousands of miners and citizens from Guanajuato soon assembled around the shaft of the Jesus Maria mine. There was not a spark of hope that any one of all who fell beneath the crush of rocks was alive. By counting the whole number who entered the mine in the morning, and the missing women who had carried meals to relatives and friends, it was ascertained who had been buried in that terrible mausoleum.

The day following that on which the Jesus Maria silver mine disaster occurred, sixteen women, six children and twelve men were women, six children and twelve men were drowned in the river Merceala, State of Michoacan. They had reached the river bank, and sat down to rest before undertaking to ford the river, which had been swollen by the late rains. The bank upon which they sat overhung an angry current, and suddenly slid off from the main land into the stream. Every one perished. Their bodies were found lower down the stream.—N. Y. Hospital Clinics. To the Editor of the Daily Evening Bulletin.-Will you allow an old student, who is at the same time a graduate in medicine of more than fifty years standing, to offer some remarks on the present difficulties in the way of clinical or bedside instruction in the Pennsylvania Hospital? Students of the University of Pennsylvania and of the Jefferson Medical College, numbering between two and three hundred, hospital ticket, at the beginning the session, in perfect good faith, with the intention of being, as those before them in former years had always been, regular, earnest and respectful attendants on the clinical lecmonstrations of wounds and other injurties in the structure of various parts, by the physicians and surgeons of the institu-tion. These students, in taking their ticket, were not told that there would be a new important, and almost of necessity, a disturbing element in the composition of the class by the addition of a certain number of female students of medicine, who should attend at the same time and occupy the same benches with themselves. The carrying of this scheme into effect could not fail to give a rude shock to al the conventional ideas and feelings of the com munity regarding the modesty and maidenly reserve of young persons of the other sex, in every station of life. The students of the two great medical schools of which our city is justly proud, and from whose temporary residence proud, and from whose temporary residence it derives substantial pecuniary gain, might well be annoyed and disgusted at their enforced companionship with young women who could gaze at, unmoved, and perhaps handle objects of the most repulsive kind, some of them evidences of disease resulting from vicious and criminal indulgences, and requiring for their exhibition presents expenses to and criminal indulgences, and requiring for their exhibition unseemly exposure of the person of the patient. Very justly was it said by the BULLETIN that the presence of women under such circumstances "is opposed to all the prevalent notions of modesty and pro-priety," and, also, "that feminine delicacy and modesty must suffer by a promiscuous attendance at such demonstrations as are insepar able from such clinics." Young men attend-ing clinical lectures and demonstrations would not dare to whisper or hint at to their sisters at home the topics discussed on these occa-sions. These students had also another cause of discontent and complaint in the fact that they could not receive as members of a mixed class, the same full measure of clinical instruction as they would if they were to continue separate as heretofore.

But while it must be conceded that the young men who took the hospital ticket had real grievances to complain of, there can be found no justification for their rude, unmanly and coarse conduct to the young women who had begun attendance on the chinical lectures of the hospital. A nuisance may be very patent, but it is not allowed, even to those suffering from it, to abateitin a summary and illegal fashion. Granting that the female medical students disrobed themselves, on this occasion, of the attractive and even protecting vesture of modesty and shrinking reserve from all needless exposure, and chose to appear in a state of demi-moral nudity, the were, nevertheless, amenable to other courts for sentence and adjudication, in which the male students could take no active or recog nized part.

On a review of the whole matter it would seem that these young persons of both sexes have been placed in a false position to each other by the unadvised course of their seniors, the managers of the Pennsylvania Hospital, who have not evinced their customary discretion and good judgment on this occasion, in their issuing tickets to young women for attendance on the chinical lectures in their institution. The parties most directly interested, and whose opinions of the feasibility and practical workings of the new experiment in the interests or humanity must have the greatest weight, are the members of the medical and surgical staff of the hospital. If we are correctly informed, these gentlemen were not consulted, nor was any inquiry instituted through them as to the opinions and feelings of the students of the medical schools. The subject was of sufficient, importance to justify, and, indeed, require preliminary conference and consultation among all these par-ties, and particularly between the hospital managers and clinical lecturers who make up their staff. If the students, when they went for their hospital tickets, had been apprised of the new associates intended for them, they could either have declined taking tickets, or if they did take them, it would be giving their implied assent to the experiment, and an obligation not to oppose any obstacles to a fair trial. At the opening lecture of the clinical course, if not at the first lectures at the schools, the students might have been apprise of the contemplated new arrangement, and their love of fair dealing and magnanimity appealed to in favor of a suitable trial. B.

ENGLAND.

The Bishop of Exeter

The Row Over Dr. Temple's Nomination From the London correspondence of the

New York Times upon the subject of the opposition that was offered in England to the elevation of Rev. Dr. Temple to the Seesof Exeter, we clip the following:

It is curious to see the divisious among those one would expect to be united for common defence. While Dr. Pusey takes such strong ground against Dr. Temple, the Church Times rather favors his appointment, and clearly prefers him to any of the "Protestant" party. The radical Ritualists look upon him as a clear-headed hard-headed intellectual man, who clear-neaded hard-headed intellectual man, who may be expected not to turn up his nose at incense, and who will give all parties fair play. If the docs not believe much, he will not be a bigot. Dr.Lee and Dr.Littledale seem also to be at log-gerheads on the disestablishment question. But I think no one can fail to see that all these contests are tending to one result. The Government of England will not much longer Government of England will not much longer trouble itself with the appointment of Bishops, to whom, if they have any character at at all, two parts out of three will have as violent ob-jections as Dean McNeill has to Dr. Pusey.

how long men who are poison syrup or poison undisguised to each other can keep up the pretence of corporate unity.

The Times takes, therefore, an Anglican and conservative view of the question. It holds

The Church, like the Colonies, will be thrown upon its own resources, and we shall then see "The scandal and mischief-if it be so-of having Dr. Temple on the Bench, are surely as nothing compared with the ruin which must befall the Church if all its contending sections were free to persecute and expel each other. Had the extreme High Churchmen had their way, no clergyman doubting baptism recoveration could have remained tismal regeneration could have remained within the Establishment; had the extreme Low Churchmen had their way, there would have been a secession of clergymen holding consubstantiation; had the extreme men of both parties had their way, some of the ablest and not the least pious of English Churchmen would have been driven into some other communion. After the elimination of these ele ments, a vapid and colorless orthodoxy might remain, but all that constitutes spiritual life and energy would have been lost to our Church.

This is the High Erastian view, and it is apparently the view taken by Mr. Gladstone, for, in the midst of all this clamor, he has calmly ordered the Chapter of Exeter to elect, and will order some of the Bishops to consecrate, the essayist and reviewer, Dr. Temple.

And one of the most violent of these Protestants against the royal supremacy has made up his mind that nothing will come of it.

Archdeacon Denison says:

"From the first moment that I heard of the idesignation," of Dr. Temple I was obliged to 'designation' of Dr. Temple I was obliged to conclude, from many years' sad experience, that there would not be found any collective or corporate faithfulness in resisting it. I doubt, indeed, whether there are to be found so many individual instances of faithfulness as was found eight years ago. The Minister is said to be a churchman. No man can possibly have done more to bring the synod of his province into the lowest contempt. But there is a greater offence than that of Dr. Temple, or even that of the Minister who tramples upon the faith which he professes to hold. If Dr. Temple shall be elected and consecrated, this will be 'the greater sin.'"

In the meantime the Rugbeans, old and young, stand up sturdily for their Head Master. Here is a letter from a young one, written to his father, who has sent it to the

"I suppose you have heard the news about Dr. Temple. It has been received just as if he had died. Three of the masters cried when they told their forms of it, and our master observed that we might ever be proud of saying that we have been under Dr. Temple. I shall not care a bit for the school with a new master; no more will any one. I feel sure that there was not anybody in the school who ever disliked him. We cannot ever possibly have another anything approaching to him. I would not mind only having 10s. a term all the time I'm here if he would come back.' After that who can doubt Dr. Temple's or-thodoxy and fitness to be a bishop!

PETROLEUM.

Production and Development in October. From the monthly petroleum report for the month ending October 31st, published in the Titusville Herald, we gather the following statistics : "The total production during the month, as shown by the difference between the stocks on the first days of October and November and the shipments from the region during the meantime, was 405,206 barrels of forty-three callons each, or a daily average of 13,071 bar-els. This shows an increase, as compared with the daily average for September, of a little more than 400 barrels, and of 3,000 barreis over the daily average for October last year. The increase was less general on the farms and districts than during September. The yield of many of the older producing farms and tracts fell off, and on several of them the decline was important.

drilling increased during the month, and on November 1st the number in all parts of the region was 260, an increase of twenty-nine. Besides the above there were altogether about tifteen old wells being drilled deeper. These were located mainly in the Pleasantville dis-

"The stock underwent a further decrease during October, and on November 1st the total amount in all hands was 276,475 barrels of forty-three gallons, a reduction of about 16,000 els as compared with that on the first day of the previous month, and an increase of 10,000 barrels over that on the 1st day of November last year. The reduction was occasioned by unusually heavy shipments during the last four days of the month.

"In the stock above given are included the amount at the wells, the amount in iron tankage, and that on the hands of dealers, pipe age, and that on the hands of dealers, pipe companies and refiners. This latter stock reached 13,970 barrels, and included 2,900 barrels at Titusville, 2,020 at Pithole, 1,500 at Shamburg, 1,000 on Bull Run, 1,200 on the Rynd Farm, 300 on Cherrytree Run, 1,600 at Miller Farm, 550 on the Story Farm, 2,000 at Petroleum Centre, 1,000 at Oil City, and 400 at Tidioute. Tidioute.

"The total shipments of crude equivalent reached 421,229 barrels; of 43 gallons, or a daily average of a little more than 13,600 barrels. The shipment by the Allegheny river was light, having reached but about 2,500 barrels. The quantity shipped to New York was about 18,000 barrels in excess of that for the previous month, that to Cleveland about 2,000 barrels less, and to Pittsburgh about 20,000 barrels less. The shipment to Boston fell off about 3,000 barrels, and to all other points there was an enlargement of a like amount.

Two colored men, near Rolling Fork, in Issaquena county; Miss., had a difficulty that resulted in their attendance before a colored magistrate in that neighborhood. After a hearing the Judge decided that both men were in fault, and that each should pay a fine fact and costs making 448 each. But both of $25 and costs, making $48 each. But both were unable to pay. The embarrassed squire finally hit upon a plan to get even with them. He put both to work on his forty acre cotton patch, and they packed 4,800 pounds each to square the squire's little bill. AMUSEM ENTS

THE THOMAS CONCERTS. The second of the Thomas Concerts drew a far larger audience than the first, delighting all with the finished playing of the best orchestra we have ever heard in this city, and educating our musical public to an appreciation of competition better than has higherton tion of something better than has hitherto been vouchsafed them. For some time to come their playing will remain the standard by which to gauge the efforts of our concert orchestras. Although we cannot, as yet, hope to hear any such performance at hands of the latter, it will be interesting and profitable to note their progress in overcoming the great disparity. Compared with the Thomas orchestra, all that we have done is utterly unsatisfactory. Shall we not learn a lesson from these evenings of un-alloyed pleasure? Are we not to look for better things from those to whom the Thomas recitals must have come as a new revelation of what can be done by continued, conscientious effort in the right direction? Let us at least hope that, after this, our musicians will aim somewhat higher and that our audiences will exact more than they have heretofore been furnished with. We cannot boast of so large a number of excellent musicians, nor have we, as yet, been able to discover the presence in our city of such a leader as Theodore our city of such a leader as Theodore Thomas. We can, however, avoid slip-shod herformances, and when we are always doing our best we may rest assured that better will We were delighted last evening with a repetition of the exquisite serenade by Haydn. We doubt whether any number on the programme so fascinated the audience as this quaint, yet beautiful composition. As a proof of proficiency, not alone as to precision, bu as to the fullest conception and perfect ren dition of a musical idea, we must cite the "Traeumerei," by Schumann. Arranged from a little sketch for the piano, it is scored principally for the strings, with a short passage for wind instruments, after which the origina theme is repeated with muted strings. Played by an ordinary orchestra, this little sketch would have been void of meaning; as rendered last night, it was alive with grace and

Of overtures, there was the great Leonora No. 3—Litolff's effect piece—Robespierre and Ambrose Thomas's light and pleasing Mignon. There was, also, a charming suito by Bach and the Scherzo from the Reformation

Symphony. Besides these there were waltzes and polkas by Strauss.

Miss Alide Topp played the Schumann Concerto in A minor with more than mere virtuosity. Far more genial than the Liszt concerto of the previous evening, it is more grateful both to performer and audience. Her musician-like performance made this her most successful effort before a Philadelphia audience. Power, delicacy, an exquisite touch and thorough appreciation of the beauties as well as the difficulties of the great work characterized her playing. Mr. Leetsch's trombone solo, "Die Thraene," by Stigelli, was tastefully given, and showed his command of a most difficult instrument.

For this evening, we are promised, among mand of a most difficult instrument.

For this evening, we are promised, among other attractions, the two movements from the Unfinished Symphony, by Schubert. This alone should induce every lover of music to attend. In addition, we are to have the Rienzi and the Freyschutz overtures, selections from the Midsummer Night's Dream, Schuman's "Treumerei," Vieuxtemps' "Reverie," Weber's "Invitation à la Danse," a trio for horns and trombones by Regmann and horns and trombones by Bergmann, and waltzes and polkas by Strauss. The concluding concert will be given this evening, for which occasion a brilliant programme is offered. The lovers of splendid music should not miss this last chance of hearing the unrivalled orchestra.

-The exhibition of Parlor Magic given last evening by Mr. Coleman Sellers, at the Seven-teenth Street Theatre, for the benefit of the Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, was an entire success. The characteristic feeture of the performance was the happy mitgling of surprising feats of regerdemain with pseudo-scientific explanations. Thus the illustration of the mechanical or vibratory theory of heat by the handkerchief with sever corners, and the trigonometrical discussion of the problem of ten beds for the eleven travel-the problem of ten beds for the eleven travel-ers, were irresistibly ludicrous, and elicited hearty laughter and applause.

Many of the feats performed were of the most surprising character, such as that of the cards, which, selected by the audience, rose at their bidding from a tumbler which each in turn held in his own hand; the card im-reled on a word's point from a rock thouse. paled on a sword's point from a pack thrown into the air, the rings extracted from a box which had bung before the audience all the evening, and many others. Several were newly devised by Mr. Sellers, or modified esentially in their character. Thus, the famous "egg bag" was performed with a simple silk handkerchief for an egg-developing apparatus, which rendered this most incomprehensible feat yet more mysterious, notwithstand ing the "lucid" explanation on scientific prin

The "Star Spangled Banner," in which a piece of white muslin by burning up was con-verted into an American Flag was a very eretty and successful "experiment." Mr. Sellers made an effective appeal in be half of the Society for whose benefit he was so generously laboring, and we do not doubt that much will be gained by this effort for the admirable charity concerned.

We heard, in going out, countless expres ions of wonder, curiosity and satisfaction and from this, as well as from the frequent and hearty applause, are sure that our own enjoyment was fully equaled by that of each one in this entire audience. The performance was diversified by some songs by an amateur quartette club, who well deserved the enthusiastic applause which their performance elicited.

-The Franko Family, comprising Nahan, aged seven years; Rachel, nine years; Sam, ten years; Jeannette, twelve years; and Selma, fourfeen years, gave a concert in the Assembly Buildings last evening before a large and appreciative audience. The remarkable proficiency with which these children played both on the piane and violin, showed that they have had a thorough musical train-ing. Sam handles the violin like a veteran, and his execution of Vieuxtemps's burlesque variations on Yankee Doodle was very skillvariations on Yankee Doodle was very skill-fully done, and received an encore. Jeannetts played "Souvenir de Bellini—Fan-tasie Brillante for Violin," and was accompanied on the plane, by Sam. "L'In-vitation a la Danse," by Weber, arranged for two planes, was played by Selma and Jean-nette in a most satisfactory manner. A plane solo, "Joyful and Sorrowful," for the left hand, was exceedingly well avacuated and had solo, "Joyful and Sorrowful," for the less hand, was exceedingly well executed and had to be repeated at the demand of the audience. Gounod's "Meditation" and an arrangement of "God Save the Queen," were given on a many and they were played very correctly piano, and they were played very correctly and were heartily applauded. Mrs. Hearietts Behrens assisted in the concert, and the entertainment was a very pleasant musical treat. Another concert will be given this evening.

-The "Pot," a noted whirlpool in the Teunessee river, strong enough at all times to engulf a canoe, producing cross currents which made navigation dangerous even for steamboats at high water, and often destroying large vessels in time of flood, has ceased to down a point of land that projected into the river, and thus cause a deflection of the current, so that the water new has a free pasrent, so that the water new has a free pas-sage. Many amusing stories are told about this "Pot" by those living on the banks of the river, in Marion county. One dark night a flatboatman from Jefferson county was float-ing down the river, when he came to a log cabin on the bank, from which proceeded the sounds of music and dancing. Tying up his boat, he joined the merry party, drank a few horns of whisky, and started on his jour-ney. Having floated about fifteen minutes, he passed what he supposed to be another cabin, where a similar frolic was in progress The third party that he encountered he took another social glass with, and then continued his journey, passing a log cabin every half mile, from which the sounds of music were issuing.
